LINER REACHES PLYMOUTH

Delegation Reaches Port; Dawes There to Meet It

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, England, Friday, Jan. 17.—The steamship George Washington, with the American delegation to the forthcoming naval arms conference aboard, arrived here just before dawn today.

The American delegation, headed by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, will land at about 8 A. M. Ambassador Dawes and British officials will welcome them at the dock.

By L. C. SPEERS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, at Sea, Jan. 16.—Unofficial bulletins on this ship quote Premier MacDonald of England as favoring the abolition of capital ships. This has caused much surprise among members of the American delegation to the London naval conference and their naval advisers. That the United States would oppose such action in the event it was proposed by the British or other delegation seems evident.

It is believed in some quarters that Japan would take the same position as the United States, which is that the battleship is still the backbone of the fleet—"the infantry of the sea," to use the words of a member of the American delegation.

The reported declaration of the British Prime Minister has not been confirmed officially either by Washington or London in dispatches to this ship. But since there is every other reason to believe the bulletins are correct they have caused much discussion among the American delegation, to whom the news has come as a complete surprise.

Another statement ascribed to Mr. MacDonald is that in the event such abolition were not possible he favored cutting the treaty limit on the size of battleships from 35,000 to 25,000 tons. What the attitude of the American delegation would be to such a view cannot be forecast, but the subject certainly involves controversial problems.

Opposition Appears Certain.

One thing seems certain—that is, in the event Mr. MacDonald has been correctly quoted and in the event that he made his suggestion at the naval conference the American delegates would state the position of their naval advisers that battleships must be retained, which view is understood to have the support of President Hoover as well as the unanimous support of the delegates. And in such an event the battleship problem would be the major one of the conference.

The fact that four American battleships are older than any similar units of the British fleet and mount 12-inch guns, whereas the similar British battleships all carry 13½-inch guns, may also involve much discussion when the replacement phase comes up on the motion to continue the building holiday for five or more years. The four American ships referred to—the Florida, Utah, Wyoming and Arkansas—will reach the treaty age limit of twenty years in 1931 and 1932.

Because of the huge financial burden involved the United States is expected to take a sympathetic stand in the matter of replacement when that question is considered from the point of view of the whole fleet.

The matter of reduction in size is also expected to receive serious consideration before any definite stand is taken. There will also be the matter of the possible reduction of the number of battle units.

A third proposition ascribed to Premier MacDonald would limit submarines in number and hold their size to 600 tons. But the delegates refuse to comment on these matters pending official confirmation of the bulletins.

Secretary Stimson will see Mr. MacDonald immediately upon his arrival in London tomorrow afternoon, when it is expected that the whole general phase of the conference will be the subject of discussion. This may prove to be the most important pre-convention conference between the heads of the British and American delegations. After their talk Mr. MacDon-

Aldermen's Delay Holds Up Pay Of 11,000 Sanitation Workers.

Because the Board of Aldermen branch of the Municipal Assembly failed to approve salary schedules for the Sanitation Department until last Tuesday, the pay checks of more than 11,000 city employes amounting to about $500,000 have been delayed, it was learned yesterday from Sanitation Commissioner William Schroeder Jr.

Most of the employes affected are in the former Street Cleaning Department, now a branch of the Sanitation Commission, but the personnel of the newly established Municipal Courts in Brooklyn is also affected. The Board of Aldermen should have acted at its meeting on Jan. 2 to preserve the regularity of salary payments, according to the employes. Street sweepers who usually have been paid weekly have received no money for two weeks.

Dr. Schroeder, who has not been paid since Dec. 1, said it might not be possible to complete the pay records until Jan. 22 or 23, although Chief Clerk John O'Brien of the Street Cleaning Division said he hoped to meet the Jan. 4 payroll next Tuesday, and the Jan. 11 payroll the following Monday.

Became Ill in His Office on Wednesday and Succumbed Yesterday.

WON NOTABLE LAW CASES

Served in Assembly and Senate and Defeated Mitchel for Mayoralty Nomination.

William M. Bennett, lawyer, and former Assemblyman and State Senator, who won the Republican Mayorality nomination over John Purroy Mitchel in 1917, was stricken last Wednesday morning with paralysis in his office at 15 William Street and died yesterday in Broad Street Hospital. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Bennett was born in Nashville, Tenn., the son of a university president, a man who gave up the latter years of his life to go South and help in the task of bringing education to the negroes. Mr. Bennett attended Oberlin College, from which he was graduated in 1890, and then went to Columbia Law School, where he obtained his degree in 1893.

He made such a good record there that in 1895, when three of the professors were taken ill, he was asked to lecture on the subject of quasi-contracts, a second-year subject. Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey was one of his classmates.

Won $160,000 Fee.

In November, 1905, Mr. Bennett became a member of the law firm of McElheny & Bennett at 15 William Street, and in the same year had the distinction of successfully winding up litigation which netted him a fee of $160,000.

The money he had inherited from his father was lost in the American Malting Company and Bennett set out to get it back. As a result of that work he became a specialist in representing minority stockholders. His activities against the corporation forced the directors to pay over $340,000 in cash and $1,000,000 par value of common stock. Another action against the American Grass Twine Company the next year resulted in the directors paying over almost $1,000,000 to the corporation.

The name Mr. Bennett made for himself in those suits brought him a great deal of business and the young man who, a few years before, had seen all he possessed in the world wiped out through the manipulations of corporation finance found

HUGHES SAYS NATION IS FULLY PROTECTED IN THE WORLD COURT

FINDS TRIBUNAL IS VITAL

Declares to Hold Aloof Would Belie Our Aspirations for Permanent Peace.

SEES MUCH TO BE GAINED

The protocol which has been signed on behalf of the United States for its adherence to the World Court, fully protects the interests of this country, according to Charles Evans Hughes, a judge of the permanent tribunal, who analyzed the court and its methods last night. Mr. Hughes spoke at a meeting of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, 42 West Forty-fourth Street.

The former Secretary of State spoke for an hour, his exposition of the working of the court being broadcast nationally by the National Broadcasting Company. He went deeply into the organization of the tribunal and explained the comprehensive and unbiased manner in which the judges deliberated and decided momentous issues. He endeavored, as he phrased it, to "give a picture of the court at work."

Urges a Permanent Body.

"The judicial settlement of international disputes," he said, "cannot be adequately secured by mere sporadic, occasional efforts. There should be continuity, permanency, the opportunity for the growth of confidence and for the firm establishment of the tradition both of competency and judicial independence.

"As a nation devoted to the interests of peace, we have the utmost concern in this development. To hold aloof is to belie our aspirations and to fail to do our part in forming the habit of mind upon which all hopes of permanent peace depend.

"In supporting the World Court in the manner proposed, we lose nothing that we could otherwise preserve; we take no serious risks that we could otherwise avoid; we enhance rather than impair our ultimate security; and we heighten the mutual confidence which rests on demonstrated respect for the essential institutions of international justice."

Mr. Hughes appeared before the distinguished company of judges and attorneys in the meeting room of the bar association as the second speaker in the season's series of lectures arranged by the committee of which James A. Davis is chairman. Admittance to the hall, which seats 550, was by card only. The committee on international law, of which Elihu Root is chairman, welcomed Mr. Hughes.

Not a Controversial Address.

"It is not my purpose," Mr. Hughes said, "to make a controversial address, but rather to give you an account of the World Court as a going concern. I shall make no apology for dealing with details of organization, as I have discovered that there is profound ignorance on this subject in the most unsuspected quarters. One of the world's famous statesmen, whom I met abroad last Summer, asked me how the judges of the court were elected, and from the sort of questions put to me in this country, even by lawyers, I am persuaded that, while there has been much discussion about the World

Mme. Walska Wins Fight for Rights of Wives; Customs Court Recognizes Separate Domicile

Explaining that the legal status of a married woman has changed so greatly in recent years that in most States she stands upon terms of equality with her husband, the Third Division of the United States Customs Court in a decision yesterday unanimously upheld the right of Mme. Ganna Walska McCormick, opera singer and wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, to exemption from customs duties on the ground that her legal residence is in France. The decision gives Mme. Walska a victory in a fight she started a year ago last September when customs officers held her liable for duty on personal effects she brought with her from abroad on a visit to her husband here.

A concurring opinion filed by Justice Genevieve R. Cline, only woman member of the court and the first woman appointed to a place in the Federal judiciary, makes a vigorous plea for greater recognition of the rights of women "who are taking active part in many of the leading industries and professions of the world."

Although she concurs in the opinion of her associates that Mme. Walska's claim to a separate domicile is justified, Justice Cline objects to the limitations implied in the majority opinion, "that the domicile of the husband is the domicile of the wife, but there are exceptions to this rule."

"Since the majority opinion states that the wife stands on terms of equality with the husband in respect to property and civil rights," her opinion declares, "I can discern no reason why they should not have equal rights as to the selection of a domicile, there being nothing in the rule to prevent, and, as shown by the majority opinion, the common law has been practically expunged."

Since married women are not exempted from taxes and have the same liabilities forced upon them as men, their constitutional right to the same privileges and immunities must be recognized by all fair-thinking people, Justice Cline concludes.

"The wife is now a distinct legal entity. She stands upon terms of equality with her husband in respect to property, torts, contracts and civil rights.

"The wife may acquire a domicile separate and apart from her husband by reason of his misconduct, or abandonment, or by his agreement either express or implied."

Attention is called to the fact that the couple, by express agreement, always maintained separate residences, Mme. Walska in Paris and Mr. McCormick in Chicago. They live on friendly terms and exchange visits, the court points out. In assessing duty on Mme. Walska's belongings, it is explained, the customs authorities acted upon the theory that the residential status of a wife was that of her husband.

ROOSEVELT URGES UNITING PORT BODIES

Asks "Wedding" of Bridge and Tunnel Board and Authority as Good Business Move.

WOULD KEEP ALL EXPERTS

Pleading That Plan Be Weighed "Without Prejudice," He Says It Would Bring Savings.

Consolidation of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission with the Port of New York Authority was advocated last night by Governor Roosevelt at the annual dinner of the Holland Society of New York in the Hotel Astor.

Political differences between the two bodies, it has long been felt, have kept the organizations from smooth team work on important projects such as interstate bridges and tunnels. The Port Authority is dominated by Democrats and the Bridge and Tunnel Commission by Republicans.

The Governor said that a consolidation of the units would work to the best advantage of the people of both States. He intimated that consolidation might be opposed, mentioning the lighterage controversy that has aroused bad feeling between New York and New Jersey, but he begged that the consolidation plan be considered without prejudice and without anger.

Need for More Crossings.

"The time has come," the Governor said, "for the people on both sides of the Hudson River to see the need for additional tunnels or bridges between the two States. There are two public bodies—one of them has specialized in the building of tunnels, the other has specialized in the building of bridges, in addition to the many other problems of port unity. Both bodies have fine staffs of engineers and yet from a practical point of view it would be better if we could in the near future combine and consolidate these two official bodies.

"I am, therefore, suggesting to the people, to the business men and to the commercial associations of New York and New Jersey that in both States we should consider a wedding between the Bridge and Tunnel Commission and the Port Authority. I do not mean that the Bridge and Tunnel Commission should be thrown into the discard and all its functions transferred to the Port Authority. I mean rather that by official cooperation between the two States the members of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission should be added to the membership of the Port Authority.

"I do not mean that the splendid engineering staff of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission should be discarded, but rather that it should be retained by the newly constituted body and used for their special work of building new tunnels. A plan of this kind will, I am confident, appeal to the business sense of the community.

"There are many objections to the continuation of two separate bodies. In the first place, they become unnecessary rivals on matters affecting the whole financial structure of tunnel and bridge development. For example, you cannot have a free tunnel at one point and a toll bridge at another point, nor can you have a free bridge within a few blocks of a toll tunnel. Financially and in every other way bridges and tunnels go hand in hand.

Sees Aid in Financing.

"Furthermore, there is the great problem of raising the money with which to build new bridges and tunnels. Because of the mounting budgets of both States, it seems to be impracticable for either State to pay the cost of new tunnels and bridges

REPUBLICANS ADOPT CITY-REFORM PLANS

Outline Approved by New York County Committee Calls for Leader of Five Boroughs.

FUSION TO BE MADE EASIER

Committee Named to Pick Group to Work Out Details of 14 Points in Resolution.

An outline of a plan to build up the Republican party and to create a municipal organization for city elections to battle against Tammany was adopted last night by the New York County Republican Committee at its monthly meeting at Palm Garden, 306 West Fifty-second Street.

The resolution, which was offered by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, designated Emory R. Buckner, Dr. Butler, Miss Emily Cross, General James G. Harbord, Mrs. Mortimer M. Menken, former Attorney General Albert Ottinger, James R. Sheffield, Lewis Strauss and Mrs. Edward S. Van Zile as a committee to select an advisory committee to prepare a detailed reorganization plan.

Calls for City Chairman.

In addition to calling for the establishment of a municipal anti-Tammany organization to include Democrats and independents as well as Republicans, the plan, the authorship of which was attributed in large part to Samuel S. Koenig, county chairman, called for the creation of an executive committee in each county of the city with a view to the selection by these executive committees of a Republican city chairman.

Although not definitely so stated in the outline of the plan contained in the resolution, it was learned that the plan contemplated the restoration of the city convention to nominate the city-wide candidates with a view to making fusion against Tammany more feasible than it is now under the direct primary method of nominating. A bill to restore the city convention was passed by the Legislature last year but was vetoed by Governor Roosevelt. The leaders of the New York County Republican organization propose to introduce such a bill again and hope it may become law as soon as there is a Republican Governor. With the city convention restored it would be possible for a committee to confer with representatives of the proposed independent municipal organization on a real fusion ticket to represent all anti-Tammany elements in much the same way as the late John Purroy Mitchel was first nominated for Mayor in 1913.

Fourteen Points Outlined.

The resolution, which received the unanimous approval of the executive committee before its presentation to the county committee, first named the committee to select the advisory committee and then enumerated fourteen points in the proposed plan to be prepared by the latter committee as follows:

1. To formulate plans and to stimulate sentiment for the purpose of inducing the participation of all qualified voters every year at the annual election.
2. To define the principles and policies of the Republican party of the city of New York, taking into consideration the best interests of the city of New York, and working in conjunction with the various leaders in the social, economic and philanthropic endeavors of the city of New York.
3. To cooperate with the Assembly District organizations generally, and in particular for the purpose of strengthening each organization by the creation of election district associations.
4. To organize the various committees which shall operate to prevent

EIELSON IS LOCATED ON SIBERIAN RIVER, MOSCOW REPORTS

RELIEF PARTIES ORDERED

SPOT TALLIES WITH COURSE

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16.—The Soviet Arctic Commission reported today that Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, the American fliers missing since Nov. 9, had been located at the month of the Amguem River, 160 miles east of North Cape along the Siberian coast. [The map indicates that the distance is not far from 100 miles.]

A similar radio message was sent to the Soviet vessel Stavropol, icebound between North Cape and Wrangel Island and to Commander Minayeff of Wrangel Island, whose dog teams should by now have joined the Stavropol's team in the search for Eielson and Borland.

The Arctic Commission takes a fairly optimistic view of Kyrillenko's news, although it emphasizes the possibility of delay in radio communication with the airmen at Providence Bay and the dog teams on the Stavropol and at Wrangel Island. Others here question whether the Chuckchei natives confused the Eielson plane with other American aircraft and hesitate to accept Kyrillenko's brief message as proof that Eielson and Borland are still alive.

First Report Dates From Dec. 30.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16 (AP).—The actual report of the landing of Eielson and Borland near the River Amguem dates from the end of December. It reached Kyrillenko, the wireless operation at Pinkignly [or Tinkignea] on Jan. 14 in a letter from Cape Wellen dated Dec. 30.

Besides the aerial search from Providence Bay and the dog team quest from the ship Stavropol and Wrangel Island, ordered by the Soviet Government, another party will be sent out from Cape Wellen.

Trader Sees Theory Confirmed.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP).—Several days may elapse before particulars concerning the reported finding of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland can be learned in the United States, R. S. Pollister, Seattle manager of the Swenson Fur Trading Company, said today.

It will take considerable time for a dog team to make the round trip from the Russian trading vessel Stavropol to the position, 120 miles southeast, where the fliers were reported to have landed.

The Seattle manager of the company which employed Eielson to carry passengers and furs from the Nanuk to Alaska after the boat became ice bound at North Cape, Siberia, has traveled extensively in the Arctic Circle and has a thorough

BLAINE MOVES FOR REPEAL AS WETS AND DRYS BATTLE IN BOTH SENATE AND HOUSE

Senator Sheppard Misses First Roll-Call in Seven Years

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Senator Sheppard missed a roll-call this week, the first of any kind to which the Texan has not answered in the Senate for seven years. Seven years ago next March he missed a roll-call when he was ill.

"I was busy preparing some bills," Senator Sheppard explained today, "and misjudged the time it would take me to get from my office to the Senate floor. When I arrived the quorum called was completed."

SENATE BARS RISE IN DUTIES ON SUGAR

Adopts, 48 to 38, Harrison's Plan to Retain 1.76-Cent Rate of Present Law.

NINE REGULARS FOR MOTION

Most Insurgents Also Aid in Defeating Republican Leaders —Cuban Envoy Hails Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Deserted by eighteen party members, the Republican organization of the Senate was roundly defeated today when the Senate, by a vote of 48 to 38, adopted the Harrison amendment providing for the continuance of the existing tariff rates of 1.76 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 2.20 cents a pound on sugar coming from other foreign countries.

With the Democrats losing only four from their ranks and supported by nine regular Republicans, as well as most of the Progressives, the efforts of the Watson-Smoot leadership, represented as acting in consonance with the wishes of the administration, to reject the proposal of Senator Harrison of Mississippi as a preliminary to acceptance of the higher Finance Committee rates proved ineffective.

The vote does not end the battle over sugar duties, as the fight will be resumed when the tariff bill is sent to conference. It is regarded as entirely possible that the conference committee may compromise on rates differing from those of 2.40 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 3 cents a pound on world sugar, as passed by the House, and of 2.20 cents and 2.75 cents, respectively, as recommended by the Senate committee.

In the light of the decisive nature of the action, however, when a much closer vote had been expected, it is believed improbable that the Senate will reverse itself later on a conference report.

Stanch Regulars Against Rise.

Such "standpatters" as Senators Gillett of Massachusetts, Goff of West Virginia and Jones of Washington were in the group of Republicans who voted against higher sugar duties. The other regulars backing the Democratic motion were Senators Allen and Capper of Kansas, Keys of New Hampshire, Metcalf of Rhode Island, Robinson of Indiana and Robsion, the new member from Kentucky.

ANNIVERSARY STIRS DEBATE

Wisconsin Senator Says Hoover Program Will Not Enforce Law.

SHEPPARD HAILS PROGRESS

Calls Buyer of Liquor a Danger, and Urges Law for His Punishment.

NEW COURT PLAN ASSAILED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—On the tenth anniversary of national prohibition, with Congress facing administration proposals to strengthen the enforcement machinery, violent attacks on the Eighteenth Amendment and speeches in defense of its economic benefits and the methods of enforcement were made in both branches of Congress today.

Before Senator Sheppard of Texas, co-author of the amendment, had an opportunity to review in the Senate the progress of prohibition and present the views of the drys, Senator Blaine of Wisconsin offered a resolution for its repeal, while Senator Blease of South Carolina denounced the "noble experiment" and insisted that it was unenforceable except with Sheriffs and a Federal judge in every township.

Despite all the speeches however, leaders in both the Senate and House feel that this session will do nothing beyond enacting legislation to carry into effect some parts of President Hoover's program to rebuild the enforcement machinery.

Ironically Lauds Longworth.

Amidst the day of speech-making inspired by the first decade of prohibition, Representative Howard of Nebraska, a dry, lauded Speaker Longworth for standing against a special inquiry into the advisability of transferring enforcement to the Department of Justice. He read a resolution approving the Speaker's course and both drys and wets applauded his ironical utterances, which broke the tensity that had developed from the hostile expressions which marked the anniversary.

While the speeches were being made, Congressional leaders were preparing to hasten consideration of legislation recommended by the administration.

The House Committee on Executive Expenditures will hold hearings Monday, and report the bill placing enforcement under the Department of Justice by the end of next week.

A subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee was named to study the proposal to give authority to United States Commissioners to act in certain prohibition law cases, with present indications that this legislation will not be favored.

The Senate Judiciary Committee next week will consider the administration's proposals and hold hearings in the expectation of presenting measures to the Senate by the time the tariff bill is passed.

Blaine's Move for Repeal.

Senator Blaine of Wisconsin offered a resolution today providing that the question of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment be submitted to the States for consideration.

Senator Glass of Virginia asked Mr. Blaine whether there was "any significance" in the offering of the resolution "in this irregular way at this time."

"The Eighteenth Amendment," said Senator Blaine, "became operative ten years ago today.

"As I recall, in the last two decades fifteen countries, including the Provinces of Canada, adopted prohibition. Only three—the United States, Finland and Prince Edward Island—have prohibition today. Experience demonstrates that prohibition is a failure. It is bound to be a failure. Any law to regulate the purely personal habits and customs of the people has always been a failure. Nowhere, and in no time, has prohibition been enforced or enforceable.

"The recent suggestions of the President for the remodeling of the machinery of enforcement do not change the situation. Prohibition is fundamentally wrong in principle, and neither constitutions nor laws can make it right.

"Sober-thinking friends of orderly government in the twelve countries that have repudiated prohibition found that the only solution of the evils that had grown up under pro-

Sixty-one oil paintings by the late Arthur B. Davies, noted American artist, which were found in his Chelsea studio after his death, have been burned by his widow, it was learned yesterday, because she did not consider them representative of her husband's work.

The paintings, which were in varying stages of completion, dated from different periods of Mr. Davies's career. All the oil paintings found in his studio which had reached a sufficient stage of completion "to convey Mr. Davies's quality" have been preserved, however, Mrs. Davies declared.

Decision on works to be destroyed was made by Mrs. Davies and her son, David, after careful study. Day before yesterday the selection was completed and the doomed works burned at the Davies home at Congers, Rockland County, N. Y.

What may have been the commercial value of the paintings destroyed could not be determined. Several of the completed paintings which Mr. Davies left have been sold by the estate at unannounced prices. Sixty-eight water-colors by him were sold last April at the Ferargil Galleries, 37 East Fifty-seventh Street, for $48,000.

Practically every drawing left by Mr. Davies is being preserved by Mrs. Davies, she said yesterday, because these were frankly studies and incompletion does not detract from their quality. In compliance with the desire of Mr. Davies that his work might be made available to students, Mrs. Davies intends to give sets of from ten to twenty of these drawings to museums throughout the country. Already Mrs. Davies has given many lithographs by her husband to public libraries, including the New York Public Library, it was learned. Mrs. Davies estimates the number of drawings left by her husband at between 2,500 and 3,000.

Mr. Davies died suddenly on Oct. 24, 1928, while painting in the mountains of Italy, but news failed to reach this country until weeks afterward. The Metropolitan Museum of Art will open a memorial exhibition of his works on Feb. 18.

Coolidge to Write 500-Word Story of America To Be Cut in Giant Letters on Mt. Rushmore

By The Associated Press.

KEYSTONE, S. D., Jan. 16.—Calvin Coolidge is to write a history of the United States which is expected to endure for 5,000 centuries.

It is to be as brief and terse as the former President's conversation, and although Mr. Coolidge is one of the highest-paid writers per word, he will not receive a cent for the narrative.

The former President, according to the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Association, has accepted an invitation to write historical data to be engraved beside the colossal figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt upon the granite face of the Black Hills mountain. Mount Rushmore is near Keystone.

The history will be Mr. Coolidge's contribution to the memorial which he dedicated during his Summer vacation in the Black Hills in 1927.

The Coolidge words, 500 or fewer if the author chooses further to condense the life of the country from the Declaration of Independence to his time, will be five or more inches deep and high enough to be read miles away.

Geologists estimate the rate of erosion on the granite escarpment of Mount Rushmore is an inch in 100,000 years. Unless radical earth changes take place or future progress decrees the removal of Mount Rushmore the memorial should endure more than 500,000 years.

Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of the project, hopes to have the Washington and Jefferson figures ready for a formal unveiling next July 4. Each of the four figures will be 420 feet tall. The tablet of Mr. Coolidge's history will be 80 feet high and 120 feet wide.

The frowning wall of Mount Rushmore upon which the memorial is to be cut is 1,000 feet high.

The sides of the letters fashioning Mr. Coolidge's words, facing westward, will be gilded so that the setting sun falling upon them will give brilliance to the story of the United States.

hibition was to abandon the unworkable and ineffective plan of trying to make people good by law.

"Only last Monday the President informed Congress that more than half of the arrests under the Federal criminal laws were for violations of the prohibition law.

Says Enforcement Is a Failure.

"In the last nine years, three Presidents have been ardent advocates of prohibition enforcement. None of them succeeded in enforcement, though they had all the governmental machinery under their control, and they had a Congress that yielded to every request for more machinery of enforcement,—and yet they failed.

"To liberalize the Volstead act would help to re-establish moderation and temperance, but the ultimate solution of the evils of prohibition will be the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Of course, the government will worry along for a time with prohibition, but the time has come for those who are prohibitionists to make good with enforcement or surrender to moderation and ordinary horse sense in dealing with the question of intoxicating liquors."

Senator Blease said the amendment was properly in the Constitution, and that the contention of Representative La Guardia that it was not legally part of the Constitution was groundless.

"President Hoover speaks of a 'noble experiment,'" he added. "That means that it is on trial and is not intended to be permanent, unless workable. I contend it has not been successful. But I hope the President will get out of Congress all he wants, and I intend to help him, but I will never vote for a bill that tries prohibition cases without a jury. I am willing to favor additional Federal judges. Perhaps, if we had a good sheriff and two or three assistants and a judge in every township, prohibition might be enforced."

Sheppard Extols Prohibition.

By that time only Senators Smoot and Grundy were present. A quorum call was demanded by Senator Sheppard before he spoke on the "Merits of Prohibition."

The Texan declared that prohibition continues "its triumphant trend," and was necessary in "this age of machinery." Statistics had shown, he continued, that, economically, prohibition had justified itself and, more than anything else since the war, had helped to make the nation prosperous and the "leader in world movements." He declared that prohibition had saved two million lives in ten years.

"The buyer of intoxicating liquor," he continued, "is today the most dangerous character in our national life. Placing appetite above law and above the welfare of his fellow-man, he supports as desperate and determined a class of law-breakers as the police annals of any country have ever known.

"The very fact that the buyer is a person of position, wealth, or prominence, intensifies the harm that may follow his example, the danger of his conduct to society.

"Without him, the traffic in illicit liquor would disappear. About him it is builded with its gangsters, gunmen, moonshiners, bootleggers, murderers and corruptionists. Their crimes in carrying on the illicit liquor traffic are his crimes. It is for him that they exist and ply their nefarious trade. We can never escape the proposition that if it is criminal to sell, it is criminal to buy. There can be no seller without a buyer.

"That prohibition is being enforced as effectively as any other law against crime cannot be denied," he asserted. "A pronounced majority of the American people obey the prohibition statutes, and most of the cases brought against violators result in convictions. Prohibition would be better enforced and a gap closed in its legal structure by the punishment of the buyer as well as the seller."

Calls It the "Morning After."

In the House Representative Frank Oliver of New York ridiculed the recommendations of the President's Law Enforcement Commission. In January, 1920, he said, America "woke up in church, took the pledge and resolved to be better than our fathers."

"By the Eighteenth Amendment," he continued, "Uncle Sam took a plea of guilty to a charge that for 150 years he had been drunk and disorderly. On the morning after Uncle Sam laughed and the whole world laughed with him. We have tried by law to make a tenth-rate heaven, but have discovered that our paradise is not populated by angels, but human beings."

Discussing the recommendations of the Law Enforcement Commission, he said:

"Let me utter a warning with reference to the Federal judiciary. The power to grant injunctions now held by Federal judges, with the concomitant power to send men to jail without a trial by jury for the violation thereof, a power so ruthlessly exercised in labor disputes and in the enforcement of the prohibition law, has stripped the Federal courts of the confidence of the people until now the courts are looked upon as instruments of personal vengeance and oppressors of the masses in the temple of liberty.

"Were it not for the life tenure so foolishly embedded in the Constitution and the cumbersome power of impeachment, the Federal bench would be shaken to its roots by popular vote."

Representative Robert H. Clancy of Michigan denounced the Anti-Saloon League for attacks on the good name of Detroit, where it is now meeting, and asserted that R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the league in Michigan, held that the "sentence of a mother of ten to life imprisonment in Michigan was a great victory for the league." He said that Detroit was being "smelt now for sin by a gang of fanatics and lobbyists who have lies on their lips, hatred in their souls and murder in their hearts."

Ohioan Upholds the Dry Law.

Representative Cooper of Ohio declared the "very life of America and her institutions of orderly government depend upon the issues in this conflict."

"The Eighteenth Amendment is an integral part of the Constitution," he declared, "and as such is as much entitled to respect and obedience as any other part of the laws of our land.

"If the outlaw liquor interests can defy the Constitution, it means that our government has failed. The history of the liquor traffic reveals it as a foe of orderly government, and a breeder of lawlessness, and on no other terms can the law abiding people of our country meet it, except upon that of an unconditional surrender."

Mr. Cooper's speech was intended, in part, as an answer to the speech last Friday of Representative Schafer, of Wisconsin, in which the latter declared the dry laws to be un-Christian.

"There is nowhere in the scriptural story any suggestion that any alcohol was present in the wine miraculously produced from water at the feast of Cana," declared Mr. Cooper.

Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois said that in the last ten years the government had thrown away $400,000,000 in trying to enforce prohibition.

"When a charitable public becomes convinced that intolerant prohibition is maintained largely for the benefit of Anti-Saloon League payrollers and food fanatics," he said, "it will refuse it contributions, and then the false demonstration of public sentiment now molding Congressional opinion will die.

"I am surprised that this un-American cause has lived as long as it has. Without tremendous financial support and misrepresentation it would completely collapse in six months. Our make-believe prohibition is the jest of the world."

La Guardia Offers Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—His resolution to declare the Eighteenth Amendment inoperative on the ground that it has been ratified by only ten States was introduced today by Representative La Guardia, Republican, of New York.

The New Yorker in his measure reiterated the charge he made in the House yesterday that the States had ratified only a joint resolution of Congress to prohibit the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors, and that the Eighteenth Amendment itself never had been ratified by the required number of States.

UPHOLDS COAST GUARD IN BLACK DUCK KILLING

Special Treasury Committee Reports That Men of Patrol Boat Acted Within the Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The special treasury committee appointed to investigate the capture of the rum-runner Black Duck, in which three liquor smugglers were killed and one wounded, has reported that officers and enlisted men of the Coast Guard patrol boat acted within the law when fire was opened on the smuggler with a machine gun.

The report of the committee, which was appointed to make an independent investigation of the shooting, which occurred off Providence, R. I., just before Christmas, has just been received by the treasury officials.

Coast Guard officials had reported that the crew of the patrol boat had acted within their instructions in firing on the smuggler, which they asserted was trying to escape.

The independent committee, treasury officials said today, upheld the Coast Guard report in its findings, which are now before Secretary Mellon.

While the report was not made public in detail, officials said there was nothing contradictory to the Coast Guard report in it. The members of the special committee, officers of the customs service, were Thomas F. Finnegan, Deputy Collector of Customs at Boston; Owen P. McKenna, customs agent of Washington, and George Murphy, Inspector of Customs in the New England division.

JAPAN FINALLY SIGNS SHIP LIQUOR TREATY

Ambassador and Acting Secretary of State Seal Compact for Search of Vessels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Japan was today added to the list of nations having ship liquor treaties with the United States when Joseph P. Cotton, Acting Secretary of State, and Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador, exchanged ratifications of a convention to aid in the prevention of the smuggling of alcoholic liquors into the United States, which was signed May 31, 1928. Japanese final approval to the compact was given Nov. 22, 1929.

Under the treaty Japanese vessels may bring liquor into American waters under seal. They also may be subject to boarding, search and seizure by American enforcement officials within a distance from the American coast that can be traversed in one hour by the suspected craft.

Similar treaties are in force between the United States and Belgium, Cuba, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Panama, Spain and Sweden. The first one was negotiated with Great Britain in 1923, and although Japan was approached soon afterward with the proposal for a similar treaty, the subject awakened little interest in Tokio for years.

Outside of the privilege that is now accorded for Japanese liners crossing the Pacific to bring liquor into American ports under seal, the immediate advantage will go to the wine industry of Chile. The principal ships running to Chile and across the Pacific are either American or Japanese, practically all of which touch at American ports.

Chile has no ship liquor treaty with the United States and now there will be much less difficulty in the exportation of wine from Chile to the Orient because of the free movement possible on Japanese vessels.

DORAN TELLS OF PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—In a statement issued on the tenth anniversary of the dry law, Prohibition Commissioner Doran today said that large-scale liquor operators had practically been driven out of business, and that the "lines were tightening with certainty" on smaller violators.

The commissioner declared that the offensive against the major bootlegger element "has been so successful that a heavy burden has rested upon the Federal court system during the past few years."

"This and other phases of the problem, however," he added, "are confronted with the confidence that a solution will be found for them.

"In the ten years that have passed since prohibition substantial progress has been made. There are basic facts, all of which emphasize enforcement progress."

He said that striving for "its principal objective," the elimination of the important sources of liquor supply, the government had built up an extensive regulatory and investigative system.

"Ten years ago," he said, "these forces were still inadequate. Today they are well trained, and while still inadequate in some respects, are fully alive to the problems confronting the Federal Government."

Heber Nations Is Sentenced.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16 (AP).—Heber Nations, former Missouri Labor Commissioner and newspaper publisher, who was convicted yesterday of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act, in connection with a beer grafting plot, was sentenced today by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis to serve eighteen months in Leavenworth Federal Prison and pay a $2,000 fine.

Bootleggers' paraphernalia will be displayed and talks given by clergymen, prominent citizens and prohibition agents in an exhibition sponsored by the New York State Women's Committee for Law Enforcement which opens for an indefinite period at 628 Fifth Avenue on Monday. The paraphernalia has been lent by Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell and two of his agents have been indefinitely assigned to the exhibition, according to an announcement yesterday morning by Miss G. V. Roberts, chairman of the committee.

Two statements criticizing Major Campbell's use of dry agents for this purpose were made yesterday afternoon by persons connected with anti-prohibition organization, but speaking as individuals. It appeared probable that inquiries would be addressed to Washington to learn if Major Campbell were authorized to employ his men in such undertakings.

At prohibition headquarters it was said that Major Campbell had assigned Ralph Navarro, an investigator on his staff, to take charge of the government's participation and that Mr. Novarro was already engaged in arranging the exhibits.

Miss Roberts said there would be talks by dry agents at ten-minute intervals throughout every day at the exhibition. The exhibits, she said, would include bottles, labels and corks, as well as samples of poison liquor.

The two statements made yesterday afternoon were by Mrs. John S. Sheppard, member of the speakers' committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, of which Mrs. Charles H. Sabin is the head, and Clifton P. Williamson of the board of managers of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc.

"In view of Commissioner Doran's statement that it would require $300,000,000 to enforce the Volstead act, I think it is too bad to divert the time of any of his small force from the business of actual enforcement," said Mrs. Sheppard.

Mr. Williamson declared:

"It is bad enough to have to endure attempted enforcement of an unenforceable law that we detest, but to have to pay for efforts to make us like it is piling on the burden. Enforcement agents should stick to the task of enforcement and leave propaganda to those who are paid for the work. Money appropriated by Congress for enforcement should not be diverted to propaganda.

"Speaking of Major Campbell, he is quoted as having said at the Anti-Saloon League meeting this week that ninety per cent of crime is due to speakeasies. Since the speakeasies are the direct product of prohibition, could it not be deduced from Major Campbell's dictum that if we were to get rid of prohibition we would reduce crime by ninety per cent, or, in other words, that prohibition is responsible for ninety per cent of present crime?"

URGES 'NO QUARTER' FOR RUM-RUNNERS

DELEGATES CHEER SPEECH

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 16.—A declaration of policy, designed to guide its activities during the second decade of prohibition, was adopted today by the convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, now in session here.

The declaration was coupled with a statement by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the league, demanding that "no quarter" be given rum-runners, and expressing unqualified approval of the recent warning to liquor smugglers by Admiral Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard, in which the Admiral made it clear that the Coast Guard would not shrink from extreme measures whenever necessary.

"I am not for promiscuous killing, but I am for Admiral Billard and his associates when they say, 'We mean business,'" Bishop Nicholson declared. His statement was cheered by the convention.

Bishop Nicholson said he approved in principle of the proposal to make the buyer and consumer of liquor equally culpable with the bootlegger, but doubted the wisdom of applying such a proposal.

"In principle I believe that is soundly true and right, but I have some doubts that the way to get at it is by legal action," Bishop Nicholson said. "The way to get at it is by public opinion."

Cherrington Reads Declaration.

The declaration of policy adopted by the convention was read by Ernest H. Cherrington, director of the department of education of the Anti-Saloon League, and indicated in general terms what the league proposes to do to influence legislation, politics, appointment and control of public officials, and in the domain of education.

"The need of such an organization as the Anti-Saloon League was never more imperative than it is today," the declaration concluded. "The task to which the league is committed has not been fully accomplished. Resolutely and devotedly we set ourselves to the completion of the task."

The declaration of policy read, in part:

"Constantly changing conditions demand additional legislation, both in Congress and in the State Legislatures. We stand today for the realization of the announced program of the President of the United States, who more than any other Chief Executive of the nation has definitely committed himself and his administration to the task of securing enforcement of prohibition.

"We stand for adequate appropriations to meet the demand for making the Eighteenth Amendment fully effective. We urge all law-abiding and liberty-loving citizens to cooperate in all necessary and helpful efforts to secure the largest possible degree of efficiency in local, State, and national administration and enforcement of this salutary legislation."

Test for Dry Officials Urged.

Added to this in the declaration of policy was the insistence that "belief in the policy of the government on the beverage alcohol question be a requirement in the election or appointment of officials who have to do with the enforcement of prohibition."

The league also declared that the stand of any aspirant to public office on the dry question will be regarded by it more than ever as a test of his progressiveness and "social-mindedness."

Then followed an outline of activities in the field of education, in which the League proposes to engage "to sell" prohibition to the people.

At a "support the President" luncheon held today in connection with the convention, at which Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the League, presided, a telegram was made public from Thomas A. Edison. It read as follows:

"All good citizens will stand by the wise program of our great President. This reform must go on to world-wide success."

Telegrams proclaiming the success of prohibition and urging its continuance and development were received also from many other business men, sociologists, economists and writers.

Shields Urges More Laws.

Suggesting ways and means of enforcing the prohibition law, James K. Shields, Superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, declared each city and village should pass an ordinance prohibiting the manufacture, sale and trnsportation of intoxicating liquor, with proper penalties. Then the police, according to Mr. Shields's plan, would be instructed to vigorously enforce such ordinances, bringing violators into local police courts, where magistrates could deal with them directly.

"If this local co-operation were given," Mr. Shields declared, "more would be accomplished in one year than all investigating commissions can do in ten.

"Here is a chance for a new mass movement; in fact, these local ordinances themselves will never be passed in any great number until first the demand for their passage is created by local public sentiment."

Virginia's majority of nearly 25,000 for Herbert Hoover in 1928 was purely a protest against the "wet" record and program of the Democratic nominee, according to David Hepburn, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia.

"The failure of the Coalition candidates in the Gubernatorial election last year was no indication that Virginia had changed her position on the prohibition question," he declared. "If the party leaders in the State and nation believe she has, and are foolish enough to nominate a wet candidate in 1932 for President, Virginia will repudiate him and vote for the dry candidate, regardless of his party affiliation."

Ford Dictum Endorsed.

Dr. Homer W. Tope, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, declared that Henry Ford was right when he recently remarked:

"Prohibition began at home with women who wanted better home conditions. They got it, and the better home conditions with it."

George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, denied Maryland was wet, contrary to the general belief. He assailed Governor Albert C. Ritchie and predicted the Executive's defeat should he again run for re-election.

EX-POLICE HEAD SENTENCED

Chadwick and Two Aides Jailed in Long Island Liquor Case.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 16.—Seven persons whose cases in one way or another were connected with the Hotel Miramar at Oceanside, L. I., which was raided several months ago and declared a public nuisance, were sentenced by County Judge Smith here today.

Lester Chadwick, former Chief of Police of Lynbrook, who was indicted for extortion after being charged with taking $200 a month to protect the hotel, was sentenced to Westchester penitentiary for four months. The extortion charge was not pressed. Arthur Taylor, a former county detective who pleaded guilty to omission of duty, reecived the same sentence.

Clifford Shepherd of Hempstead, another former county detective, convicted of omission of duty, was sentenced to Westchester penitentiary for six months.

Mrs. Lora Murray, proprietor, who pleaded guilty to maintaining a public nuisance, was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail. Her daughter, Mrs. Martha Moll, who was employed in the hotel, was fined $250 and sentenced to six months, but the jail sentence was suspended.

District Attorney Edwards told the court that Mrs. Moll had aided the State.

David Auebach, employe, was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary.

Margaret Wylde, an employe, was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail. Assemblyman Edward R. Lynde, who represented her, said that she had suffered while in prison and that her father was dying.

Helen Keller and Ruth Taylor, two residents of the hotel at the time it was raided by Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littleton Jr. and County Detective Robert McLaren, pleaded guilty to maintaining a public nuisance and were remanded to jail until Saturday, when they will be sentenced. They had been indicted for perjury before the grand jury. They were later witnesses for the State, and the perjury indictment would not be pressed against them, it was said.

DRY BIRTHDAY CAKE CUT.

Ten Candles Mark Anniversary as Chicago W. C. T. U. Celebrates.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A birthday cake with ten candles decorated the speakers' table today as 400 members of the Cook County Women's Christian Temperance Union celebrated the tenth anniversary of prohibition in the Morrison Hotel.

As the cake was cut and distributed to every one present, the members arose and sang an anthem entitled: "It's in the Constitution, and it's There, There to Stay."

President Hoover was praised as a dry by Mrs. Catherine McCullough, chairman of the prohibition enforcement committee of the club.

"Hoover was elected President of this country because he was a dry," she said. "The Democrats lost because they had a wet candidate. Even if the present incumbent should give a weak, colorless administration, the Democrats can never beat him with a wet candidate."

WETS AND DRYS HOLD BOSTON MEETINGS

DORAN ADDRESSES DRYS

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 16.—Wets and drys celebrated the tenth birthday of prohibition today in Boston in ways calculated to indicate respective beliefs that their causes were on the road to triumph.

At Faneuil Hall a wildly cheering throng acclaimed Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards in his denunciation of prohibition and at the Hotel Brunswick a meeting of drys listened with enthusiasm to Dr. James M. Doran, United States Commissioner of Prohibition.

General Edwards, acclaimed as the "daddy" of the Twenty-sixth (Yankee) Division in the World War, called upon the State to "get rid of that useless, unnecessary and ineffective piece of legislation known as the baby Volstead act" and appealed for "laws promulgated by the ballot and not enforced by bullets."

Dr. Doran characterized the government's enforcement of the prohibition law as the taking of "orderly, legal means backed by solemn and constituted political action," and, reviewing the effect of prohibition in "maintaining the present high standard of living," declared that it had saved 100,000 lives in the past year in preventing highway accidents alone.

The meeting in Faneuil Hall was called by the Liberal Civic League "in memoriam of the death of liberty and the 1,363 who have been killed in the war of prohibition." Black neckties were worn by the majority of the men in the audience, while here and there a woman wore a black rosette. All on the platform wore mourning.

Calling of the State-by-State roll of prohibition dead was answered by muffled drums and the sounding of "taps." But a note of defiance was sounded as the band played while the audience sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the "Marseilaise."

Edwards for Regulation.

Introduced by Conrad Crooker, secretary of the Constitutional Liberty League, General Edwards said:

"I have always been a stanch supporter of temperance, never have I countenanced over-indulgence for myself personally or on the part of those men under my command.

"Regulation has proved most beneficial in the neighboring provinces of Canada. Sweden has officially assumed control of the liquor problem and the results there have been the best evidence that governmental regulation can eliminate the evils of the open saloon."

On the basis of a personal study, he declared that real enforcement of prohibition would cost $500,000,000 a year and require a force exceeding the combined army and navy. Deploring a proposal to station 10,000 armed men along the Canadian border to stop rum-running, he voiced fears of gun-play that would cost this country the friendship of the Canadians.

Then, referring to present enforcement with "evidence of increasing graft," he said:

"The riches of the underworld so flagrantly flaunted before us in our large cities, and the retirement of law enforcement officials in possession of enormous fortunes can do nothing but break down the morale of our hard-working, industrious citizens."

Doran Acclaims Dry Progress.

The Bay State's organized drys observed the anniversary with a luncheon at the Hotel Brunswick. The luncheon, at which Dr. Doran was the guest of honor and principal speaker, climaxed the two-day convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

In his address Commissioner Doran said:

"Any discussion of our national prohibition policy that attempts to relate the method or manner of the handling of the problem of alcoholic liquors, as in effect prior to the World War, to the present situation, ignores the one great basic fact of tremendous change in application of power to industry that has taken place in that period of time.

"The fact that there is available and now being used in the United States at least three times the amount of energy per capita expressed in terms of horse power than in England, the nearest approach to us in power development, tells a big story.

"The employment of this energy has everything to do with our high standards of living and the increased opportunity for cultural development. The proper control of this increased energy has everything to do with community order and social welfare.

"The control and suppression of intoxicating liquor cannot be divorced from the problem. The effect of national prohibition in minimizing the consumption of intoxicating liquor has materially aided in this great development.

"Its continued maintenance and further strengthening will be the principal factor in maintaining this high standard of living. Our present problem consists in large measure of hastening changes of social habits that will comport with rapid changes brought about by application of increased scientific knowledge."

AUSTRIAN PRAISES DRY LAW

Viennese Surgeon Calls It Great Cultural Advance.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 16.—On the tenth aniversary of the beginning of prohibition in the United States, testimony to its merits was given tonight by Professor Julius Tandler, surgeon and chief of welfare institutions in the city of Vienna.

Addressing the Vienna Prohibition Club, Professor Tandler said he became convinced on a recent visit to the United States that the introduction of prohibition was the greatest cultural advance ever made in the history of the United States. It had, he said, bettered the economic condition of workers in contrast to conditions here, where, he asserted, one-third of the inhabitants of lunatic asylums were victims of alcohol.

CANADA IS SOUNDED ON PATROL PARLEY

Conference Proposed on Mellon's New Immigration, Customs and Dry Law Plans.

BORDER SURVEY IS NEEDED

It Must Precede Selection of the Proposed New Seventy Ports of Entry Along Boundary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Informal suggestions, it is understood, have been made by the United States looking to a Canadian-American conference on border patrol reorganization to be held at Ottawa in February as a preliminary to the development of the program planned by Secretary Mellon for making effective the existing laws regarding immigration, customs and prohibition.

Officials denied today that plans for the conference had progressed to the point of a definite proposal, but admitted that cooperation with the Canadian Government was necessary for the carrying out of the plan.

Secretary Mellon's program calls for a preliminary survey of the border before additional points of entry can be determined upon. Such a survey could not properly be undertaken without consultation with the Canadian authorities concerning existing arrangements on the Canadian side of the boundary.

The projected conferences at Ottawa would be participated in by representatives of the immigration, customs and Coast Guard services, with an official of the State Department.

The Canadian Government is understood to be satisfied with Treasury Department denials of reports that an armed patrol of 10,000 men is to be placed along the American side of the border. It is thought that with the consolidation of the present forces of the immigration service, the customs and the Coast Guard, should such a plan be carried out, the total would be more nearly 3,000 than 10,000.

While there is no disposition on the part of the Canadian Government to dispute the right of the United States to do what it pleases on its own side of the border, there is apprehension as to what might happen if several thousand men, armed with rifles and machine guns, were given considerable discretionary powers in prohibition enforcement.

There is said to be no disposition on the part of the Canadian authorities to increase greatly the present expense of maintaining ports along the border.

There are about seventy international highways leading from Canada to the United States, and the seventy points of entry suggested in the Treasury Department plan would account for all these highways.

The Canadian Government is preparing its reply to American proposals on the clearance of liquor ships destined for ports of the United States. The speech from the throne to be delivered in Ottawa, when Parliament convenes on Feb. 20, it is expected, will contain the answer of the Governor General of Canada to the American demand that the practice be stopped.

ASKS MICHIGAN DRY INQUIRY

Governor Directs Punishment if Enforcement Officers Are Lax.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 16.—Governor Green today called on Attorney General Wilber M. Brucker to make an investigation to determine whether any law enforcement officials in Michigan are negligent in enforcement of the Cuthberston act.

This act, passed by the 1929 Legislature, provides mandatory prison terms of at least one year for all persons found guilty of commercial violations of the State prohibition laws.

Governor, Mayor and Other Leaders Exchange Compliments.

Governor Roosevelt, Mayor Walker, John F. Curry and the five Democratic county leaders of New York exchanged compliments and sang the song of harmony last night at the nineteenth annual dinner of the Tammany Hall Speakers' Bureau in the Hotel Commodore. More than 2,000 persons crowded the dining hall.

Governor Roosevelt stayed about fifteen minutes, arriving just before 11 o'clock as Mrs. S. J. Ramsey Reese, vice chairman of the speakers' bureau had finished her address. The diners arose and cheered him and he responded with a brief talk dealing chiefly with reminiscences of his old days in Albany with Bob Wagner, Al Smith, Tom Foley "and the rest of the bunch."

Mayor Walker paid tribute to Tammany Leader Curry. He dwelt for a moment on the death of Maurice Bloch and Peter J. Hamill, and said he was glad to see George Olvany, former leader of Tammany, restored to health and able to attend the dinner.

Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Controller Berry also spoke. John A. Mullen, chairman of the bureau, was toastmaster.

HEAR 3 RAIL LINES ACCEPT MERGER PLAN

PENNSYLVANIA IS SILENT

But New York Central Is Said to Be Ready to Approve Proposal in Principle.

NEW CONFERENCES URGED

Rail Heads Seek Further Informal Conversations, but Commissioners Are Opposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Two and perhaps three of the major Eastern trunk lines are ready to accept in principle, but presumably with reservations, the railroad consolidation plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to unofficial information reaching members of the commission.

The Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio, according to this information, will within a few weeks give notice that they will accept the commission's program, with certain reservations. The Wabash was reported ready to do likewise.

There are also reports that the New York Central is preparing to accept in principle the commission's plan.

There are no intimations as to the attitude of the Pennsylvania.

These developments came rapidly today following the commission's action in ordering the Baltimore & Ohio to divest itself of its heavy stock holdings, amounting to virtual control, of the Western Maryland, a coal road, which under the commission's consolidation plan is allotted to the Wabash-Seaboard system.

It was considered significant that the attitude of the rail systems was permitted to become known on the eve of the argument scheduled tomorrow before the full commission on the application of the Baltimore & Ohio for authority to acquire stock control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, another coal carrier, allocated to the Baltimore & Ohio under both the commission five-system and the Porter four-system plans.

Private Conference Reported.

There were also indications that the principal officials of the major Eastern trunk lines have been exchanging views since the holidays on the rail consolidation plan, and that some of them have approached members of the commission to seek a basis for resumption of the informal conferences conducted with members of the commission until the Fall of 1928. At these conferences unsuccessful attempts were made to harmonize the conflicting aspirations of the various systems.

It was learned today that some members of the commission had repulsed these suggestions. One member is known to have advised one of the principal rail chiefs that the period of such informal conferences is now considered at an end and that the commission is of the view that further proposals of rail systems must be laid before the commission as formal applications.

The last of these conferences was held in the office of Commissioner Porter, author of the tentative four-system plan presented to the commission last Spring, and upon which the consolidation plan announced just before Christmas was based. At this conference Patrick E. Crowley, president of the New York Central; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, and O. P. Van Sweringen of the Chesapeake & Ohio group clashed, breaking up the conferences.

May Act This Week.

There were reports tonight that the Baltimore & Ohio, and possibly the Chesapeake & Ohio, may lay the foundation for a general consideration of the consolidation problem by advising the commission formally within the next forty-eight hours of their acceptance in principle of the commission's program. Some officials will not be surprised if this occurs.

Reports that the Baltimore & Ohio and the New York Central have practically reached an agreement as to the terms for transfer of the latter's holdings in the Reading and the Jersey Central, lines allocated to the former by the commission plan, were interpreted as meaning that some action my be expected very soon.

It is represented here that most of the systems have reached the conclusion that further attempts to stave off the proposal for a fifth system in the East are futile. This view was strengthened by the commission's action in the Western Maryland case, which definitely supports its own plan for the fifth system.

In ordering the Baltimore & Ohio to divest itself of its Western Maryland stocks the commission held that the action of the carrier in buying practical stock control of the smaller road was in violation of the Clayton anti-trust act.

Control Was Strongly Opposed.

The Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company, the Wabash Railway Company and the city and business interests of Baltimore, the seaboard terminus of the road, intervened before the commission, opposing the Baltimore & Ohio control.

The stocks of the Western Maryland held by the Baltimore & Ohio totaled 330,909 shares, or 42.8 per cent of outstanding stock, and included 159,050 shares of common, 163,859 shares of first preferred, and 8,000 shares of second preferred. These shares, it was shown, cost $18,673,049. The remaining stock of the road was found to be scattered in small holdings.

The Western Maryland operates 800 miles of line reaching from Baltimore to connections with the New York Central and the Pennsylvania system at Connellsville, Pa., and taps the West Virginia coal fields, connecting with the Chesapeake & Ohio system at Durbin, W. Va. Another branch connects with the Reading system, controlled by the Baltimore & Ohio, at Shippensburg, Pa.

The commission found that lines of the Baltimore & Ohio parallel and compete with the Western Maryland and that 43.5 per cent of all freight handled was competitive. Two-thirds of the Western Maryland tonnage is coal, much of it outbound through the port of Baltimore.

Willard Testimony Cited.

The order cited the testimony of President Willard of the B. & O. that under the informal plan for Eastern rail groupings reached by the carriers, the Western Maryland had been assigned to the Baltimore & Ohio, despite the fact that in the commission's tentative plan of 1921 it had been assigned to the New York Central group. Mr. Willard further told the commission that his road had found its division between Cumberland and Connellsville virtually saturated with traffic, and that it had the option of expending $15,000,000 to relieve this condition or acquire the Western Maryland.

The commission, however, found that the acquisition would "completely eliminate both the actual and the potential competition" between the roads that existed prior to the acquisition.

Commissioner Farrell, in a dissenting opinion, held that the majority interpretation of the provisions of the anti-trust law was erroneous, and declared that the act should be construed to permit carriers to acquire stock of other roads as an investment, to be held "with the hope and expectation that such investment may be used later for consolidation purposes if the consolidation is approved by us."

"If such a purchase cannot be made until after the intent to purchase has been advertised by an application made to us, it seems to me that it cannot be made at all as a practical matter, because such advertisement would result in such an increase in the price demanded for the stock to be purchased that the purchase would not be in the public interest."

$75,000 Drug Raid Spoils Destroyed in Police Bonfire

A $75,000 bonfire was held in the furnace at police headquarters yesterday afternoon. In it were destroyed 314 parcels of cocaine, heroin, morphine and other drugs, together with hypodermic needles and similar apparatus, which had been gathered by the Narcotic Division during the past three months.

The destruction was carried out by Property Clerk Thomas J. Horgan, under the supervision of Acting Captain Henry Scherb, chief of the Narcotic Division, and was in accordance with the orders of Commissioner Whalen.

RAIL INQUIRY ADVANCED.

House Resolution Gets Preferred Place on Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Early consideration by the House of the resolution authorizing an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of holding companies of railroad securities, was indicated today when the Committee on Rules voted to give it a preferential place in the legislative program.

The investigation is proposed as a prerequisite to whatever legislation will be necessary for railroad consolidations under the plan recently submitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Quick passage of the measure by the House was indicated today when Representative Rayburn of Texas, ranking minority member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, again voiced his approval.

BYRD GETS LIGHT ON WEATHER PUZZLE

IMPORTANT TO HEMISPHERE

Admiral, in Message to La Gorce, Points to Success of Meteorologists in Forecast for Flights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Rear Admiral Byrd expects his Antarctic expedition to make an important contribution to meteorology, according to a radio message from him to the National Geographic Society which was made public today.

The vast Antarctic Continent, the "home of the blizzard," long has been regarded as a "weather breeder" for continental and island areas in the Southern Hemisphere, including South America, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

But it has hitherto been called the world's "weather blind spot," due to lack of any sustained observations of its temperatures, barometric pressures, study of its land-level and altitude air currents, which are the raw materials of weather prediction.

The meterological observations made by the Byrd expedition have been erasing this blind spot. The explorer tells how the observations of his meteorological station were used in determining the time of flights and also the methods by which he has been collecting meteorological data for permanent scientific records.

Admiral Byrd's Message.

Rear Admiral Byrd's message, dated Jan. 8, transmitted through THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station, and addressed to Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president of the National Geographic Society, for whom the expedition's weather station was named, follows:

"So great has been the contribution of the La Gorce Meteorological Station to the success of our flights of exploration that I feel it my duty as well as my pleasure to report the facts.

"We dug our airplanes from under the snow in the Spring as soon as the temperatures would permit. Shortly thereafter, on Nov. 18, our weather men, Haines and Harrison, reported to me that they thought the weather was suitable for the base-laying flight. They made this prediction without any reports from the trail party.

"We left immediately and had sunshine for the 440 miles to the mountains. The visibility is generally so bad here that without sunshine we probably could not have landed successfully to lay down our base.

Accurate Forecast for Polar Dash.

"A few days later, Nov. 28, Haines reported the weather favorable for the South Pole flight and that it was possible we would not again get another day of such suitable weather. We left at once for the flight and had sunshine for practically the whole of the 1,600 miles.

"On Dec. 5 the weather men reported that conditions were favorable for a flight to the eastward. We left at once and had good visibility all the way, which enabled us to photograph more than 50,000 square miles of unknown area.

"With bad visibility flights in Antarctica are largely profitless.

"It is in my opinion remarkable that the weather predictions have been made so very accurately with so few facts available. Subsequent weather has emphasized the notability of the predictions.

"In order to make one or two additional exploration flights we have watched the weather closely since our last flight, thirty-four days ago, but there has not been one suitable day.

"So it is clear that the contribution of the meteorological section to the success of our flights of exploration has been very great indeed.

Data From Pilot Balloons.

"Haines and Harrison have also made valuable scientific records. They have made surface observations every hour, day and night, over a period of thirteen months.

"In the upper air they have made 400 pilot balloon runs to obtain the velocity and direction of wind at various levels. Many of these balloons have given wind data as high as 30,000 feet. Upper air humidity, pressure and temperature have been obtained by kite or airplane on forty days over a period of three months.

"I am glad to be able to report to you the splendid work done by your representatives."

The technical men mentioned in the message are William C. Haines, the meteorologist, whose salary is being defrayed by the National Geographic Society, which also has allotted $50,000 to the Byrd Expedition for various scientific work, and Henry T. Harrison Jr., whose salary is being paid by the Guggenheim Fund.

BYRD BY RADIO LIGHTS 'POOR RICHARD' LAMP

Special to The New York Times.

The ceremony was staged here in the presence of 300 members of the club and their guests. It will be a perpetual light, kept burning in tribute to Franklin, whose birthday the advertising men will celebrate tomorrow in conjunction with the silver jubilee of the founding of their organization.

The lighting was scheduled for 9 P.M. It was delayed for ten minutes before the first faint waverings were received, but the oscillations were too faint to light the lamp. Notice was sent to Little America, and the wave length of the sender was changed from 22 meters to 37 meters. At 9.37 P.M. the signal came in stronger, and the lamp was lighted.

A communication signed "Byrd" read:

"Congratulations, Poor Richard, on your silver jubilee. It moves me to know that when I mention my name here in Little America, Antarctica, it is the sole medium of turning on in your club house in Philadelphia the eternal light to Benjamin Franklin."

The message from Admiral Byrd came into THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station in The Times Annex in telegraphic code, as have hundreds of thousands of other messages from the expedition. After the dots and dashes had clicked off the message, starting at 9:36 P. M., there was a thirty-second pause.

Then came a long dash from the station in Little America, carried over almost 10,000 miles of space in the twentieth of a second. It was picked up by the antenna of THE TIMES station, and carried through a filter and coupling unit to a special amplified, which multiplied it several million times. Thus augmented, it was carried by land wire to Philadelphia, where it actuated the lighting of the bust of Poor Richard.

Admiral Byrd:

Message same through. Ted Ash in Poor Richard Club thanks you a thousand per cent. Please reply.
POOR RICHARD.

In response, Admiral Byrd sent this message:

Poor Richard Club,
Philadelphia, Pa.:

Much obliged for radio. Glad message got through O. K.. We envy you your bully time.
BYRD.

HALTS MOON ROCKET WORK

Oberth Ready to Make Test, but Lack of Funds Prevents Him.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 16.—Although it was reported that Professor Franz Oberth, whose work on the moon rocket is now world-famous, had returned to his birthplace in the village of Mediasch in Transylvania in consequence of a nervous breakdown, Professor Oberth has declared categorically that that was not the reason.

The suspension of work, he said, was due only to the fact that the Ufa Film Company had stopped its subsidy as soon as he had done all they required to aid them in the production of their film dealing with the rocket.

Nevertheless, the work is so far advanced that Dr. Oberth is already in a position to shoot off a test rocket but is prevented by lack of funds. He believes he will obtain the necessary capital to complete his moon rocket elsewhere.

false registration; to guarantee full protection at the polls on election day; to investigate all charges of illegal registration and voting, and to cooperate with public authorities in the prosecution of election and registration frauds.

5. To advise on city and State legislation.
6. To give enlarged recognition to the political service of women and to increase opportunities for their usefulness in party action.
7. To enlarge the activities of the present City Affairs Committee of the Republican County Committee, and in particular to create a complaint bureau where all justifiable criticism of the administration of the city's affairs shall be investigated.
8. To organize a speakers' bureau and to train speakers who shall appear throughout the year before various civic bodies and discuss such public questions as present themselves to the public interests.
9. To organize a finance committee.
10. To endeavor to create a municipal organization for all municipal elections, by uniting all independent groups and citizens who are interested in good government, and to advocate appropriate legislation to make such union effective.
11. To create a fact-finding bureau, for the purpose of drawing up a plan for reorganization of the present municipal government.
12. To advise on national legislation as affecting the interest of the City of New York.
13. To confer with the other counties in the City of New York for the purpose of creating a similar committee in each county, and furthermore, for the additional purpose that each county create an executive committee, and that such executive committee select one city chairman with the view of the closer cooperation of the Republican organizations in the five boroughs.
14. To report to the County Committee at its monthly meeting, for such action and public discussion as shall be appropriate from time to time.

In urging adoption of the resolution Dr. Butler said the country was passing through a period of political change and that the party name no longer meant as much as it once did.

"The old-fashioned party system in the United States has substantially disappeared," he said. "It has disappeared because it has become impossible for men bearing the same party name in different parts of the country to stand on the same political principles. Elihu Root is a Republican and Senator Borah is a Republican, but if they agree in any particular no one has noticed it. I am a Republican and Senator Brookhart is a Republican. If we agree on anything that fact has not been brought to my attention.

"The Democrats are in the same situation. Alfred E. Smith is a Democrat and Thomas J. Heflin is a Democrat. What they agree on is scratching each other's eyes out at every opportunity."

Dr. Butler cited the diverse views held by Republican members of the United States Senate as illustrating the weakening of party ties but said that the party name was still a trademark of great value in different parts of the country, the Democratic name being of particular value in New York City.

"We are in the position of the Democrats in Philadelphia, where they are very happy if their votes are counted at all," he continued. "We must appeal to the younger voters and make them realize that the Republicaan organization can be of service to them and that they can be of service to the organization. We cannot strengthen our organization by beating the old tom-toms and urging allegiance to the name which meant so much to us."

Questions concerning the make-up of the advisory committee were met by Mr. Koenig with a promise that every group in the party would receive representation. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

MILLS OUTLINES STEPS TO HELP REPUBLICANS

Ogden L. Mills, Under Secretary of the Treasury, called last night at a dinner given in his honor by the New York Young Republican Club for a spirit of militancy in the Republican party in New York to restore its fortunes, which, he admitted, were "at a low ebb."

Mr. Mills offered three suggestions for aiding in the attainment of this purpose. First, he said, the party must assume "character" in commitment to principles not based on political opportunism. Second, he said, it must enlist the younger element in the party and entrust to these members greater responsibility. His third suggestion was for the establishment of a paid bureau of experts to assemble data on the City Administration and provide facts for municipal campaigns.

In urging steps to strengthen the party locally, he asserted that this was necessary because of the danger to the party nationally should overwhelming Democratic successes continue to grow.

"I have no patience," he said, "with those who say that to be successful we must imitate Tammany Hall and adopt its methods and standards. In common fairness to our citizens, one such organization is enough, and more than enough, for this or any other city. The time has come to unite on a program which will restore the Republican party in the city to a position which it is entitled to occupy. That means, in the first instance, that the party must have character, and what I mean by character is the possession of convictions and a devotion to principles that will lead men and women to fight for them, irrespective of the immediate consequences."

Mr. Mills declared that despite the recent setbacks, the future was one for optimism, saying:

"I look upon the situation as one which constitutes at once a challenge and an opportunity that should be accepted, above all, by young men and women who recognize that as citizens they owe an obligation to the State and who are ready to enlist in the cause of good government."

J. Edward Lumbard Jr., president of the club, presided. Samuel S. Koenig, county chairman; W. Kingsland Macy of Suffolk County, and Alderman Joseph C. Baldwin were among the guests of honor. The club election will be held next Thursday night.

PRUSSIA PUTS BAN ON PARROT IMPORTS

DUESSELDORF NURSE DIES

American Medical Association Journal Says There Is Little Cause for Alarm.

BERLIN, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Official Gazette today prohibited the importation of parrots into Prussia, to guard against the spread of psittacosis, or parrot fever, discovered in many parts of Germany. The embargo is effective immediately and until further notice.

At a meeting of the Berlin Medical Society today Professor Fritz Meyer, who recently treated several of the cases, said that his bacteriological examinations had hitherto been negative. He had found streptococci only in the three worst cases, and then only as complications.

He said that one of the dangers of the disease was that parrots to all appearances healthy might be infectious. No specific treatment is known in Germany.

One Dead in Duesseldorf.

COLOGNE, Germany, Jan. 16 (AP).—Fourteen cases of psittacosis have been reported in this city. Dispatches from Duesseldorf say that a nurse in the hospital there died from the disease today.

Three More Cases in Hartha.

HARTHA, Saxony, Jan. 16 (AP).—Three persons were reported today to be suffering from psittacosis after a visit to relatives already ill with disease.

Cause for Fear Minimized.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (Science Service).—Parrot fever is "essentially a medical curiosity and need occasion little alarm among the people of the United States," The Journal of the American Medical Association will say in its next issue.

"The development of cases at widely separated points suggests anew the reflection that it is no longer possible for any person or any nation to live in isolation," the comment will continue. "The possibility of unusual disorders must be ever present in the medical mind."

Discussing the disease itself, The Journal will say:

"The disease is attributed to an organism called bacillus psittacosis, or bacillus aertrycke, but there is doubt whether this organism is the real cause of pneumonia transmitted to man by parrots."

REPORT ANOTHER DEATH HERE

Health Department Doctors Perform Autopsy on Bronx Woman.

Symptoms and circumstances usually associated with psittacosis or "parrot fever" were discovered last night to have figured in the death of Mrs. Augusta Wenz of 464 East 162d Street, who was reported as having died yesterday morning of unknown causes.

Dr. Louis Lefkowitz, Assistant Medical Examiner, revealed the circumstances of the case last night following an autopsy. He said that Mrs. Wenz received a parrot on Dec. 3 or 4, and that the bird became ill and died on Dec. 24. The next day Mrs. Wenz became ill.

The Medical Examiner took cultures of the dead woman's blood to ascertain definitely the cause of death.

Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, head of the Bureau of Health Education, reported that the research laboratory of the Health Department had isolated bacilli in a parrot taken from a Bowery pet shop which were either those of psittacosis or of some closely allied disease. Efforts to find bacilli in a parrot which died in Hollis, Queens, on Dec. 28, were unsuccessful because of the state of decomposition of the body.

"Am informed inspection of Biological Survey service primarily for detection of animals whose importation is prohibited. Also for statistical purposes. Apparently no inspection is made to detect pathological conditions. Consider last very important. Am advised S. S. Ulma from Cristobal due here Jan. 26 to dock at Pier 15, East River. Have isolated suspicious baccilli from dead parrots from local bird shops. Agglutination like pestis cavea."

Two more suspected cases of psittacosis were reported yesterday in Hastings-on-the-Hudson and one in Ardsley. In all these, parrots purchased recently in New York City were involved.

BRIDGEMAN AT DINNER WITH MEN HE ASSAILED

Japanese Ambassador Invites Him as Well as British Delegates to Arms Parley.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Ambassador Matsudaira gave an example of the traditional Japanese tactfulness and courtesy tonight when he invited Viscount Bridgeman, former First Lord of the Admiralty, to a small embassy dinner in honor of the Japanese naval delegates.

Mr. Bridgeman sat at the same table with Prime Minister MacDonald and other British delegates, whose cruiser policy he denounced in the Navy League speech yesterday. Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, who resigned from the Cabinet after a sharp disagreement with Mr. Bridgeman's policy at Geneva in 1927, also was there.

Later a reception at the embassy was attended by hundreds of leaders of the diplomatic, military, naval and political life of London.

Extends Time for Newark Bridge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The War Department granted today an application of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company of New Jersey and the New York Bay Railroad Company for an extension of six months in time for completing a bridge across Newark Bay between Newark and Bayonne. The bridge is practically completed, but considerable work remains to be done in the removal of the old bridge, dredging the channel and constructing a new fender system.

MACDONALD'S TALK ENCOURAGES FRENCH

His Pre-conference Speech to World Press Is Believed to Foreshadow Cordiality.

SUBMARINE BAN OPPOSED

Opinion There, Even Within Naval Circles, on Utility of This Type of Vessel, Is Divided.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The conciliatory tone of Prime Minister MacDonald's talk with the press yesterday, coming after the British reply to the French memorandum, has given new encouragement to the French that the naval negotiations will start in a cordial spirit and that the problems will be viewed from the very widest aspect. The British Prime Minister's announcement that he was ready to consider the progressive withdrawal of capital ships has been found especially satisfactory, because not naval powers the capital ship remains a symbol of naval power and pride, which accords badly with the only to France but to all smaller spirit of limitation of arms and international cooperation.

Less acceptable, of course, is the Prime Minister's reiteration of the British wish to see the submarine abolished or at least restricted. There is, however, even within French naval circles, a divided opinion as to the utility of the large submarine which has been developed to the size and the expense of the cruiser, and while the French remain attached to the theory of the submarine as the weaker nation's most useful arm they perhaps are not so unprepared for concessions both in number and in size as they have sought until now to appear.

The main difficulty in the way of a harmonious agreement on the formula for limitation, which will be based on security and needs, is still, in the opinion here, the Italian claim to parity. Yesterday Foreign Minister Briand had a conversation with Foreign Minister Grandi at Geneva, but it is understood that the questions discussed were only in connection with Italy's claims in North Africa and the difficulties between the two countries there which have been under slow discussion for so long. M. Briand himself indicated that naval conversations would best be postponed until the arrival in London.

Here there is a conviction that an arrangement with Italy can be made in time and that to make Franco-Italian naval parity anything like a condition for Anglo-American parity is to falsify the whole aim of the conference at the start. The British and American fleets are so nearly of equal paper strength that complete arrangement between them is comparatively easy, while the difference between the Italian and French naval tonnage, as well as their obligations and commitments, is so great that to suggest anything like parity is, in the French opinion, almost absurd.

The French delegation will not leave Paris in a body. M. Briand, who is returning from Geneva tonight and who will leave for London Saturday at midday, will be the earliest arrival. Premier Tardieu will take a boat from Rotterdam, arriving Sunday morning. George Leygues, Minister of Marine, will take an early train Sunday morning, and François Pietri, Minister of Colonies, who is being detained by the debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the colonial budget, will leave Paris Sunday afternoon.

M. Tardieu will preside at the conference of delegates Sunday in London and will call on Secretary Stimson at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. At 9 o'clock he will visit Mr. MacDonald to discuss the organization of the work of the conference.

TO PRAY FOR NAVY PARLEY.

Chief Rabbi Hertz Composes Petition for London Synagogues.

LONDON, Jan. 16 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Chief Rabbi Joseph Hertz has composed a special prayer for the success of the coming London Naval Arms Conference. The prayer, to be read in all London synagogues after the one for the King, reads:

> Lord of the Universe, in whose hand are the souls of the living and the dead, remember in Thy loving kindness the millions of Thy children who laid down their lives in the weary years when desolation and war extended to the ends of the earth. May their sacrifice not have been in vain and may their death end all hatred and strife between nations. Father of peace, have pity on Thy handiwork and remove perverseness from the hearts of all peoples. Be with the messengers of the great nations who gather in conference in the mother city of our land for strengthening peace and the reduction of naval armament. Bestow upon them a spirit of wisdom and counsel and moral strength to understand that righteousness alone exalteth a nation and that by might shall no man or kingdom prevail. Give speedy cause to the lovers of international equity and brotherhood to rejoice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The MacDonald Government's proposals for the eventual abolition of battleships and submarines—which is all the world is likely to know of the British plans before the London Naval Arms Conference opens on Tuesday—have not received that warmth of reception abroad which a large section of British opinion apparently expected.

Concerning the feeling in Britain, the paper adds:

"The country, though at one with the MacDonald Government in its anxiety to see a real step forward toward disarmament, and though convinced, like the government, that the moment is opportune for such a step, can hardly show itself enthusiastic in support of a policy of which its knowledge is only vague and incomplete."

The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Telegram will explain tomorrow that the MacDonald Government's silence on cruiser questions is due to "the extreme delicacy" of its position. "Indeed, the conference is threatened not only with a Franco-Italian deadlock over Italian claim to naval parity with France," that correspondent will say, "but with another which might well prove to be no less obstinate than the first and even more embarrassing to Great Britain." This he explains is due to the firm insistence by Japan on a 70 per cent ratio in relation to the projected United States program for large cruisers, and, on the other hand, "to the equally resolute opposition of Washington to this Tokio claim."

The Daily Telegraph's information is that the United States delegation will be found willing to accept a proportion of eighteen Washington cruisers (of 10,000 tons with eight-inch guns) to fifteen British cruisers, instead of demanding twenty-one. But The Daily Telegram will say, Washington will not concede to Tokio the claim to 70 per cent of the revised American standard in respect to these large cruisers, "and from the British standpoint nothing could be more untoward or unfortunate."

James E. Fenton, Australian delegate, has sprung to arms in defense of Mr. MacDonald's policy and has telegraphed to Melbourne expressing his disapproval of the Australian comment published in the evening newspapers there.

The Melbourne Argus, one of the leading conservative journals, said today:

"Mr. MacDonald once again protests that he is bearing in mind the extent of the empire's maritime communications, but how can he possibly reconcile this claim with his dangerous policy regarding Egypt and the Suez Canal, the risk that he is taking in India and the decision to retard work at Singapore? There is a menace to Australia in every one of them."

Introducing T. M. Mitford, New Zealand's delegate, to members of the New Zealand Association today, the Earl of Jellicoe, former Admiral of the Fleet, who was Governor General of that dominion from 1920 to 1924, said he was sure that in Mr. Mitford "New Zealand will have a spokesman who is not afraid to say what he thinks."

"So far as Britain is concerned," added the Earl, "the security of its sea communications is essential to the preservation of the life and prosperity of its people. New Zealand is also vitally concerned in its sea communications being kept open, having regard to its great export trade and to its being the most distant British dominion."

In reply, Mr. Mitford said New Zealand was a little country, adding, "but perhaps its local knowledge of the Pacific Ocean, the waters of which wash the shores of lands carrying half the population of the world, may be of use in the deliberations of the conference."

Ambassador Dawes left for Plymouth tonight absorbed in a newspaper dispatch from New York to the effect that the American Government was willing to reduce battleships from eighteen to fifteen if Britain reduced proportionately. He puffed at his underslung pipe as he read the article, remarking he had heard nothing of the government's reported intention beyond what had appeared in the newspapers.

King George will travel to London from Sandringham on Monday to open the conference, returning to the country immediately after. The Canadian delegates are due at Liverpool tomorrow and M. Briand is expected from Paris on Saturday evening, followed by Premier Tardieu from The Hague early on Sunday.

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—When the King goes into his brief residence at Buckingham Palace on Monday, Lord Dawson of Penn, his personal physician, will visit him for a medical examination. It is understood Lord Dawson will then decide whether the King should spend a month abroad or go for a short rest and change to a resort on the English southwestern coast.

Though the King will return to Sandringham after a stay of only twenty-four hours in London, his medical advisers are anxious that he should not spend February on his favorite country estate, believing that he should go to some warmer place.

The King, who has been doing a great deal of shooting at Sandringham, is reported to be in excellent health at present.

He will receive the delegates at the palace on Monday afternoon and will hold a privy council afterward.

His Majesty will participate without pageantry of state in the opening of the naval arms conference. Attired in morning dress, he will drive in an ordinary closed motor car from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords, where officials will meet him at the royal entrance and conduct him to a place in the royal gallery, from which he will deliver his address. The address will be broadcast.

Official Japanese quarters said today that reports emanating from Tokio to the effect that the delegates in London were dissatisfied with the progress of conversations between the British and the Japanese were "exaggerated and untrue."

They denied that any fresh instructions had been sent to the London delegation or that the Japanese general plan had been modified. They also denied that Prime Minister MacDonald had rejected any of the Japanese proposals.

ITALY MAY DEMAND BAN ON ALL FLEETS

Grandi Indicates That He Will Upset British Plans for Opening Conference.

WANTS CUTS TO AID WEAK

Both Political and Financial Considerations Appear to Be Behind Strategy.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—Through talks with responsible sources in the Italian and French delegations attending the Council of the League of Nations here, who are in close touch with the attitudes of their governments regarding the London Naval Arms Conference, the following information has been gained:

It is possible that Foreign Minister Grandi may upset the British plans for confining the opening meeting of the conference to generalities by making a sweeping statement of Italy's basic policy, similar to Charles Evans Hughes's speech at the opening of the Washington conference and Ambassador Gibson's speech here last Spring. If so, the statement probably will contain the declaration that Italy not only has sought reduction and not merely limitation but desires nothing better than to scrap her entire fleet if the other four would agree and that Italy believes disarmament in any event ought in justice to be worked out on a plan acceptable first of all to the weakest instead of to the strongest naval powers.

The British Government has asked the powers to give merely formal speeches at the opening public session of the conference and then to proceed immediately to private meetings without making a general statement of policy. Italy, it is stated, has not yet accepted this, and whether it will or not it is making no bones of the fact that it does not like this procedure. Among the arguments advanced against it in the Italian delegation is that Italy, as the weakest power in the conference, has nothing to lose and everything to gain by appealing to public opinion, not only through a general statement but through keeping the sessions of the conference public.

"If the conference works in secret," the Italians argue, "the journalists either will have to depend on their own delegations, which will tend merely to accentuate differences, since the home public in each country will not hear the other side, or they will have to invent news and the way will be cleared for Shearers."

Reasons for Attitude.

Back of all this appear two basic considerations, one political and the other financial. The Italians know that whatever agreement may be reached, Italy will remain in fact the weakest naval power if only because Britain controls the outlets of the Mediterranean, and French naval bases there are superior. If a high level is set, it will cost Italy heavily to remain the weakest; if a low level, it will cost Italy less, while at the same time the greater the reduction the stronger Italy will become tactically. Thus, the Italians point out, that if all fleets were scrapped Italy would still be weaker than Britain in the Mediterranean, but relatively far stronger than it is now and at no expense whatever. World opinion, which demands a drastic reduction, thus coincides with the Italian naval strategy of seeking parity with Britain by reduction to zero. Consequently, this is considered in Italian quarters the best card they have to play whether or not they dare to use it to the limit.

On the other hand, it is known that the Fascist Government is concerned about the financial situation of Italy and this is reflected by the repeated emphasis placed by the delegation here on the need for drastic reduction for the sake of economy. Foreign Minister Grandi in one of his conversations here left no doubt that he saw eye to eye with President Hoover on this as on other angles of the problem, stressing the strong desire of the new régime to use the money now devoted to the navy on the development of Italy.

Signor Grandi, who left tonight for London, where he expects to have a preliminary interview with Secretary Stimson Sunday, left the impression here he was prepared to give the Secretary of State then Italy's hearty support on the plea Ambassador Gibson made here for drastic reduction instead of limitation and to express his willingness to consider the problem from the political instead of merely the technical side. It is stated that Signor Grandi said in the above conversation that Italy was going to London with no figures in mind, holding, like Mr. Gibson in his speech, that naval needs were purely relative and that consequently Italy was ready to go as low as France would and desired nothing more than to scrap all fleets.

Though Italy is stressing France as an obstacle to the conference, it would seem that this is at least partly due to political considerations, for in the delegation here the belief is expressed that Britain at bottom will prove the greatest obstacle to drastic reduction. In this connection the Italians insist that, if the League covenant and the Kellogg pact mean anything, the strongest powers, such as Great Britain, should set the example by reducing their armaments by the method most advantageous to the weakest powers. The Italians say the British instead are seeking to impose a method of reduction by categories which would only accentuate Britain's existing advantage. In the Italian delegation it is stressed even more than in the French that the only method fair to intrinsically weaker powers is to reduce by global tonnage.

Again hope is expressed in the Italian delegation that "there will be no half-way measures in the reduction of battleships," which they want abolished. They expect, however, that the British will be willing only to reduce battleships to fifteen units of 25,000 tons each mounting 12-inch guns—a figure which the Italians say has been chosen by the British because it will give them a greater actual superiority over 10,000-ton cruisers than Britain now enjoys. Such "half-way" measures, the Italians fear, will have a bad moral effect on the rest of the conference.

In regard to the Mediterranean arrangement which the French propose, Italy, it is stated, will demand as a prerequisite the ending of the Franco-Yugoslav alliance, just as the four-power agreement in the Pacific entailed an end of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

In the French delegation attention is called to the fact that the British, in their invitation to the conference, promised later to communicate to the others their views as to the subjects which should be discussed at the conference. The French—and the Italians agree with them—complain that the British never have done this. Both complain that they have been left up in the air regarding both Britain's general views and the working program she proposes for the conference. They do not consider the British reply to the French memorandum as filling the bill. British circles say that it does give their general views. As for the program, they explain that they do not want to "appear to force" the agenda on the conference.

The French say that the only information the British and Americans have given them since September has been on purely technical details, not on general lines, but that the United States previously had given them pretty full information on the basic American policy.

M. Briand returned to Paris this afternoon.

BRITAIN TO WELCOME OUR DELEGATES TODAY

Plymouth and London Will Greet Stimson and Others After Their Rough Voyage.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Jan. 16. — Great Britain is eagerly awaiting the arrival tomorrow morning of the liner George Washington in order to give American delegates to the London Naval Arms Conference a rousing welcome. There will be official receptions here at the port of Plymouth and at the London Paddington station when the boat train arrives there.

Instead of the ship reaching here soon after midnight, according to the original schedule, the liner is now due to anchor in Plymouth Sound around 7 A. M. tomorrow. Rough seas are responsible for the change in the plans. It also is held desirable that the delegates reach London at a more reasonable hour for a reception there.

A special naval tender will leave Plymouth at 6 o'clock in the morning and return with Secretary Stimson and the other American delegates at 8 o'clock. Ambassador Dawes, who is leaving London on a midnight train with Ray Atherton, will be among the welcoming party here. Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, already is here to greet the delegates.

Admiral Sir Hubert Brand, Commander-in-Chief of the Plymouth naval station; James Churchward, Mayor of Plymouth; other local officials and a special guard of honor composed of royal marines of the Plymouth division also will meet the tender.

The delegates are to board a special train leaving here at about A. M. and reaching London at about 1 P. M.

Roosevelt Silent on City Inquiry.

Governor Roosevelt, who came from Albany for several speaking engagements in this city, declined yesterday to comment on the Republican proposal for an investigation of conditions in New York City by a commissin whose members he would be empowered to appoint. On water power, he also maintained silence. He will return to Albany Sunday night.

LEAGUE CELEBRATES 10TH ANNIVERSARY

PAYS TRIBUTE TO WILSON

Meeting Is Rushed to Conclusion to Allow Delegates to Attend London Conference.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—"The League of Nations has grown from a great idea into a great reality. It will see its strength develop until it can assure a reign of lasting peace."

With these words Quinones de Leon of Spain concluded a brief speech in the closing meeting of the fifty-eighth session of the League Council today, commemorating the tenth anniversary of the Council's first meeting, Jan. 16, 1920. Señor de Leon is the only member of the Council now who participated in the first session.

That first session lasted less than an hour and was devoted merely to appointing the Sarre Boundary Commission. The fifty-eighth session lasted four days, and only by rushing was it able to consider numerous questions before it, involving almost every field of international relations, in less than a week the period the Council sessions now normally take.

Great Britain was the only great power sending a Foreign Minister—Lord Curzon—to the first Council session. The present session, though sandwiched between two very important conferences—the reparations conference at The Hague, which is still going on, and the naval conference at London, for which the Council hastened to make way—drew to Geneva the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France, Italy, Poland and Finland. It drew M. Briand and Mr. Adatci of Japan from The Hague, drew Mr. Henderson from the urgent business of preparing for the London parley, and drew the first foreign Minister Italy ever sent to the Council. It thus provided the first occasion in the years in which tension has been growing between France and Italy for the Foreign Ministers of these two powers to talk together man to man as M. Briand and Signor Grandi did yesterday—just as it previously provided a similar opportunity for M. Briand and German Foreign Minister Stresemann to develop personal relations leading to the Locarno pact.

The Council which heard Señor de Leon call the League a great reality today had already this session heard Mr. Henderson proclaim it "incomparably the most effective instrument the world has ever had for the maintenance of peace," had heard M. Briand call it "indestructible," and had heard the representative of the third great power give these declarations Germany's firm support.

Polish Minister Presiding.

One fact most impressing to the audience was that it had fallen to the lot of the Foreign Minister of a nation—Poland—whose very existence as a sovereign State was in doubt in 1920, to preside at this session of the Council. M. Zeleski, who, as President, was the only other speaker commemorating the anniversary—for the League plan was to make the ceremony very simple—mentioned the fact that the first meeting had been "convened by President Wilson, whose name will always be connected with the greatest effort for peace ever made by mankind."

M. Zaleski, whose country was invaded by Russia the year after the League began, referred feelingly to the insecurity of those early days when "the fiery furnace of war was still smoldering." He especially stressed the League's contribution to peace in bringing not only a large number of Foreign Ministers together in the Council and the Assembly but other Ministers and experts into personal contact through the technical organ at Geneva, which thus has developed into "a vast organization for daily and universal cooperation."

In this connection one of the notable results of the session just closed—though M. Zaleski did not mention it directly—has been the improvement in Polish and German relations, which is expected to bear fruit not only in political but economic fields. It had fallen to M. Zaleski as President to pay tribute in behalf of the Council the other day to the late Dr. Stresemann. The Secretariat, as usual for such an occasion, had prepared a speech for him. The Polish Foreign Minister discarded it and delivered one he himself had written, in which he added an exceptionally warm tribute to Stresemann on behalf of Poland. How much Berlin appreciated this was shown this morning when a message from the German Chancellor was read to the Council expressing thanks. Meanwhile, the long-standing Polish-German negotiation over a commercial treaty and the minorities question has been progressing here in a new atmosphere.

Inquiry Is Postponed.

The Council decided this morning to delay until May the session on the proposed inquiry into the traffic in women and children in the Far East. The delay is due to the differences of opinion regarding the inquiry still remaining between the Bureau of Social Hygiene of the American Institute, backed by the Rockefellers, which has offered $125,000 to pay the expenses of the inquiry, and the State in which the inquiry is to be conducted.

The American bureau financed the previous League investigation of white slavery in the West which was conducted chiefly by two Americans, Dr. William Snow and Bascom Johnson, whose methods aroused considerable opposition in France and other countries. The bureau insists that the same methods be followed in the Far East as a condition under which it will provide funds, while the various governments of the Far East either, like India, want the method changed or, like China and France, want the inquiry restricted to the international side of the traffic.

Road to Link Nicaraguan Cities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Jan. 16.—President Moncada, in a statement to various Deputies published in the local press, has revealed plans for construction of a road from Managua through the Chontales district, ending at Guadalupe, situated on the river which leads to the east coast. A boat service is expected to be instituted from Guadalupe to the Atlantic Coast, making communications better and easier and helping to develop the territory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16—"Did the governments that signed the Kellogg pact really mean it when they signed it?" asks H. G. Wells in a new treatise on "The Way to Peace," which, according to The Daily Mail will be published soon as a series of booklets called "Affirmations."

Mr. Wells says that at times this once sinful planet looks like a grove of olive branches, but that within those branches bayonets still gleam. Italy, he says, has signed the Kellogg pact but has just launched her most efficient battleship. France has also signed but still imposes military service, and the British have signed "but nobody told that the the Air Service," he says.

"In America I learn," Mr. Wells goes on, "that the prospects for an intelligent youngster are greater in the gas warfare department than in school teaching or medicine, and the Germans have succeeded in producing a gem of a battleship."

Mr. Wells holds that none of the existing treaties contains any provision for the overruling authority without which peace is impossible. He protests against what he calls the flimsy utopianism about peace now so current and contends that the first vital move toward world peace must be a fight for new education.

"Children," he writes, "can be taught that the conquest of knowledge, the establishment of world peace and the attainment of human health and happiness are finer ends than pulling down and tearing up one flag for the purpose of hoisting another."

ENVOY MAY ENTER COLOMBIAN CONTEST

WOULD BE FOURTH IN RACE

Minister to United States Could Expect Both Conservative and Liberal Votes, Friends Say.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Jan. 16.—The Presidential campaign in Colombia, already one of the most exciting in many years, will have added impetus and very likely a new candidate with the arrival at Barranquilla tomorrow by airplane of the Colombian Minister to the United States, Enrique Olaya Herrera, who arrived here today on the steamship Santa Rita and will depart early tomorrow.

Señor Olaya Herrera declined to state definitely today whether he will be a candidate, adding that his final decision will be made after conferences at Cartagena and Barranquilla tomorrow. In a speech here to a group of Colombians led by former President Carlos Restrepo on the pier immediately after his arrival, Señor Olaya Herrera said he would not be a candidate of any party, but of the people, if he could be of service to his country. A speaker presenting Señor Olaya Herrera pointed out that his experience at Washington would be of great value as the next President of Colombia.

Former President Restrepo, who arrived here yesterday from Colombia by airplane, accompanied by Clodomiro Ramirez, a prominent Conservative leader, will direct Señor Olava Herrera's campaign, which, with only four weeks until election, will be made by airplane.

With the addition of Señor Olaya Herrera, Colombia will have four Presidential candidates, unless one of the Conservative candidates withdraws before the election. Guillermo Valencia is the regular Conservative nominee, with the support of the present government. General Vasquez Cobo is an independent Conservative candidate. Alfredo Castrillon is the nominee of the Socialist Communist party.

Although the Archbishop Primate has declared in favor of General Vasquez Cobo, he has not the entire support of the Catholic Church, which is very powerful in Colombian politics. Two archbishops and a number of bishops have declared in favor of Señor Valencia.

Both wings of the Conservatives view the candidacy of Señor Olaya Herrera with favor as a consolidation of their forces, but apparently neither candidate will withdraw.

Former President Restrepo today expressed the opinion that General Vasquez Cobo will never withdraw, and Dr. Ramirez expressed the same opinion in the case of Señor Valencia. Señor Restrepo stated that Señor Olaya Herrera would be the candidate of a coalition composed of the nucleus of the old Republican party, which elected Señor Restrepo President in 1910, and of the Liberal party, with the possible exception of a small group of followers of General Cuberos Nino, who, Señor Restrepo stated, is inclined to favor General Vasquez Cobo.

A great amount of popular support is expected from the Conservatives, on account of the prestige of Señor Olaya Herrera, and the belief is that he is the man to rescue the country from its present difficulties. Señor Restrepo stated today that, with fair play, he believes Señor Olaya Herrara will receive 350,000 votes to 250,000 for all other candidates.

Señor Restrepo referred to the oil question as one of the most important that confronts Colombia today and expressed the opinion it should be a subject of special legislation. He proposed that this subject be discussed with the United States, but not behind closed doors, asserting it should be treated openly and fully as one power to another. The Colombian Presidential election will be held Feb. 15.

Auto Bandits Use Wax Figure To Outwit London Police

The robbers had cleared a furrier's window taking with them as they fled the wax figure of a woman in a fur coat. When a pursuing police car drew uncomfortably close the robbers threw the dummy out of their car. The police car ran over it and thinking the dummy was a real woman, the officers stopped.

The face of the figure had been smeared with what appeared to be blood and by the time the policemen had discovered the hoax the robbers escaped.

SEEKS THIRD NEMI GALLEY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 16.—The theory that there may be a third Roman galley lying at the bottom of Lake Nemi, advanced by Professor Ugo Antonielli, who is in charge of the salvage work, has created considerable interest in archaeological circles in Rome.

Professor Antonielli bases his theory on the popular tradition which says that three, not two, ships were once afloat on the lake, and on fishermen's assertions that their nets have been caught by some heavy object beneath the surface.

Several noted Italian archaeologists, including Senator Corrado Ricci, are skeptical about the existence of a third galley, although they do not dismiss the theory altogether. Searches for the third galley are to be made during the coming Spring at the side of the lake opposite where the first ship was found.

An important find has just been made near the remains of the landing stage specially built by Emperor Caligula to give access to galleys in the middle of the lake—a small Roman boat having almost the identical technical construction and shape of the larger galley.

PARLEY TO PROLONG SESSIONS AT HAGUE

Will Tackle Hungarian Claims Again Next Week Instead of Adjourning Tomorrow.

OPTANTS ISSUE BAFFLING

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 16.—Expecting to reach success tomorrow in arranging for the mobilization of the first slice of German reparations, the only question outstanding between the Reich and the former Allies, Premier André Tardieu of France and Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, heads of their respective delegations, today reached a decision not to end The Hague conference Saturday, when the German reparation matters are to be completed, but to extend it into next week in another effort to arrange the Eastern European claims.

For ten years Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, on the one hand, and Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia on the other, have been unable to compromise their various cases and there can be no denying that the continuance of the dispute threatens the tranquility of the Balkans. In two weeks of discussion here the problem has been narrowed down, but its settlement is still elusive. It has been agreed to wipe the slate clean for Austria and Bulgaria has been let off with an annual payment of 11,000,000 gold francs (about $2,123,000). But the most troublesome issue, involving the claims by Hungary and the claims against her by the countries of the Little Entente, remains unsettled.

And so, although M. Tardieu will leave here on Saturday night to meet Secretary Stimson in London on Sunday, The Hague conference will continue for some days in an effort to settle the Hungarian case.

The Main Difficulty.

The main difficulty regards Hungary's claims on behalf of former Hungarians living in the territories given by the peace treaties to the countries of the Little Entente, who opted for Hungarian citizenship. Agrarian reforms in Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia took a great part of the lands of these optants and under the treaty of Trianon Hungary has the right to collect payment on behalf of them.

Now the Hungarians, who point to the loss of 72 per cent of Hungary's territory to the secession States and of property worth several hundred million dollars and to the amounts they are paying up to 1943, say that that is enough reparations and they cannot pay more. Entirely outside the reparations account, they wish to collect for the private property of the optants, while the countries of the Little Entente wish to assess further reparations claims against Hungary to amounts sure to overbalance the awards mixed tribunals may give to the optants. There are minor issues pending, but this one is blocking the settlement.

As a result of the efforts of the League of Nations Hungary reduced the optants' claims on Rumania from 600,000,000 gold crowns (about $120,000,000) to 300,000,000 and then recently offered to settle for 130,000,000. The Rumanians offer 100,000,000 but no more. Thus there remains a difference of only 30,000,000 crowns ($6,000,000) in the Rumanian case.

Claim $60,000,000 in All.

The optants' claims against Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, it is estimated from the awards already made, amount to about 170,000,000 gold crowns. Thus the Hungarians claim in all 300,000,000 crowns ($60,000,000) for their optants and impartial judges think that the tribunals would award very close to that amount.

The countries of the Little Entente do not wish to pay this money but to have it balance the reparation claims. The Hungarians retort that it is a question of private property which cannot be taken for reparations. Involved are large claims on behalf of several archdukes, claims for property belonging to the Catholic Church and claims for railroad interests owned by other nationals than Hungarians.

There have been numerous suggestions of pools and other arrangements here to liquidate this affair, but the fact remains that there is a question of principle to be settled. The Little Entente governments do not question the optants' right to be paid, but they do not wish to pay them. They want what they owe to go on the reparations account and the Hungarian Government to reimburse its optants.

If the diplomats reach no settlement in the next few days the whole question may be sent to the World Court.

Bankers to Report.

The bankers who at Baden-Baden, under the chairmanship of Jackson E. Reynolds of New York, prepared the status for the Bank for International Settlements, will report to the governments tomorrow. It is not believed that serious difficulties will arise, although there remains considerable soreness over the possibility of Dr. Schacht making trouble and no little pressure is being brought on him either to withdraw his moral opposition to the Young plan or resign as the head of the Reichsbank.

In any event the way is now clear for putting the Young plan into operation. Some governmental and parliamentary acts are still needed, but they are of a routine nature. The plan should be in operation by the end of February or some time in March.

Foreign Legion Routs Locusts As Swarms Raid Casablanca

By the Associated Press.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Jan. 16.—Swarms of locusts descended upon Casablanca early this afternoon and caused every outdoor café and dining room to close. The insects piled in the soups, beers and wines and drove late luncheon customers ot shelter.

Two companies of the French Foreign Legion, armed with fire fighting apparatus, sprayed insecticides over the invaders. The legionnaires went into the action with a battlecry of "save our beer" and fought the locusts with the greatest enthusiasm.

An official statement issued this evening said that the invasion had been repulsed and that all danger was past.

REICH PRESS SCORES SANCTIONS ACCORD

BEMOANS HAGUE RESULTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—If advance editorial estimates of Germany's newest reparations bargain may be accepted as reflecting public opinion irrespective of party viewpoints, it is already quite plain that the government is facing a stormy parliamentary period which is to witness the acceptance or rejection of the commitments it assumed at The Hague.

Not only does the bulk of current press comment designate the government's compromise on the question of sanctions a humiliating surrender, but there is also pronounced disappointment over its failure to obtain some tangible agreement respecting the restoration of the Sarre Basin to German dominion, which was to constitute an integral part of the general liquidation of the war along with the liberation of the occupied areas and the fixation of Germany's war debt.

Even allowing for the partisan acerbites which tincture editorial utterances, it is significant that such a normally placid organ as the Germania, which speaks for the Catholic Centrist party, one of the coalition group, asserts that the solution reached on the question of sanctions must provoke the gravest misgivings in common.

Sees Plan Greatly Changed.

This newspaper plainly intimates that "the Young plan has not yet been brought to cover," and that careful study of the results of the negotiations at The Hague indicates that the Young plan accepted there is a decidedly different instrument from that drafted at Paris. The latter conclusion is also supported by the Liberal Boersen-Courier, which holds that the two plans have nothing

For the time being Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the president of the Reichsbank, has faded out of the picture, and while the Socialist organ Vorwaerts continues its crusade against him and ridicules the general impression that France reserves the right to military reprisals in the event of a German default on the ground that the Treaty of Locarno excludes army sanctions or invasion, it is this outstanding feature in the settlement reached at The Hague that provokes wide disappointment.

The Right organs consider it a legalization of future sanctions and an acknowledgement of France's right to invade the Ruhr, while the more violent comment in these quarters refers to the compromise on sanctions as a "hangman's noose."

The Fascist organ, Deutsche Zeitung, declares that President von Hindenburg now has the floor, hoping that he will interpose his veto when the time comes to promulgate the Reichstag's acceptance of the Young plan.

Another Complaint.

The charge that the German delegation at The Hague permitted the question of sanctions to become a Franco-German issue in the course of the discussions there is made a telling point in some of the papers, which declare that it is not a question involving Germany's honor but that of Europe, and that in its last analysis The Hague concession represents a defamation of the peace undertakings of the last ten years. By its very structure, it is argued, the Young plan made all discussion or reference to sanctions superfluous in that it provided for such a contingency.

The solution reached, observes the Germania, demonstrates that purely economic issues have once more been dealt with on a military basis, with the result that "the fulfillment of the Young plan, which already imposes heavy burdens on the German people, now becomes cluttered with grave moral interceptions."

There appears to be frank concurrence in the general run of press comment that the battle for the Young plan will not end with the negotiations at The Hague. A semi-official interpretation of the sanctions clause agreed to by the German delegation summarily rejects the assumption that by its terms recourse can be taken to the Treaty of Versailles, and asserts that no recognition of the future right to sanctions under that instrument is implicated in the understanding arrived at between Germany and the creditor powers.

Denies Sanctions Authority.

This semi-official elucidation broadly sets forth that with the enforcement of the Young plan the authority of the Versailles treaty with respect to the imposition of sanctions ceases, as do the functions of the Reparations Commission, which will then be assumed by the Bank for International Settlements. In other respects, too, it is asserted, every juridical safeguard is vouchsafed to Germany in the sanctions compromise with respect to the legal interpretation of the "extreme case," which will rest wholly with the World Court.

A caucus of Socialist Deputies in the Reichstag today voted to interpellate the government on the Schacht episode at The Hague, and also expressed the unanimous opinion that an auxiliary government like that set up by the President of the Reischbank was intolerable. The Socialists will demand alteration in the Reichsbank's statutes to the extent of giving the Reichstag an opportunity to be consulted in connection with determining the bank's executive personnel.

POLITICAL ARMIES MENACE RUMANIA

THREATENS COUNTER FORCE

Declaration That Matter Will Be Taken to the People Direct Is Denounced by Maniu Regime.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 16.—Latent civil war in the form of private political armies, with which Austria was so recently threatened, is now looming upon Rumania's horizon. A sensation has been caused in political circles by a memorandum couched in almost threatening tones just addressed by the Liberal party to the Regency Council, which administers the crown during the infancy of the boy King, Michael.

The memorandum, which protests against the National Peasant party's Voinici formations on the ground that they constitute an illegal Fascist militia, closes with a threat which implies the intention of organizing a counter force.

Special exception is taken by the party at whose head stands M. Bratianu to the fact that Premier Maniu, who is also Acting Minister of War, administers the oath to members of the Voinici and acts as its nominal chief. The Liberals affect to see in the Voinici movement the beginning of a contest which can lead to civil war. They therefore appeal to the Regency as the court of last resort and assert in almost menacing tones their readiness, if they obtain no satisfaction, to address themselves to the people direct in order to take the protection of State interests into their own hands.

The government has issued a communiqué to the effect that the Voinici is only an organization of rural youth who constitute no danger to the country. Its purely political, non-military character has already been recognized by Parliament, and the government therefore refuses to answer the charge of tolerating a cult of armed might, especially since the charge was made by a party which, it declares, had made brutal power the basis of all State action.

The boldness of the Liberal party chiefs in addressing to the Regency a sort of ultimatum to the effect that they would themselves assume the crown's prerogative was not, however, allowed to remain unanswered.

"The government cannot accept this sort of speech and behavior, which are calculated to injure the reputation of the throne, without censuring it in the sharpest manner," the official communiqué says. "The organs of State will fulfill their duty against every attempt and will defend the throne, the constitution and public order."

In an interview in the newspaper Dimineata Premier Maniu declared that the Voinici was counter-organization of the peasants to the proletariat of the cities and that its object was to fight the danger of communism.

M'DONALD SUGGESTION WELCOMED IN JAPAN

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Jan. 16.—Warm sympathy in political circles and lukewarmness among naval officials are evoked by Prime Minister MacDonald's statement in London yesterday.

The general indication of British naval policy as outlined by Mr. MacDonald has been circulated at length through the press by the Japanese Foreign Office.

For the time being attention is absorbed by the British view that the battleship is of doubtful utility and the suggestion that the British Government would like to see an agreement whereby the battleship would disappear altogether in time from fleets of world. Naval officials give the suggestion a platonic welcome. They admit its inherent reasonableness, but consider its realization at present impracticable. They point out that existing fleets are based on naval strategy postulated in turn on battleships as the pivots of naval power. Their abolition would involve changes which cannot be carried out without time and would, if hastily adopted, necessitate costly alterations to cruisers.

Official political circles do not hesitate to proclaim their sympathy. One of the most popular politicians in Japan, who had read the press reports, declared that Mr. MacDonald's attitude was a refreshing change from the prevalent talk of difficulties and predicted that allusions to the proposal would win cheers from his constituents when he opened his election campaign next week.

TO URGE INDEPENDENCE.

Gandhi Wants Indian Communities to Join in Declarations.

AHMADABAD, India, Jan. 16 (AP).—Writing in the paper Young India, Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, urges the celebration of independence day, Jan. 26, by making a declaration approving the congress policy of complete independence for India.

Speeches will not be necessary, Gandhi writes, adding that it will be better if the declarations are made by whole cities and whole villages. All meetings should be held at the same time throughout the country. Those religiously inclined, he says, might start the day by ablutions and then do some constructive work such as spinning, aiding the "untouchables" or helping to bring reunion of Hindus and Moslems.

AUTO TARIFF BILLS PRESENTED IN PARIS

AMERICANS WILL PROTEST

Some Relief Is Felt, However, in Indications to Edge That Haste Is Not Contemplated.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The bills for the new French tariffs on imported automobiles and parts were introduced in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon. Preliminary examination of the proposed increases by tariff experts of American companies confirmed fears that adoption of the measures will result in the elimination of American motor cars and spare parts from the French market.

Representatives of American interests in France will meet tomorrow morning to consider a formal statement of the American position to be presented to the Tariff Commission of the French Chamber. The projects were at once referred to the Tariff Commission after their presentation to the Deputies.

The proposed bills have the impressive backing of the President of the Republic, the Minister of Commerce, the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Minister of Finance, and, while there cannot be much doubt regarding the eventual intentions of the government, American motor-car men are somewhat relieved by the indication conveyed to Ambassador Edge by the highest French officials that the measures will not be hurried through Parliament at present. Those who are backing the project, including Louis Renault, leader in the French automobile industry, and several influential members of the Tardieu Government, have been urging its immediate adoption, and the Americans were prepared for such people to interpret the delay as nothing more than a "stay of execution," since the determination of French automobile interests as well as a strong influence within the Government itself to put through the new rates remains undiminished.

Fortunately for the American interests, M. Tardieu, with his usual broad vision, appreciated the American situation as explained to him by eminently authorized persons. Not the least convincing of these was the statement that by awaiting the passage of a low American tariff bill France would be able to know just where she stood in relation to the new American duties. On the other hand, were France now to embark upon a hasty, ill-advised movement to drive Americans from the French market, the American tariff makers who are engaged in the work of revising our schedules might be provoked into writing retaliatory provisions into the Hawley bill.

Then, of course, there was the political angle. The Franco-American automobile situation has all the elements of a first-class tariff controversy or even a tariff war, and the Premier did not care to leave for London with such a possibility staring him in the face.

Copies of the measure raising duties on imported automobile parts have been in the possession of Americans for several weeks, but today was the first opportunity they have had to examine the new rates on completed cars. It will require twelve hours of careful study to figure out the new duties, but a first reading indicates that the average will not be far from the original predictions, namely, in the neighborhood of 90 per cent. The present rate is 45 per cent plus 10 per cent luxury tax. The new rates appear to begin around 75 per cent for the lowest priced cars, such as Chevrolet, and to extend to 115 per cent on the highest priced automobiles. If these are borne out by a more detailed study, Americans assert their adoption would soon end the American automobile trade in France.

However, a number of things can happen before the new tariffs are finally effective, and the opening of negotiations for a Franco-American commercial treaty would probably put an end to this and other potential threats to American trade hanging over the heads of American business men in France.

FINDER OF $500,000 GETS $12 AS REWARD

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—To find $500,000 in the street and receive only $12 as a reward for returning it is the disappointing fortune of a Berlin workman.

An employe of the Reich's treasury lost out of his portfolio a government note for 2,500,000 marks, when on his way to the State bank. A few minutes later Rudolf Hennig, foreman of the Berlin gas works, found the note and delivered it immediately to the nearest police station. Hennig, who lives on limited means, then rushed home to break the glad news to his wife and children, expecting at least one per cent of the total amount as a reward.

To his utter disappointment he was informed that the Reich's treasury refuses to reward him, asserting that he could never have cashed such a large note. All he has received so far is $12, which the loser gave him out of his own pocket.

The newspapers argue that Hennig is entitled to a reward and ask how it is possible to lose such a large amount.

$9,500,000 SURPLUS IN MEXICO'S POCKET

BIG GAIN OVER LAST YEAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—The Mexican Government started the year 1930 with a cash surplus of about 19,000,000 pesos, nearly $9,500,000 at par, according to a financial statement made public today.

Although the existence of a surplus at the end of 1929 was not unexpected, the amount, conserved by Finance Minister Luis Montes de Oca, exceeds the hopes of even the most optimistic. It emphasizes the practical results of economies initiated by former President Calles and put into effect by Señor Montes de Oca.

Today's announcement is considered here as the best imaginable new year's gift of President Portes Gil's régime to the administration of Señor Ortiz Rubio, who will take office on Feb. 5. It is concrete evidence that some of Mexico's worst recent problems have been solved, thereby smoothing the road that lies ahead of the next President.

Cash in the public treasury at the end of 1928 amounted to about 360,000 pesos, or nearly $180,000. At the end of December, 1929, funds in the treasury itself amounted to 3,750,000 pesos. There were no government funds in the Banco de Mexico, Mexico's sole bank issue, at the end of 1928, but on Dec. 31, 1929, the balance was upward of 5,750,000 pesos. Cash in the hands of Mexican consulates at the end of 1928 amounted to less than 1,000,000 pesos, while at the end of December, 1929, it was more than 2,500,000 pesos.

Postoffice Funds Grow.

Post and telegraph offices at the end of 1928 held cash of only 1,500,000 pesos. On Dec. 31, 1929, they were in possession of about 3,500,000 pesos

An important point in today's statement is the assurance that the surplus now held will not be utilized for current expenditure, but will be applied to the foreign debt. This is not directly stated, but in reliable quarters it is asserted that foreign creditors probably will reap greater benefits than indicated by the official budget appropriation for outside payments.

As against an apparently favorable financial situation this republic is facing the silver crisis and, although the quotations today for that metal show a rising tendency, it must increase considerably before the Mexican silver mining industry can be classified as profitable.

The latest silver production figures available, those for 1928, give the yield for twelve months as 105,000,000 troy ounces, far more than that of any other country in the world. The importance, therefore, to Mexico of the recent drop in prices of bar silver can scarcely be exaggerated. One means of relief is seen in the stimulation of the Mexican silver crafts. It is suggested that the products of Mexico's skilled workers in silverware be pushed in the world markets. Tax and freight rate reductions also have been urged to alleviate the situation and help avert the threatened unemployment in the industry.

Year Bad in Agriculture.

In other fields, also, the balance sheet for 1929 is not so favorable. Mexico's agricultural production last year dropped disastrously, as much as 30 per cent on such staple products as beans and corn.

The agrarian situation, it is reliably learned, was one of the main factors in influencing Ambassador Morrow's decision to return here after the London Naval Arms Conference. In this connection it is felt here that if Señor Ortiz Rubio lives up to his oft-reiterated intention of paying cash for any lands seized in the future for communal purposes, diplomatic problems of the future will be greatly eased and foreign investment stimulated to such an extent that he, in turn, can pass on to his successor in office a country even further advanced in prosperity.

ORTIZ RUBIO ENDS UNITED STATES TRIP

Mexican President-elect Says at Nogales He Feels Visit Has Aided Diplomacy.

NOGALES, Ariz., Jan. 16 (AP).—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, Mexico's President-elect, concluded his good-will visit to the United States today, expressing confidence that his tour had accomplished a new understanding between the governments and peoples of the sister republics.

His parting message to the United States said:

"To the American People:

"At the time of crossing the international line into my own country I wish to send to the American people through The Associated Press a warm message of gratitude for the cordial and courteous manner in which I was greeted in every place during my stay in the United States.

"I sincerely believe that the fundamental purpose of my visit, namely, to strengthen the ties of our countries, has been attained and that I could obtain a better knowledge of the real character and feelings of the American people, hoping at the same time that also the citizens of the United States may obtain a better understanding of the Mexican people.

"If, during my tour, I would have only received ordinary manifestations of courtesy from the authorities of this country, my trip would have resulted in much good, but added to the cordial official attentions, the manifestations of the American people have undoubtedly attained a deeper result for the better relations between both countries.

"I feel sure that the administration over which I will preside will be marked by constant cooperation and understanding between Mexico and the United States."

NOMINEES ATTACKED BY TEACHERS' UNION

Selection of Five Principals Laid Largely to Politics and Their Religion.

THREE ARE CALLED UNFIT

Statement by Linville Says It Is Believed All Sought Politicians' Help.

It was only after political leaders had waged a battle over educational and political preferment and conflicting religious claims that the Board of Superintendents finally agreed upon five candidates for vacant high school principalships last Tuesday, the Teachers' Union charged in a statement yesterday. Three of the five candidates recommended by the board were declared to me "definitely unqualified" for the positions.

The union's statement, written by Dr. Henry R. Linville, the president, declared that "there is reason to believe" that each one of the five successful candidates sought the help of politicians and expressed the hope that "the time will come when teachers will be heartily ashamed of their record of playing with the sinister forces which make use of the institution of education as a medium through which to distribute political spoils."

While admitting that the standard of the board's choice was higher than in past recommendations, the union said educational qualifications were the last consideration in making nominations.

"Political qualifications come first and religious qualifications second," the statement said, adding that a compromise was effected along "religious and racial lines which netted some gain for the Protestants."

According to the union, two of the candidates are Protestants, two Catholics and one a Jew. The board's nominees were William A. Clark, William R. Lasher, John M. Loughran, Frederick W. Oswald Jr. and Gabriel R. Mason.

"As soon as it became known that candidates were applying for the high school principalships it was accepted among teachers with extensive acquaintance that Mr. Loughran of De Witt Clinton High School would get one of the jobs because he had given conspicuous service to Tammany Hall in various campaigns," the statement said. "Thus the nomination of Mr. Loughran was clearly settled as a logical outcome of the spoils system. It was also accepted that Mr. Lasher of Erasmus Hall High School would probably get another because of his service as chairman of the joint salary committee, although he had had no administrative experience in the New York schools.

"Both Mr. Lasher and Mr. Oswald left the teachers' side of the pension controversy in the Spring of 1929 and allied themselves with the administration forces. Their remuneration thus has every appearance of being the result of the working out of political forces. Mr. Clark, a fourth nominee, is comparatively unknown, but he appears to have established effective connections in the first and second of the major qualifications for preferment."

STORMS REDUCE AIR MAIL.

Poundage in December Fell Off 4.352 From November.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Unusually severe flying conditions which prevailed throughout the East prior to the holidays as a result of widespread storms caused sharp reductions in air-mail volume carried in December by the principal lines and a slight slump from November in the total poundage carried, a report by Postmaster General Brown showed today.

The total poundage carried during the month was 618,809, a drop of 4,352 from November and a slump of 82,000 pounds from the peak in October.

WOMAN HELD IN KILLING OF BROOKLYN DRIVER

After hours of questioning by the police, Fiorenzo Brancaccio, an elderly Italian baker, confessed yesterday to the fatal shooting of Andrew Ingula, whose body, with two bullets through the heart, had been found at 3 A. M. on the sidewalk in front of Brancaccio's home at 235 Elton Street, Brooklyn. As soon as he had confessed his words were contradicted by his stepdaughter-in-law, who assumed blame for the shooting.

Brancaccio and his stepson and stepdaughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ambrosio, who live with him, previously had denied all knowledge of the affair.

Then the detectives confronted Brancaccio with two pistols found in a woodshed in the rear of the house. Brancaccio wavered, then made the confession. He was taken to the Elton Street house to re-enact the shooting. Mr. and Mrs. Ambrosio went also.

"No, he's lying! He only said it to protect me. I shot him!" the woman screamed as Brancaccio took his place to show how he had fired the shots. After she had been calmed she elaborated her admission, and Brancaccio confirmed it.

They showed the police three Black Hand letters they had received during the last two weeks, demanding $5,000 under threat of death, and signed only with a dagger piercing a crudely drawn heart. Mrs. Ambrosio was awakened early yesterday by a sound at the front window, she said. Pistol in hand, she went toward it and when she saw a man clinging to the ledge she fired two shots.

The shadowy figure reeled to the sidewalk and collapsed, while from the rear of the house came the sound of another man running away, Mrs. Ambrosio said. Panic stricken, she and Brancaccio hid the weapons, she said.

Assistant District Attorney Hyman Barshay announced that Mrs. Ambrosio would be held on a charge of homicide, and Brancaccio on a charge of violation of the Sullivan law. District Attorney Brower said that his course of action would depend on the success of the police in connecting Ingula with the blackmailers.

Ingula, who was identified by a driver's license in his pocket, was unknown at the address it bore, 6,613 Eleventh Avenue, Brooklyn. The detectives said there was some reason to suspect him as a member of the Frankie Yale gang which once dominated the Brooklyn underworld.

MRS. ADLER'S DEATH LAID TO ALCOHOLISM

Autopsy Shows Pressure of a Necklace Also Was a Factor—Husband Claims Body.

Mrs. Harriet Adler, 38 years old, who was found dead on Wednesday in the penthouse apartment of Dudley Murphy, a motion picture director, at 18 East Forty-first Street, died from acute alcoholism and the pressure of a choker necklace, according to the report of the Medical Examiner made yesterday following an autopsy. Mrs. Adler's position on a couch pressed the necklace into her throat, the report said.

Mrs. Adler's husband, Hamilton Adler, a broker at 120 Broadway, claimed the body in a cablegram from Honolulu, where he is vacationing. The Adlers were separated. Mr. Adler was represented by his attorney, James Froelich of 165 Broadway.

A representative of Mr. Murphy pointed out that the director had not been at the apartment when Mrs. Adler arrived there. Murphy and a friend, James A. Barbour, an advertising designer, had attended a show on Tuesday night and afterward Murphy went to a party, while Barbour went to the apartment.

According to this version of the episode, Mrs. Adler telephoned several times from her apartment in East Seventy-second Street, and finally insisted on coming down to Murphy's apartment to await his arrival. Murphy got home some time later and the men tried to persuade Mrs. Adler to go home. When she refused they retired and she sat on a couch waiting for a long-distance telephone call.

EIELSON LOCATED, MOSCOW REPORTS

knowledge of the location where the men were reported to have landed.

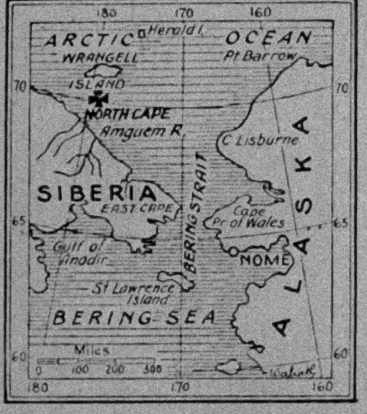
"The Amguem River flows into the sea about fifty or sixty miles southeast of the Nanuk," Mr. Pollister said. "It flows from the southwest and enters the sea through a large delta, several miles wide. If the men are about 120 miles from North Cape, they are about sixty to seventy miles from the coast.

"The location given in the dispatches is the place many of us, who have studied the situation, have had in mind. It is a sparsely inhabited district, having not more than one or two permanent homes within an area of several hundred miles. That would explain the fliers' long absence and silence.

"Being about south-southeast of the Nanuk, it is the direction in which Eielson and Borland would have been blown in case of a strong prevailing northwest wind. If it is true they have been located at that point the chances are they were forced toward Alaska by the storm reported Nov. 9, after they had almost reached the Nanuk. Then finding they were unable to cross Bering Strait they probably kept on going with the wind until they ran out of gasoline or were forced down for some other reason.

Major Deckard Doubts Report.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 16 (AP).—The report of the finding of Eielson and Borland on the Amguem River in Siberia was viewed today as "another rumor" by Major H. C. Deckard, who returned to Fairbanks from Nome last night after seeing two Fairchild cabin planes delivered there for use in the search.



AREA OF THE EIELSON SEARCH.

Mouth of the Anguema River on Siberian Coast is indicated by Moscow as point where flier came down. The cross marks the place where the Soviet ship Stavropol is icebound.

Firm Hopes for Eileson Maintained.

Aviators, seafarers, dog-team drivers and fur traders familiar with the Arctic, who have been searching for Eielson and Borland, have consistently refused to abandon hope for the airmen since they vanished on Nov. 9 while on a flight to the relief of the fur-trading ship Nanuk, icebound off North Cape, Siberia.

Reliance has been put in Eielson's long experience in the Arctic and his ability to endure the hardship of a life of icy exile. He carried supplies for two months when he took off from Teller, Alaska, and could have husbanded food to make it last for a longer period.

Three weeks ago the aid of the Soviet Government was enlisted as well as that of Canadian and Alaskan fliers and since then the search has been daily intensified.

Various stories of persons having heard the plane as night fell on Nov. 9 have emanated from many points in the North, from both Alaska and Siberia, most of which have only served to divert the search to points off the plotted course.

The last report previous to Moscow's news of locating the missing fliers near the Amguem River in Siberia came from the native wife of a fur trader at Cape Serdze. She said she saw a plane over Ekasura, twenty-six miles east of Cape Serdze, flying toward the Nanuk on the afternoon of Nov. 9. Three hours later she heard it returning. This was believed to coincide with a report that Eielson turned back and was heard that night over Pilgrim Springs, Alaska, northeast of Nome.

CANADIAN TO FLY TODAY.

Reid Expects to Leave Nome for the Nanuk on Eielson Quest.

By ALFRED J. LOMEN,
Director of Aviation Corporation's Eielson Relief Operations.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 16.—One of the three Fairchild planes sent to Alaska for the Aviation Corporation's Eielson expedition is scheduled to get away tomorrow for the actual search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland.

Weather permitting, Pilot T. M. (Pat) Reid, who arrived here yesterday from Unalakleet, will get away in the morning for Teller and thence to the motorship Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, with much needed food, gasoline and other supplies.

As soon as repairs are made to the plane which Reid damaged when he was forced down on the Ungalik River, it will join the group at the Nanuk. All hands are busy today working on the damaged right wing and struts.

FEISAL WILL CONFER WITH WAHABI RULER

BAGDAD, Jan. 16.—Despite the long-standing feud between the Arab royal families, King Feisal of Iraq will soon meet Ibn Saud, the Wahabi ruler, in a neutral zone on the Iraq-Nejd frontier. The two monarchs will confer on the "best measures for ending the activity of malefactors whose raids are liable to disturb the friendly relations between the sister States of Iraq and the Nejd."

A great stir has been caused in Bagdad by the announcement of the meeting which is a direct result of Ibn Saud's recent pursuit and capture of the rebel sheik Feisal ed Dowish and his followers.

Admiration is everywhere expressed for King Feisal's being able to disregard the family quarrel, which reached its climax in the loss by Feisal's family of the Hedjaz throne. His willingness to meet his old enemy is considered a convincing proof of King Feisal's desire to place Iraq's interests above all other considerations.

CANVASS SENATORS FOR WORLD COURT

CALL MADE ON PRESIDENT

Mrs. Catt Heads Group Which Presents Resolutions, Urging Our Adherence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—State delegations of women attending the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War visited the Senate today and interviewed their respective Senators on their attitude toward accession of the United States to the World Court.

Most of the Senators interviewed declined to commit themselves definitely, and many said they had not yet had time to study the World Court protocol.

According to reports received by the women from the Senators, there would be between fifteen and twenty votes against accession when the matter comes to a vote. The lower figure was the estimate given by Senator Allen of Kansas, who told them that the fate of the protocol depends upon Senator Borah, and that they should appoint a committee to see him.

Senator Capper of Kansas expressed the belief that the World Court would not come before the Senate before April.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, told his visitors that he is working as hard for ratification as they are, and predicted only twenty votes against ratification when it comes up for discussion.

Of all the States reported on, Indiana was the only one in which both Senators were described as being unalterably opposed to America joining the World Court.

Two Stand on Reservations.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire "stood on the fifth reservation," and Senator Hale of Maine declared that he was not sure that the Root protocol took care of the Senate reservations and that before committing himself he would wait to see what President Hoover said about it.

The Senators from New Jersey were described as having "an open mind," and Senator Wagner of New York was listed as "not discouraging." Senator Copeland was absent. Senator Bingham of Connecticut was noncommittal, but his attitude was interpreted as unfavorable.

In addition to the World Court resolution passed on the opening day of the conference the delegations presented to their Senators resolutions and petitions from the women of their States. From Minnesota 731 resolutions were presented, the largest number from any State, and Senator Grundy of Pennsylvania received 501.

At a round-table discussion of disarmament, over which Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters, presided, the participants were Edward P. Warner, editor of Aviation; Reinhold Niebuhr, of the faculty of Union Theological Seminary, and Professor Parker T. Moon of Columbia University. Raymond L. Buell, research director of the Foreign Policy Association, represented "challenging public opinion."

To the assertion of Mr. Warner that "reduction of international distrust which naturally hangs over all international parleys is more important than reduction of armament," Professor Niebuhr replied that international community feeling cannot be created by parleys but must grow through years and is the only basis of successful limitation of arms.

He expressed a belief that an agreement on parity at London would bring no tax reduction, as far as America is concerned, but this view was challenged by Parker Moon, who predicted a reduction of about $200,000,000 in taxation and the success of the London parley.

Present Resolutions to Hoover.

A group of the delegates headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt were received by President Hoover in the temporary executive offices this morning and presented resolutions, advocating accession of the United States to the World Court, and pledging the conference to "support in every possible way such action as will lead to the completion of the progress of accession."

The resolution added that the conference believed membership by the United States would "not only give greater effectiveness to the court, but will also afford evidence of the sincere purpose of our government to uphold its commitments made through the Paris pact."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—A brown leather book bearing the pleas of 12,000,000 American women for armament reduction will be presented to the naval reduction conference in London the first week in February, along with the 180,000 signatures of Japanese women to a similar petition.

In the book are the resolutions passed by the Cause and Cure of War Conference, the combined membership of which includes a fifth of the adult women of the United States, urging a drastic enough reduction in naval armament to forever end competition in naval building.

WANTS US IN WORLD COURT.

Lithuania Signs Two Protocols for American Entrance.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—Lithuania has signed two protocols, one for American adhesion to the World Court and the other for the revision of the court statutes as well as the optional clause, it was announced here today. The Secretariat of the League of Nations also received the assurance that Albania's signature to the two protocols will be affixed soon. There is reason to believe that Abyssinia, which then will be the only State whose signature is necessary, also will soon sign the two protocols.

Washington's belief that Costa Rica's signature to the Root protocol also is legally necessary is not shared here, where it is pointed out that Costa Rica, unlike the three States mentioned above, has never ratified the original court statute. It has merely signed the statute as the United States has, and this signature alone does not make a State a member of the court.

Court, there is but little knowledge on the part of most people of the facts relating to its constitution and acual working."

How Judges Are Elected.

He briefly outlined the structure of the court and then discussed the method of election of the judges. He pointed out that the next election of members would be held next September, and that if the protocol were ratified by the United States this nation would be a participant in the selection of the new judges. He emphasized that the smaller powers among the fifty-four States which hold membership in the court held the balance of power and were keen in all deliberations of the tribunal.

"For whatever the great powers may do when they fall into controversy," he said, "resort to the Permanent Court is recognized as the most important guarantee of justice to the smaller powers. Their interest in the selection of judges is, therefore, very keen.

"As the men proposed by the national groups of great powers must submit themselves to the election by the smaller powers, the great powers naturally put forward men of eminence, whose records they think will stand scrutiny; and as the judges proposed by the groups in the smaller powers are to pass upon the controversies of the great powers, they are prompted to offer men of the required competence.

"No institution in this world can escape human limitations. We have had difficulties at times with reference to the choice of men for the Supreme Court of the United States. If you reflect upon the selection of judges for a permanent international court, I am inclined to think that you will find that it would be difficult to suggest a method which in its general features would be more likely to secure a bench of international judges in which confidence could be reposed."

Replies to Critics.

Mr. Hughes took notice of critics who contend that the cleavage between the court and the League of Nations is not marked enough. He pointed out that if a World Court were sought independently of the League some similar organization or plan would have to be set up.

"I think," he observed, "that the real point with some of our friends who oppose the present method of selection is not that the method itself is inherently defective, but that they are opposed to a permanent court altogether. But for many reasons, which I cannot undertake at this time to detail, it has long been the desire and policy of the United States to have a permanent international court."

He again discussed the court and its relationship to the League, adding that what really was of importance was the fact "that when judges have been elected neither they nor their decisions are subject to the control of the League." Mr. Hughes endeavored to clear up misapprehensions concerning the binding effect membership in the court would have on this nation.

"Unless the States which support the court," he said, "have otherwise agreed, resort to the court is not compulsory; they retain the right to refuse to submit their case to the court. In the proposal that the United States should adhere to the protocol of the court, it has not been suggested that the United States should accept a compulsory jurisdiction. If the United States adheres, it can still refuse to submit to the court any particular controversy. The court will not decide a dispute between States unless the parties to the dispute have consented to its submission to the court."

Discusses Law Codification.

Mr. Hughes referred to the codification of international law, which is progressing slowly, and replied briefly to those persons who urged delay in entering the court until the law had been modified and clarified. Such delay, he remarked jestingly, might carry this nation over to the millennium, and "most people doubt whether at such a time it would be necessary."

"Some have said," he said, "that the World Court applies what they call 'League Law.' It goes without saying that as the covenant of the League is a treaty between those who have signed it, it is to be applied like any other treaty to their disputes. But it is binding only upon those who have accepted it. The United States has not. No international court would apply to a State the provisions of a treaty to which it was not a party and to which it had not acceded or adhered. What is called League law is law for the members of the League in the sense that their agreement is obligatory among themselves.

"The fact that the United States is not a member of the League does not alter this in the slightest particular, and whether or not we support the World Court makes no difference in this respect. The court must interpret the agreement between the members of the League fairly, as it must interpret our agreements fairly, if it has occasion to do so. The United States and every other country outside the League is bound only by what it has accepted and the others are bound by what they have accepted.

"Some say that the United States is a country so powerful, so rich, and that there are so many who look at us askance, that it would be unsafe to entrust a decision even of legal questions to a permanent court. If that reasoning were accepted, it might lead to the conclusion that it would not be safe to entrust the decision to any one but ourselves, and we should have the frankness to acknowledge that we intend to maintain our own views at any cost, even if we have to fight for them.

"To my mind, there would be a far greater degree of insecurity in the long run in such a highly objectionable and intransigeant attitude even on the part of a great and powerful nation. Particularly is this so when the great and powerful nation would be weakened in the effort to maintain such a policy by the large number of its citizens who desire peaceful settlements and by the fact that ultimate action must depend upon a Congress affected by this body of opinion.

"This is apart from the international obligation we have deliberately assumed to resort solely to pacific measures. As we have thus given our pledge to have legal controversies settled in a peaceful way, we should candidly admit that we need an international judicial tribunal to determine them."

Paradise for Advocates.

Speaking of the methods pursued by the court in hearing cases, Mr. Hughes called the tribunal "a paradise for advocates." The attorneys can talk as long as they please and without interruption. Mr. Hughes, as an attorney, confessed that he had envied the World Court pleaders. He said that the judges themselves read every document submitted and had constant stenographic service which enabled each to keep constantly abreast of the development of the issues.

The transcript is in English and in French, with the latter language most favored, and the judges during the trials confer frequently. Then at an appropriate time they submit tentative opinions which are exchanges in confidence among the jurists. Mr. Hughes said that he had experienced a thrill in watching how the keen legal minds of the world matched up or differed widely in their conclusions.

"It must not be assumed," he said, "that a judge who is appointed as a national of a particular country to sit in its case will decide in favor of that country. Lord Finlay showed the independence of a judge when he decided against Great Britain. He was a regularly elected judge. But quite apart from any tendency there may be in the case of national judges appointed for a particular case to look favorably upon the contentions of his country, the appointment of such a judge is, I found, of the greatest value in the work of an international tribunal. It greatly aids in disposing of any notion that a case has not been thoroughly considered or has been decided in any way than upon its merits as the majority sees them.

"The judge reads all the tentative opinions of his colleagues. He thus sees how the case has impressed each one of the judges from their individual preliminary statements. He meets with them in consultation and hears every position vigorously and thoroughly presented and discussed. He has the opportunity to present his own views. In his original opinion, in consultations, in criticisms of the draft judgment, at every point, he is heard.

"If the court is against him, he knows why, and it is most probable that he will go back to his country with the message that whatever may be thought of the judgment there was not the slightest question of the sincerity, the independence and the thoroughness of the consideration of the case. If he were not there, if no national of a State which is a party to the dispute were on the court, it would be far easier to give currency to notions of the intrusion of political and partisan considerations.

"In the comprehensive discussions in the consultation room, there is, of course, opportunity for vigor and effectiveness in debate. Judges are not only human in their limitations, but in their aspirations. They desire the respect of their colleagues. They hope for the esteem of the world. There is only one way that they can get either or both, and that is by using all the ability that God has given them, by unremitting industry, by candid expressions. That I have found to be characteristic of the international court.

Defects Only Human.

"Whatever defects it has are those which inhere in all our imperfect human undertakings. They are found in our domestic courts, even in the highest. The one thing that has impressed my mind is this. After sitting alone, with one's own task, endeavoring to reach a conclusion as to the merits of a stubbornly contested dispute, wondering what one's colleagues think of the different points that have been laboriously argued, one cannot but have a feeling of exaltation in reading the preliminary opinions as they come in, and in realizing to what extent the minds of men drawn from many countries move along the same lines of careful reasoning.

"Whether one agreed or not with this or that opinion, one's respect was heightened by the exhibition of intelligent and conscientious application of learning and mastery, of the power of analysis and cogent statement, which are the marks of judicial work of superior excellence. There has always been danger in all tribunals, both domestic and international, whether constituted by arbitral arrangements or otherwise, of the alloy of policy, even of intrigue, of attitudes taken in deference to power rather than to justice.

"I am inclined to think that this sort of influence is much more to be dreaded in international arbitrations, such as it is in most cases practically possible to set up, than in such an organization as the World Court. The way to meet such intrusions is by the earnestness and ability of judges who are not respecters of persons or particular governments but of the law and of justice, by winning the victories of reason in intimate debates, by well considered deliverances which satisfy intelligent opinion. In this way the Supreme Court of the United States, despite all the difficulties that surrounded its early days, has come to be more firmly established in the respect and confidence of our people than any of the other institutions of government."

In moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Hughes for his address, Charles C. Burlingham, president of the association, declared that "It is a matter of regret to the bar and, I believe, to the public in general, that the United States has not adhered to the World Court."

About 500 persons attended, and forty-six radio stations broadcast the address. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Davis.

'BUCKETING' CHARGE ENDS COTTON DEALS

SAID TO TRADE OFF TICKER

Two Firms Active in Concern Declared Insolvent in Affidavits Filed by State.

The National Cotton Exchange, Inc., at 10 Hanover Street, its officers and six firms and individuals training there, were temporarily enjoined yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Edward Riegelmann, in Brooklyn, from further operations pending decision on a motion for a permanent injunction to be argued on Jan. 27. The temporary injunction was granted on a motion by Deputy State Attorney General Mathew A. Tiffany, of the State Bureau of Securities, at 74 Trinity Place.

Papers were served later on all the defendants by State troopers assigned to the Bureau of Securities. The officers of the exchange are James B. Jordan, president; Lester R. Walls, vice president, and Eugene Williams, secretary-treasurer. Other defendants are Jordan & Co.; Arthur Dargue and Robin Daughtry, partners of Dargue & Co.; Louis Arab and the cotton brokerage concern bearing his name.

Mr. Tiffany's affidavit charged that the exchange and the firms of Jordan & Co. and Louis Arab were insolvent. He asked for a receiver for each. Dargue testified his firm was solvent and able to meet all its obligations.

There are eighty-two members of the exchange, the last memberships having sold for $1,000 each. It is equipped with a traders' railing and a "big board." In his affidavit, however, Mr. Tiffany said the defendants were not actually buying and selling cotton and cotton futures, as represented, but were dealing only in quotations from a ticker on the exchange floor. The transactions, he alleged, were merely exchanges of "buy and sell" slips between members who had orders from the trading public, and Arab, who acted as broker on the floor.

F. Oliver Levy, an attorney at 217 Broadway, said, as counsel for the exchange, that the effect of Justice Riegelmann's temporary order was "nothing," that the transactions enjoined were entirely fictitious and that no illegal transactions had taken place in the exchange. All of its members are solvent, according to Mr. Levy, who declared that the action by the State Attorney General's office had been due to a "wrangle" between two members of the firm of Robin Fowler & Co. This firm, a member of the exchange, recently was enjoined.

Member Said to Handle All Trades.

In a statement issued by the Bureau of Securities, it was said that, according to testimony by various defendants, taken at hearings before Mr. Tiffany and Assistant State Attorney General Watson Washburn, head of the bureau, all orders received from the public were transmitted to the floor of the Exchange, where Arab took a position opposite to the customers. The statement alleged that when Arab received an order he consulted the ticker and then sold to the broker at a price several points higher than the ticker quotation.

Mr. Tiffany said Arab admitted under oath that, when no quotations were coming over at the time the order was received he telephoned a member of the New York Cotton Exchange for prices and, at the close of trading, covered his position with the firm, Jenkins & Ryan, at 82 Beaver Street.

According to the Bureau of Securities, Jenkins & Ryan are not members of any exchange. The statement from there said that Sophie Goldberg, bookkeeper for that firm, testified that most of the items of assets on the books were not collectable and the firm was insolvent. Mr. Tiffany said his investigation had diclosed that the books of Louis Arab's firm were kept by Robin Fowler & Co. Milton Seymour Cohn, attorney for Robin Fowler & Co., told the Bureau of Securities investigators that he had obtained the New York State charter for the Exchange, Mr. Tiffany said.

DR. MOREHEAD RESIGNS.

The Rev. Dr. John A. Morehead resigned yesterday as executive director of the National Lutheran Council at the convention of that body in the Hotel Vanderbilt. He had held the office for seven years.

Dr. Morehead said that he was giving up his posts to devote all his time to his duties as President of the Lutheran World Convention. The Lutheran World Convention represents 81,000,000 of that faith in various countries and is the largest organization of Protestants in the world. It was formed four years ago as an outgrowth of the National Lutheran Council's relief work in foreign countries after the war.

The Rev. Dr. G. A. Brandell of Rock Island, Ill., president of the council, expressed regret at the loss of Dr. Morehead's leadership, but said it was a pleasure that the council was permitted to contribute its highest officer to the larger movement.

the Farmer-Labor party, also voted for the amendment.

The Democrats who opposed the Harrison amendment were Senators Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana, the principal sugar cane producing State of the country, and King of Utah and Kendrick of Wyoming, representing sugar beet growing constituencies.

Three Progressives, Senators Howell of Nebraska and Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, voted against the amendment.

Just before the roll-call, Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, reproached Senators who voted against the export debenture plan of farm relief incorporated in the tariff bill and who were now appearing in the rôle of advocates of higher rates on sugar.

"I want to call the attention of the Senate to the fact," he said, "and especially the attention of the Progressives, as they call themselves, that when we had a fight on behalf of all agriculture for the debenture plan the leading proponents of the sugar duty were not among the ranks of those who proposed to aid agriculture."

He denied that sugar tariffs benefited the domestic industry, and warned the Progressives not to delude themselves into the belief that either the Congressional flexible tariff plan or the debenture proposal as adopted by the Senate would be retained in the bill as it goes to the White House.

"Let me suggest to my Progressive friends, you of the wild jackass species," he said, "do not let these Regulars, when the vote comes, put the halter on you. I am poking no jibes at you. As long as the wild jackass is unroped and unmuzzled, as long as he is out on the range, he is a free being, but if you let the stand-pat Republicans at this time once get the halter on you, if you surrender your necks to the yoke, you are going to be in bondage throughout the rest of the consideration of this bill, because this is going to be the only real farm relief that the Regulars are going to put into this bill."

Action on Bounty Plan Deferred.

Senator Howell moved an amendment providing for a bounty of .44 cent a pound on sugar produced in continental United States, 90 per cent to go to the cane and beet growers and 10 per cent to the refiner. Action on it was postponed until tomorrow. The bounty would entail an expenditure of $10,600,000 a year, to be provided for by the sale of certificates receivable in payment of customs duties.

Paragraph 504 of the Senate bill levying a duty of $2 a ton on cane sugar in its natural state, instead of $3 a ton as provided by the House, and paragraph 506 providing a duty of 40 per cent ad valorem on sugar candy and all confectionery not especially provided for were adopted.

On motion of Senator Smoot, the Finance Committee chairman, an amendment providing a duty of 8 cents a pound on maple sugar and 5½ cents a pound on maple syrup, as compared with the committee proposals of 9 and 6 cents a pound, respectively, and the House rates of 7½ and 5 cents a pound were voted. Present rates are 4 cents a pound on both items. Mr. Smoot insisted that the increases were necessary as protection against imports from Canada, which he said, paid a bounty on the Dominion product.

Senator Harrison said that he would not oppose the increases, but that he would ask for reconsideration if Mr. Smoot found that he was in error in his assertion that Canada paid a bounty on maple sugar.

With the expection of a provision in Paragraph 502 imposing a duty of .03 cent a pound on blackstrap molasses, which will have consideration when the bill is taken up for individual amendments, the Senate practically completed consideration of the sugar schedule and proceeded to the consideration of the paper and books schedule, the last remaining before the "sundries," containing the controversial boots, shoes and hides rates, and the free list are reached.

The Senate approved retention of existing rates on wallpaper and filtering paper, against increases voted by the House, and increased the duties on delcalcomanias in ceramic colors above present rates but below the House rise. A 20 per cent duty was put on plain cover paper, against 30 per cent by the House and ¼ cent and 10 per cent at present.

Senate Toasted at Cuban Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Cuban Embassy was the scene of enthusiasm today when officials there were informed that the Senate had voted to retain the present duties on sugar. Ambassador Ferrara said he regarded the vote as favorable to the island republic.

"I believe that the vote of the Senate is the first step toward more intimate commercial relations between the United States and Cuba," he said. "I remember always the words of Elihu Root that the wealth of the United States is the wealth of Cuba.

"If, politically, the United States and Cuba are two separate entities, because that is the will of the American and Cuban people, economically they are united by the same interests."

Havana Awaits Final Action.

HAVANA, Jan. 16 (AP).—Retention by the United States Senate of existing tariffs on Cuban sugar caused much elation in island business circles today, but some of the leaders warned that the bill must still go through a conference process between the Senate and House of Representatives, although they expressed optimism as to the outcome.

Henry S. Brandt, executive secretary of the National Mill Owners' Association of Cuba, said that maintenance of present schedules would mean that the Cuban sugar industry would not be stifled.

CHARGES LOBBYING BY PEACE WORKERS

Mrs. C. F. Winters, a Spectator at the Senate Inquiry, Demands an Investigation.

MORE IMPORTERS HEARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Seven witnesses were heard today by the Senate Lobby Committee, which is investigating the low tariff activities of importers, in a session enlivened at adjournment time by a demand that the Conference on the Cause and Cure of Wars be investigated.

Senator Robinson, Republican, of Indiana, was the only member of the committee present when Mrs. Charles Fuller Winters, president of the American Federation of Industrial Women, who had been a spectator, hurried up to the Senator and demanded that the committee "investigate these 250 peace doves who are thronging the corridors of the Senate, button-holing people."

"You investigated William B. Shearer when he was working for a navy large enough for us," she told the surprised Senator, "and if you don't investigate this organization, I will."

Senator Robinson informed Mrs. Winters that her suggestion must be laid formally before the committee as a whole.

Newspaper Man a Witness.

Frank K. Boal, correspondent for The Harrisburg Telegraph, was called as a witness by Senator Robinson in an effort to show that E. R. Pickrell, a customs expert, was adviser of Senator King, Democrat, of Utah.

Mr. Boal said he had been informed that Senator King's office was the place to find Mr. Pickrell. While working for The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, last September, he said, he called the Senator's office, talked with Mr. Pickrell, and made an afternoon appointment for that place. Another assignment interfering with this appointment, he said, he went to see Mr. Pickrell at 4 P. M. on the day he telephoned to ask for a postponement of the engagement, and found Mr. Pickrell dictating.

The appointment was made again for 10:45 A. M. the next day, Mr. Boal continued, but when he called Mr. Pickrell had returned to New York. Mr. Pickrell previously had testified that he had not avoided this appointment, but, not knowing the correspondent's name, had not been able to write him an explanation.

Witnesses connected with the National Council of Importers and Traders told of their aid in the organization's efforts to retain foreign valuation of imports in the proposed tariff bill.

Tells of Importers' Funds.

Harvey O. Lloyd, manager of the foreign department of Julius Kayser & Co., 353 Fifth Avenue, New York, and treasurer of the council, verified previous testimony by Peter Fletcher, its president, that the council had raised $20,217 especially for the tariff fight in 1929, spending all but $1,300. He said he had appeared a few times in Washington, both for the council and for his firm.

"Of the $1,300 remaining in the fund," he testified, "we are using about $500 while appearing here to testify."

Otto Fix, customs manager of George Borgfeldt & Co., 11 East Sixteenth Street, New York, said he visited Washington about ten times last year in connection with proposed toy rates. He had opposed the phraseology in the pending bill which would raise some rates, despite the apparent intention of the bill's framers not to do so.

C. T. Ryotte, president of the Chelsea Sales Corporation, 105 Fifth Avenue, and chairman of the customs committee of the council, testified that like others among the witnesses he once had worked in the government customs service. He left it in 1918, after 22 years' service, "because, you may recall, in 1914 the purchasing value of the dollar went down." His explanation caused much nodding of agreement among his fellow witnesses.

A report of a meeting of the board of directors of the association at the Hotel Astor, New York, last May, which noted that Mr. Ryotte had given "confidential" statements of his activities in Washington caused Senator Robinson to fire questions at him, but the witness maintained that nothing he said had been confidential, and that the description was not his own.

Customs Attorney Tells of Fees.

J. W. Bevans, a customs attorney and adviser of the council, told of receiving $9,973 from his various clients for appearing in Washington and for conferences, briefs and maintenance expenses. Of this sum, $1,781 was paid by the council, including $125 a day, as fees for his trips to Washington. The wool and clothing importers paid him $1,300, he added, and the rest was made up by numerous, smaller clients, principally in fees for preparing briefs.

Frank J. Nolan, chairman of the wool fabrics group of the council, comprising about eight firms, said he had made twelve or fifteen visits to Washington on their behalf, spending about $1,400 of a $1,550 fund raised by the group in addition to its contributions to the council fund.

An error of identity caused David Walker of Morimura Brothers, 53 West Twenty-third Street, New York, to be called as a witness. He had been known as chairman of the "original group" of the association, but he denied this, as well as knowledge of any such group. However, he said, he visited Washington six or seven times last year, mostly on behalf of his firm, but once for the council.

Naval Group Is Likely to Oppose Suggestion if Made at London Conference.

BIG SHIPS HELD ESSENTIAL

LINER REACHES PLYMOUTH

Delegation Reaches Port; Dawes There to Meet It

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, England, Friday, Jan. 17.—The steamship George Washington, with the American delegation to the forthcoming naval arms conference aboard, arrived here just before dawn today.

The American delegation, headed by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, will land at about 8 A. M. Ambassador Dawes and British officials will welcome them at the dock.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, at Sea, Jan. 16.—Unofficial bulletins on this ship quote Premier MacDonald of England as favoring the abolition of capital ships. This has caused much surprise among members of the American delegation to the London naval conference and their naval advisers. That the United States would oppose such action in the event it was proposed by the British or other delegation seems evident.

It is believed in some quarters that Japan would take the same position as the United States, which is that the battleship is still the backbone of the fleet—"the infantry of the sea," to use the words of a member of the American delegation.

The reported declaration of the British Prime Minister has not been confirmed officially either by Washington or London in dispatches to this ship. But since there is every other reason to believe the bulletins are correct they have caused much discussion among the American delegation, to whom the news has come as a complete surprise.

Another statement ascribed to Mr. MacDonald is that in the event such abolition were not possible he favored cutting the treaty limit on the size of battleships from 35,000 to 25,000 tons. What the attitude of the American delegation would be to such a view cannot be forecast, but the subject certainly involves controversial problems.

Opposition Appears Certain.

One thing seems certain—that is, in the event Mr. MacDonald has been correctly quoted and in the event that he made his suggestion at the naval conference the American delegates would state the position of their naval advisers that battleships must be retained, which view is understood to have the support of President Hoover as well as the unanimous support of the delegates. And in such an event the battleship problem would be the major one of the conference.

The fact that four American battleships are older than any similar units of the British fleet and mount 12-inch guns, whereas the similar British battleships all carry 13½-inch guns, may also involve much discussion when the replacement phase comes up on the motion to continue the building holiday for five or more years. The four American ships referred to—the Florida, Utah, Wyoming and Arkansas—will reach the treaty age limit of twenty years in 1931 and 1932.

Because of the huge financial burden involved the United States is expected to take a sympathetic stand in the matter of replacement when that question is considered from the point of view of the whole fleet.

The matter of reduction in size is also expected to receive serious consideration before any definite stand is taken. There will also be the matter of the possible reduction of the number of battle units.

A third proposition ascribed to Premier MacDonald would limit submarines in number and hold their size to 600 tons. But the delegates refuse to comment on these matters pending official confirmation of the bulletins.

Secretary Stimson will see Mr. MacDonald immediately upon his arrival in London tomorrow afternoon, when it is expected that the whole general phase of the conference will be the subject of discussion. This may prove to be the most important pre-convention conference between the heads of the British and American delegations. After their talk Mr. MacDon-

Aldermen's Delay Holds Up Pay Of 11,000 Sanitation Workers.

Because the Board of Aldermen branch of the Municipal Assembly failed to approve salary schedules for the Sanitation Department until last Tuesday, the pay checks of more than 11,000 city employes amounting to about $500,000 have been delayed, it was learned yesterday from Sanitation Commissioner William Schroeder Jr.

Most of the employes affected are in the former Street Cleaning Department, now a branch of the Sanitation Commission, but the personnel of the newly established Municipal Courts in Brooklyn is also affected. The Board of Aldermen should have acted at its meeting on Jan. 2 to preserve the regularity of salary payments, according to the employes. Street sweepers who usually have been paid weekly have received no money for two weeks.

Dr. Schroeder, who has not been paid since Dec. 1, said it might not be possible to complete the pay records until Jan. 22 or 23, although Chief Clerk John O'Brien of the Street Cleaning Division said he hoped to meet the Jan. 4 payroll next Tuesday, and the Jan. 11 payroll the following Monday.

William M. Bennett, lawyer, and former Assemblyman and State Senator, who won the Republican Mayorality nomination over John Purroy Mitchel in 1917, was stricken last Wednesday morning with paralysis in his office at 15 William Street and died yesterday in Broad Street Hospital. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Bennett was born in Nashville, Tenn., the son of a university president, a man who gave up the latter years of his life to go South and help in the task of bringing education to the negroes. Mr. Bennett attended Oberlin College, from which he was graduated in 1890, and then went to Columbia Law School, where he obtained his degree in 1893.

He made such a good record there that in 1895, when three of the professors were taken ill, he was asked to lecture on the subject of quasi-contracts, a second-year subject. Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey was one of his classmates.

In November, 1905, Mr. Bennett became a member of the law firm of McElheny & Bennett at 15 William Street, and in the same year had the distinction of successfully winding up litigation which netted him a fee of $160,000.

The money he had inherited from his father was lost in the American Malting Company and Bennett set out to get it back. As a result of that work he became a specialist in representing minority stockholders. His activities against the corporation forced the directors to pay over $340,000 in cash and $1,000,000 par value of common stock. Another action against the American Grass Twine Company the next year resulted in the directors paying over almost $1,000,000 to the corporation.

The name Mr. Bennett made for himself in those suits brought him a great deal of business and the young man who, a few years before, had seen all he possessed in the world wiped out through the manipulations of corporation finance found

SEES MUCH TO BE GAINED

The protocol which has been signed on behalf of the United States for its adherence to the World Court, fully protects the interests of this country, according to Charles Evans Hughes, a judge of the permanent tribunal, who analyzed the court and its methods last night. Mr. Hughes spoke at a meeting of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, 42 West Forty-fourth Street.

The former Secretary of State spoke for an hour, his exposition of the working of the court being broadcast nationally by the National Broadcasting Company. He went deeply into the organization of the tribunal and explained the comprehensive and unbiased manner in which the judges deliberated and decided momentous issues. He endeavored, as he phrased it, to "give a picture of the court at work."

Urges a Permanent Body.

"The judicial settlement of international disputes," he said, "cannot be adequately secured by mere sporadic, occasional efforts. There should be continuity, permanency, the opportunity for the growth of confidence and for the firm establishment of the tradition both of competency and judicial independence.

"As a nation devoted to the interests of peace, we have the utmost concern in this development. To hold aloof is to belie our aspirations and to fail to do our part in forming the habit of mind upon which all hopes of permanent peace depend.

"In supporting the World Court in the manner proposed, we lose nothing that we could otherwise preserve; we take no serious risks that we could otherwise avoid; we enhance rather than impair our ultimate security; and we heighten the mutual confidence which rests on demonstrated respect for the essential institutions of international justice."

Mr. Hughes appeared before the distinguished company of judges and attorneys in the meeting room of the bar association as the second speaker in the season's series of lectures arranged by the committee of which James A. Davis is chairman. Admittance to the hall, which seats 550, was by card only. The committee on international law, of which Elihu Root is chairman, welcomed Mr. Hughes.

Not a Controversial Address.

"It is not my purpose," Mr. Hughes said, "to make a controversial address, but rather to give you an account of the World Court as a going concern. I shall make no apology for dealing with details of organization, as I have discovered that there is profound ignorance on this subject in the most unsuspected quarters. One of the world's famous statesmen, whom I met abroad last Summer, asked me how the judges of the court were elected, and from the sort of questions put to me in this country, even by lawyers, I am persuaded that, while there has been much discussion about the World

Mme. Walska Wins Fight for Rights of Wives; Customs Court Recognizes Separate Domicile

Explaining that the legal status of a married woman has changed so greatly in recent years that in most States she stands upon terms of equality with her husband, the Third Division of the United States Customs Court in a decision yesterday unanimously upheld the right of Mme. Ganna Walska McCormick, opera singer and wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, to exemption from customs duties on the ground that her legal residence is in France. The decision gives Mme. Walska a victory in a fight she started a year ago last September when customs officers held her liable for duty on personal effects she brought with her from abroad on a visit to her husband here.

A concurring opinion filed by Justice Genevieve R. Cline, only woman member of the court and the first woman appointed to a place in the Federal judiciary, makes a vigorous plea for greater recognition of the rights of women "who are taking active part in many of the leading industries and professions of the world."

Although she concurs in the opinion of her associates that Mme. Walska's claim to a separate domicile is justified, Justice Cline objects to the limitations implied in the majority opinion, "that the domicile of the husband is the domicile of the wife, but there are exceptions to this rule."

"Since the majority opinion states that the wife stands on terms of equality with the husband in respect to property and civil rights," her opinion declares, "I can discern no reason why they should not have equal rights as to the selection of a domicile, there being nothing in the rule to prevent, and, as shown by the majority opinion, the common law has been practically expunged."

Since married women are not exempted from taxes and have the same liabilities forced upon them as men, their constitutional right to the same privileges and immunities must be recognized by all fair-thinking people, Justice Cline concludes.

"The wife is now a distinct legal entity. She stands upon terms of equality with her husband in respect to property, torts, contracts and civil rights.

"The wife may acquire a domicile separate and apart from her husband by reason of his misconduct, or abandonment, or by his agreement either express or implied."

Attention is called to the fact that the couple, by express agreement, always maintained separate residences, Mme. Walska in Paris and Mr. McCormick in Chicago. They live on friendly terms and exchange visits, the court points out. In assessing duty on Mme. Walska's belongings, it is explained, the customs authorities acted upon the theory that the residential status of a wife was that of her husband.

ROOSEVELT URGES UNITING PORT BODIES

WOULD KEEP ALL EXPERTS

Pleading That Plan Be Weighed "Without Prejudice," He Says It Would Bring Savings.

Consolidation of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission with the Port of New York Authority was advocated last night by Governor Roosevelt at the annual dinner of the Holland Society of New York in the Hotel Astor.

Political differences between the two bodies, it has long been felt, have kept the organizations from smooth team work on important projects such as interstate bridges and tunnels. The Port Authority is dominated by Democrats and the Bridge and Tunnel Commission by Republicans.

The Governor said that a consolidation of the units would work to the best advantage of the people of both States. He intimated that consolidation might be opposed, mentioning the lighterage controversy that has aroused bad feeling between New York and New Jersey, but he begged that the consolidation plan be considered without prejudice and without anger.

"The time has come," the Governor said, "for the people on both sides of the Hudson River to see the need for additional tunnels or bridges between the two States. There are two public bodies—one of them has specialized in the building of tunnels, the other has specialized in the building of bridges, in addition to the many other problems of port unity. Both bodies have fine staffs of engineers and yet from a practical point of view it would be better if we could in the near future combine and consolidate these two official bodies.

"I am, therefore, suggesting to the people, to the business men and to the commercial associations of New York and New Jersey that in both States we should consider a wedding between the Bridge and Tunnel Commission and the Port Authority. I do not mean that the Bridge and Tunnel Commission should be thrown into the discard and all its functions transferred to the Port Authority. I mean rather that by official cooperation between the two States the members of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission should be added to the membership of the Port Authority.

"I do not mean that the splendid engineering staff of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission should be discarded, but rather that it should be retained by the newly constituted body and used for their special work of building new tunnels. A plan of this kind will, I am confident, appeal to the business sense of the community.

"There are many objections to the continuation of two separate bodies. In the first place, they become unnecessary rivals on matters affecting the whole financial structure of tunnel and bridge development. For example, you cannot have a free tunnel at one point and a toll bridge at another point, nor can you have a free bridge within a few blocks of a toll tunnel. Financially and in every other way bridges and tunnels go hand in hand.

"Furthermore, there is the great problem of raising the money with which to build new bridges and tunnels. Because of the mounting budgets of both States, it seems to be impracticable for either State to pay the cost of new tunnels and bridges

An outline of a plan to build up the Republican party and to create a municipal organization for city elections to battle against Tammany was adopted last night by the New York County Republican Committee at its monthly meeting at Palm Garden, 306 West Fifty-second Street.

In addition to calling for the establishment of a municipal anti-Tammany organization to include Democrats and independents as well as Republicans, the plan, the authorship of which was attributed in large part to Samuel S. Koenig, county chairman, called for the creation of an executive committee in each county of the city with a view to the selection by these executive committees of a Republican city chairman.

Although not definitely so stated in the outline of the plan contained in the resolution, it was learned that the plan contemplated the restoration of the city convention to nominate the city-wide candidates with a view to making fusion against Tammany more feasible than it is now under the direct primary method of nominating. A bill to restore the city convention was passed by the Legislature last year but was vetoed by Governor Roosevelt. The leaders of the New York County Republican organization propose to introduce such a bill again and hope it may become law as soon as there is a Republican Governor. With the city convention restored it would be possible for a committee to confer with representatives of the proposed independent municipal organization on a real fusion ticket to represent all anti-Tammany elements in much the same way as the late John Purroy Mitchel was first nominated for Mayor in 1913.

Fourteen Points Outlined.

The resolution, which received the unanimous approval of the executive committee before its presentation to the county committee, first named the committee to select the advisory committee and then enumerated fourteen points in the proposed plan to be prepared by the latter committee as follows:

1. To formulate plans and to stimulate sentiment for the purpose of inducing the participation of all qualified voters every year at the annual election.
2. To define the principles and policies of the Republican party of the city of New York, taking into consideration the best interests of the city of New York, and working in conjunction with the various leaders in the social, economic and philanthropic endeavors of the city of New York.
3. To cooperate with the Assembly District organizations generally, and in particular for the purpose of strengthening each organization by the creation of election district associations.
4. To organize the various committees which shall operate to prevent

RELIEF PARTIES ORDERED

SPOT TALLIES WITH COURSE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16.—The Soviet Arctic Commission reported today that Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, the American fliers missing since Nov. 9, had been located at the month of the Amguem River, 160 miles east of North Cape along the Siberian coast. [The map indicates that the distance is not far from 100 miles.]

A similar radio message was sent to the Soviet vessel Stavropol, icebound between North Cape and Wrangel Island and to Commander Minayeff of Wrangel Island, whose dog teams should by now have joined the Stavropol's team in the search for Eielson and Borland.

The Arctic Commission takes a fairly optimistic view of Kyrillenko's news, although it emphasizes the possibility of delay in radio communication with the airmen at Providence Bay and the dog teams on the Stavropol and at Wrangel Island. Others here question whether the Chuckchei natives confused the Eielson plane with other American aircraft and hesitate to accept Kyrillenko's brief message as proof that Eielson and Borland are still alive.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16 (AP).—The actual report of the landing of Eielson and Borland near the River Amguem dates from the end of December. It reached Kyrillenko, the wireless operation at Pinkignly [or Tinkignea] on Jan. 14 in a letter from Cape Wellen dated Dec. 30.

Besides the aerial search from Providence Bay and the dog team quest from the ship Stavropol and Wrangel Island, ordered by the Soviet Government, another party will be sent out from Cape Wellen.

Trader Sees Theory Confirmed.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP).—Several days may elapse before particulars concerning the reported finding of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland can be learned in the United States, R. S. Pollister, Seattle manager of the Swenson Fur Trading Company, said today.

It will take considerable time for a dog team to make the round trip from the Russian trading vessel Stavropol to the position, 120 miles southeast, where the fliers were reported to have landed.

The Seattle manager of the company which employed Eielson to carry passengers and furs from the Nanuk to Alaska after the boat became ice bound at North Cape, Siberia, has traveled extensively in the Arctic Circle and has a thorough

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Senator Sheppard missed a roll-call this week, the first of any kind to which the Texan has not answered in the Senate for seven years. Seven years ago next March he missed a roll-call when he was ill.

"I was busy preparing some bills," Senator Sheppard explained today, "and misjudged the time it would take me to get from my office to the Senate floor. When I arrived the quorum called was completed."

SENATE BARS RISE IN DUTIES ON SUGAR

NINE REGULARS FOR MOTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Deserted by eighteen party members, the Republican organization of the Senate was roundly defeated today when the Senate, by a vote of 48 to 38, adopted the Harrison amendment providing for the continuance of the existing tariff rates of 1.76 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 2.20 cents a pound on sugar coming from other foreign countries.

With the Democrats losing only four from their ranks and supported by nine regular Republicans, as well as most of the Progressives, the efforts of the Watson-Smoot leadership, represented as acting in consonance with the wishes of the administration, to reject the proposal of Senator Harrison of Mississippi as a preliminary to acceptance of the higher Finance Committee rates proved ineffective.

The vote does not end the battle over sugar duties, as the fight will be resumed when the tariff bill is sent to conference. It is regarded as entirely possible that the conference committee may compromise on rates differing from those of 2.40 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 3 cents a pound on world sugar, as passed by the House, and of 2.20 cents and 2.75 cents, respectively, as recommended by the Senate committee.

In the light of the decisive nature of the action, however, when a much closer vote had been expected, it is believed improbable that the Senate will reverse itself later on a conference report.

Stanch Regulars Against Rise.

Such "standpatters" as Senators Gillett of Massachusetts, Goff of West Virginia and Jones of Washington were in the group of Republicans who voted against higher sugar duties. The other regulars backing the Democratic motion were Senators Allen and Capper of Kansas, Keys of New Hampshire, Metcalf of Rhode Island, Robinson of Indiana and Robsion, the new member from Kentucky.

Calls Buyer of Liquor a Danger, and Urges Law for His Punishment.

NEW COURT PLAN ASSAILED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—On the tenth anniversary of national prohibition, with Congress facing administration proposals to strengthen the enforcement machinery, violent attacks on the Eighteenth Amendment and speeches in defense of its economic benefits and the methods of enforcement were made in both branches of Congress today.

Before Senator Sheppard of Texas, co-author of the amendment, had an opportunity to review in the Senate the progress of prohibition and present the views of the drys, Senator Blaine of Wisconsin offered a resolution for its repeal, while Senator Blease of South Carolina denounced the "noble experiment" and insisted that it was unenforceable except with Sheriffs and a Federal judge in every township.

Despite all the speeches however, leaders in both the Senate and House feel that this session will do nothing beyond enacting legislation to carry into effect some parts of President Hoover's program to rebuild the enforcement machinery.

Ironically Lauds Longworth.

Amidst the day of speech-making inspired by the first decade of prohibition, Representative Howard of Nebraska, a dry, lauded Speaker Longworth for standing against a special inquiry into the advisability of transferring enforcement to the Department of Justice. He read a resolution approving the Speaker's course and both drys and wets applauded his ironical utterances, which broke the tensity that had developed from the hostile expressions which marked the anniversary.

While the speeches were being made, Congressional leaders were preparing to hasten consideration of legislation recommended by the administration.

The House Committee on Executive Expenditures will hold hearings Monday, and report the bill placing enforcement under the Department of Justice by the end of next week.

A subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee was named to study the proposal to give authority to United States Commissioners to act in certain prohibition law cases, with present indications that this legislation will not be favored.

The Senate Judiciary Committee next week will consider the administration's proposals and hold hearings in the expectation of presenting measures to the Senate by the time the tariff bill is passed.

Blaine's Move for Repeal.

Senator Blaine of Wisconsin offered a resolution today providing that the question of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment be submitted to the States for consideration.

Senator Glass of Virginia asked Mr. Blaine whether there was "any significance" in the offering of the resolution "in this irregular way at this time."

"The Eighteenth Amendment," said Senator Blaine, "became operative ten years ago today.

"As I recall, in the last two decades fifteen countries, including the Provinces of Canada, adopted prohibition. Only three—the United States, Finland and Prince Edward Island—have prohibition today. Experience demonstrates that prohibition is a failure. It is bound to be a failure. Any law to regulate the purely personal habits and customs of the people has always been a failure. Nowhere, and in no time, has prohibition been enforced or enforceable.

"The recent suggestions of the President for the remodeling of the machinery of enforcement do not change the situation. Prohibition is fundamentally wrong in principle, and neither constitutions nor laws can make it right.

"Sober-thinking friends of orderly government in the twelve countries that have repudiated prohibition found that the only solution of the evils that had grown up under pro-

Sixty-one oil paintings by the late Arthur B. Davies, noted American artist, which were found in his Chelsea studio after his death, have been burned by his widow, it was learned yesterday, because she did not consider them representative of her husband's work.

The paintings, which were in varying stages of completion, dated from different periods of Mr. Davies's career. All the oil paintings found in his studio which had reached a sufficient stage of completion "to convey Mr. Davies's quality" have been preserved, however, Mrs. Davies declared.

Decision on works to be destroyed was made by Mrs. Davies and her son, David, after careful study. Day before yesterday the selection was completed and the doomed works burned at the Davies home at Congers, Rockland County, N. Y.

What may have been the commercial value of the paintings destroyed could not be determined. Several of the completed paintings which Mr. Davies left have been sold by the estate at unannounced prices. Sixty-eight water-colors by him were sold last April at the Ferargil Galleries, 37 East Fifty-seventh Street, for $48,000.

Practically every drawing left by Mr. Davies is being preserved by Mrs. Davies, she said yesterday, because these were frankly studies and incompletion does not detract from their quality. In compliance with the desire of Mr. Davies that his work might be made available to students, Mrs. Davies intends to give sets of from ten to twenty of these drawings to museums throughout the country. Already Mrs. Davies has given many lithographs by her husband to public libraries, including the New York Public Library, it was learned. Mrs. Davies estimates the number of drawings left by her husband at between 2,500 and 3,000.

Mr. Davies died suddenly on Oct. 24, 1928, while painting in the mountains of Italy, but news failed to reach this country until weeks afterward. The Metropolitan Museum of Art will open a memorial exhibition of his works on Feb. 18.

By The Associated Press.

KEYSTONE, S. D., Jan. 16.—Calvin Coolidge is to write a history of the United States which is expected to endure for 5,000 centuries.

It is to be as brief and terse as the former President's conversation, and, although Mr. Coolidge is one of the highest-paid writers per word, he will not receive a cent for the narrative.

The former President, according to the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Association, has accepted an invitation to write historical data to be engraved beside the colossal figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt upon the granite face of the Black Hills mountain. Mount Rushmore is near Keystone.

The history will be Mr. Coolidge's contribution to the memorial which he dedicated during his Summer vacation in the Black Hills in 1927.

The Coolidge words, 500 or fewer if the author chooses further to condense the life of the country from the Declaration of Independence to his time, will be five or more inches deep and high enough to be read miles away.

Geologists estimate the rate of erosion on the granite escarpment of Mount Rushmore is an inch in 100,000 years. Unless radical earth changes take place or future progress decrees the removal of Mount Rushmore the memorial should endure more than 500,000 years.

Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of the project, hopes to have the Washington and Jefferson figures ready for a formal unveiling next July 4. Each of the four figures will be 420 feet tall. The tablet of Mr. Coolidge's history will be 80 feet high and 120 feet wide.

The sides of the letters fashioning Mr. Coolidge's words, facing westward, will be gilded so that the setting sun falling upon them will give brilliance to the story of the United States.

"Only last Monday the President informed Congress that more than half of the arrests under the Federal criminal laws were for violations of the prohibition law.

Says Enforcement Is a Failure.

"In the last nine years, three Presidents have been ardent advocates of prohibition enforcement. None of them succeeded in enforcement, though they had all the governmental machinery under their control, and they had a Congress that yielded to every request for more machinery of enforcement,—and yet they failed.

"To liberalize the Volstead act would help to re-establish moderation and temperance, but the ultimate solution of the evils of prohibition will be the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Of course, the government will worry along for a time with prohibition, but the time has come for those who are prohibitionists to make good with enforcement or surrender to moderation and ordinary horse sense in dealing with the question of intoxicating liquors."

Senator Blease said the amendment was properly in the Constitution, and that the contention of Representative La Guardia that it was not legally part of the Constitution was groundless.

"President Hoover speaks of a 'noble experiment,'" he added. "That means that it is on trial and is not intended to be permanent, unless workable. I contend it has not been successful. But I hope the President will get out of Congress all he wants, and I intend to help him, but I will never vote for a bill that tries prohibition cases without a jury. I am willing to favor additional Federal judges. Perhaps, if we had a good sheriff and two or three assistants and a judge in every township, prohibition might be enforced."

Sheppard Extols Prohibition.

By that time only Senators Smoot and Grundy were present. A quorum call was demanded by Senator Sheppard before he spoke on the "Merits of Prohibition."

The Texan declared that prohibition continues "its triumphant trend," and was necessary in "this age of machinery." Statistics had shown, he continued, that, economically, prohibition had justified itself and, more than anything else since the war, had helped to make the nation prosperous and the "leader in world movements." He declared that prohibition had saved two million lives in ten years.

"The buyer of intoxicating liquor," he continued, "is today the most dangerous character in our national life. Placing appetite above law and above the welfare of his fellow-man, he supports as desperate and determined a class of law-breakers as the police annals of any country have ever known.

"The very fact that the buyer is a person of position, wealth, or prominence, intensifies the harm that may follow his example, the danger of his conduct to society.

"Without him, the traffic in illicit liquor would disappear. About him it is builded with its gangsters, gunmen, moonshiners, bootleggers, murderers and corruptionists. Their crimes in carrying on the illicit liquor traffic are his crimes. It is for him that they exist and ply their nefarious trade. We can never escape the proposition that if it is criminal to sell, it is criminal to buy. There can be no seller without a buyer.

"That prohibition is being enforced as effectively as any other law against crime cannot be denied," he asserted. "A pronounced majority of the American people obey the prohibition statutes, and most of the cases brought against violators result in convictions. Prohibition would be better enforced and a gap closed in its legal structure by the punishment of the buyer as well as the seller."

In the House Representative Frank Oliver of New York ridiculed the recommendations of the President's Law Enforcement Commission. In January, 1920, he said, America "woke up in church, took the pledge and resolved to be better than our fathers."

"By the Eighteenth Amendment," he continued, "Uncle Sam took a plea of guilty to a charge that for 150 years he had been drunk and disorderly. On the morning after Uncle Sam laughed and the whole world laughed with him. We have tried by law to make a tenth-rate heaven, but have discovered that our paradise is not populated by angels, but human beings."

Discussing the recommendations of the Law Enforcement Commission, he said:

"Let me utter a warning with reference to the Federal judiciary. The power to grant injunctions now held by Federal judges, with the concomitant power to send men to jail without a trial by jury for the violation thereof, a power so ruthlessly exercised in labor disputes and in the enforcement of the prohibition law, has stripped the Federal courts of the confidence of the people until now the courts are looked upon as instruments of personal vengeance and oppressors of the masses in the temple of liberty.

"Were it not for the life tenure so foolishly embedded in the Constitution and the cumbersome power of impeachment, the Federal bench would be shaken to its roots by popular vote."

Representative Robert H. Clancy of Michigan denounced the Anti-Saloon League for attacks on the good name of Detroit, where it is now meeting, and asserted that R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the league in Michigan, held that the "sentence of a mother of ten to life imprisonment in Michigan was a great victory for the league." He said that Detroit was being "smelt now for sin by a gang of fanatics and lobbyists who have lies on their lips, hatred in their souls and murder in their hearts."

"The Eighteenth Amendment is an integral part of the Constitution," he declared, "and as such is as much entitled to respect and obedience as any other part of the laws of our land.

"If the outlaw liquor interests can defy the Constitution, it means that our government has failed. The history of the liquor traffic reveals it as a foe of orderly government, and a breeder of lawlessness, and on no other terms can the law abiding people of our country meet it, except upon that of an unconditional surrender."

Mr. Cooper's speech was intended, in part, as an answer to the speech last Friday of Representative Schafer of Wisconsin, in which the latter declared the dry laws to be un-Christian.

"There is nowhere in the scriptural story any suggestion that any alcohol was present in the wine miraculously produced from water at the feast of Cana," declared Mr. Cooper.

Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois said that in the last ten years the government had thrown away $400,000,000 in trying to enforce prohibition.

"When a charitable public becomes convinced that intolerant prohibition is maintained largely for the benefit of Anti-Saloon League payrollers and food fanatics," he said, "it will refuse it contributions, and then the false demonstration of public sentiment now molding Congressional opinion will die.

"I am surprised that this un-American cause has lived as long as it has. Without tremendous financial support and misrepresentation it would completely collapse in six months. Our make-believe prohibition is the jest of the world."

La Guardia Offers Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—His resolution to declare the Eighteenth Amendment inoperative on the ground that it has been ratified by only ten States was introduced today by Representative La Guardia, Republican, of New York.

The New Yorker in his measure reiterated the charge he made in the House yesterday that the States had ratified only a joint resolution of Congress to prohibit the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors, and that the Eighteenth Amendment itself never had been ratified by the required number of States.

UPHOLDS COAST GUARD IN BLACK DUCK KILLING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The special treasury committee appointed to investigate the capture of the rum-runner Black Duck, in which three liquor smugglers were killed and one wounded, has reported that officers and enlisted men of the Coast Guard patrol boat acted within the law when fire was opened on the smuggler with a machine gun.

The report of the committee, which was appointed to make an independent investigation of the shooting, which occurred off Providence, R. I., just before Christmas, has just been received by the treasury officials.

Coast Guard officials had reported that the crew of the patrol boat had acted within their instructions in firing on the smuggler, which they asserted was trying to escape.

The independent committee, treasury officials said today, upheld the Coast Guard report in its findings, which are now before Secretary Mellon.

While the report was not made public in detail, officials said there was nothing contradictory to the Coast Guard report in it. The members of the special committee, officers of the customs service, were Thomas F. Finnegan, Deputy Collector of Customs at Boston; Owen P. McKenna, customs agent of Washington, and George Murphy, Inspector of Customs in the New England division.

JAPAN FINALLY SIGNS SHIP LIQUOR TREATY

Ambassador and Acting Secretary of State Seal Compact for Search of Vessels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Japan was today added to the list of nations having ship liquor treaties with the United States when Joseph P. Cotton, Acting Secretary of State, and Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador, exchanged ratifications of a convention to aid in the prevention of the smuggling of alcoholic liquors into the United States, which was signed May 31, 1928. Japanese final approval to the compact was given Nov. 22, 1929.

Under the treaty Japanese vessels may bring liquor into American waters under seal. They also may be subject to boarding, search and seizure by American enforcement officials within a distance from the American coast that can be traversed in one hour by the suspected craft.

Similar treaties are in force between the United States and Belgium, Cuba, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Panama, Spain and Sweden. The first one was negotiated with Great Britain in 1923, and although Japan was approached soon afterward with the proposal for a similar treaty, the subject awakened little interest in Tokio for years.

Outside of the privilege that is now accorded for Japanese liners crossing the Pacific to bring liquor into American ports under seal, the immediate advantage will go to the wine industry of Chile. The principal ships running to Chile and across the Pacific are either American or Japanese, practically all of which touch at American ports.

Chile has no ship liquor treaty with the United States and now there will be much less difficulty in the exportation of wine from Chile to the Orient because of the free movement possible on Japanese vessels.

DORAN TELLS OF PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—In a statement issued on the tenth anniversary of the dry law, Prohibition Commissioner Doran today said that large-scale liquor operators had practically been driven out of business, and that the "lines were tightening with certainty" on smaller violators.

The commissioner declared that the offensive against the major bootlegger element "has been so successful that a heavy burden has rested upon the Federal court system during the past few years."

"This and other phases of the problem, however," he added, "are confronted with the confidence that a solution will be found for them.

"In the ten years that have passed since prohibition substantial progress has been made. There are basic facts, all of which emphasize enforcement progress."

He said that striving for "its principal objective," the elimination of the important sources of liquor supply, the government had built up an extensive regulatory and investigative system.

"Ten years ago," he said, "these forces were still inadequate. Today they are well trained, and while still inadequate in some respects, are fully alive to the problems confronting the Federal Government."

Heber Nations Is Sentenced.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16 (AP).—Heber Nations, former Missouri Labor Commissioner and newspaper publisher, who was convicted yesterday of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act, in connection with a beer grafting plot, was sentenced today by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis to serve eighteen months in Leavenworth Federal Prison and pay a $2,000 fine.

Bootleggers' paraphernalia will be displayed and talks given by clergymen, prominent citizens and prohibition agents in an exhibition sponsored by the New York State Women's Committee for Law Enforcement which opens for an indefinite period at 628 Fifth Avenue on Monday. The paraphernalia has been lent by Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell and two of his agents have been indefinitely assigned to the exhibition, according to an announcement yesterday morning by Miss G. V. Roberts, chairman of the committee.

Two statements criticizing Major Campbell's use of dry agents for this purpose were made yesterday afternoon by persons connected with anti-prohibition organization, but speaking as individuals. It appeared probable that inquiries would be addressed to Washington to learn if Major Campbell were authorized to employ his men in such undertakings.

At prohibition headquarters it was said that Major Campbell had assigned Ralph Navarro, an investigator on his staff, to take charge of the government's participation and that Mr. Novarro was already engaged in arranging the exhibits.

Miss Roberts said there would be talks by dry agents at ten-minute intervals throughout every day at the exhibition. The exhibits, she said, would include bottles, labels and corks, as well as samples of poison liquor.

The two statements made yesterday afternoon were by Mrs. John S. Sheppard, member of the speakers' committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, of which Mrs. Charles H. Sabin is the head, and Clifton P. Williamson of the board of managers of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc.

"In view of Commissioner Doran's statement that it would require $300,000,000 to enforce the Volstead act, I think it is too bad to divert the time of any of his small force from the business of actual enforcement," said Mrs. Sheppard.

Mr. Williamson declared:

"It is bad enough to have to endure attempted enforcement of an unenforceable law that we detest, but to have to pay for efforts to make us like it is piling on the burden. Enforcement agents should stick to the task of enforcement and leave propaganda to those who are paid for the work. Money appropriated by Congress for enforcement should not be diverted to propaganda.

"Speaking of Major Campbell, he is quoted as having said at the Anti-Saloon League meeting this week that ninety per cent of crime is due to speakeasies. Since the speakeasies are the direct product of prohibition, could it not be deduced from Major Campbell's dictum that if we were to get rid of prohibition we would reduce crime by ninety per cent, or, in other words, that prohibition is responsible for ninety per cent of present crime?"

DELEGATES CHEER SPEECH

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 16.—A declaration of policy, designed to guide its activities during the second decade of prohibition, was adopted today by the convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, now in session here.

The declaration was coupled with a statement by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the league, demanding that "no quarter" be given rum-runners, and expressing unqualified approval of the recent warning to liquor smugglers by Admiral Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard, in which the Admiral made it clear that the Coast Guard would not shrink from extreme measures whenever necessary.

"I am not for promiscuous killing, but I am for Admiral Billard and his associates when they say, 'We mean business,'" Bishop Nicholson declared. His statement was cheered by the convention.

Bishop Nicholson said he approved in principle of the proposal to make the buyer and consumer of liquor equally culpable with the bootlegger, but doubted the wisdom of applying such a proposal.

"In principle I believe that is soundly true and right, but I have some doubts that the way to get at it is by legal action," Bishop Nicholson said. "The way to get at it is by public opinion."

Cherrington Reads Declaration.

The declaration of policy adopted by the convention was read by Ernest H. Cherrington, director of the department of education of the Anti-Saloon League, and indicated in general terms what the league proposes to do to influence legislation, politics, appointment and control of public officials, and in the domain of education.

"The need of such an organization as the Anti-Saloon League was never more imperative than it is today," the declaration concluded. "The task to which the league is committed has not been fully accomplished. Resolutely and devotedly we set ourselves to the completion of the task."

The declaration of policy read, in part:

"Constantly changing conditions demand additional legislation, both in Congress and in the State Legislatures. We stand today for the realization of the announced program of the President of the United States, who more than any other Chief Executive of the nation has definitely committed himself and his administration to the task of securing enforcement of prohibition.

"We stand for adequate appropriations to meet the demand for making the Eighteenth Amendment fully effective. We urge all law-abiding and liberty-loving citizens to cooperate in all necessary and helpful efforts to secure the largest possible degree of efficiency in local, State, and national administration and enforcement of this salutary legislation."

Test for Dry Officials Urged.

Added to this in the declaration of policy was the insistence that "belief in the policy of the government on the beverage alcohol question be a requirement in the election or appointment of officials who have to do with the enforcement of prohibition."

The league also declared that the stand of any aspirant to public office on the dry question will be regarded by it more than ever as a test of his progressiveness and "social-mindedness."

Then followed an outline of activities in the field of education, in which the League proposes to engage "to sell" prohibition to the people.

At a "support the President" luncheon held today in connection with the convention, at which Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the League, presided, a telegram was made public from Thomas A. Edison. It read as follows:

"All good citizens will stand by the wise program of our great President. This reform must go on to world-wide success."

Telegrams proclaiming the success of prohibition and urging its continuance and development were received also from many other business men, sociologists, economists and writers.

Shields Urges More Laws.

Suggesting ways and means of enforcing the prohibition law, James K. Shields, Superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, declared each city and village should pass an ordinance prohibiting the manufacture, sale and trnsportation of intoxicating liquor, with proper penalties. Then the police, according to Mr. Shields's plan, would be instructed to vigorously enforce such ordinances, bringing violators into local police courts, where magistrates could deal with them directly.

"If this local co-operation were given," Mr. Shields declared, "more would be accomplished in one year than all investigating commissions can do in ten.

"Here is a chance for a new mass movement; in fact, these local ordinances themselves will never be passed in any great number until first the demand for their passage is created by local public sentiment."

Virginia's majority of nearly 25,000 for Herbert Hoover in 1928 was purely a protest against the "wet" record and program of the Democratic nominee, according to David Hepburn, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia.

"The failure of the Coalition candidates in the Gubernatorial election last year was no indication that Virginia had changed her position on the prohibition question," he declared. "If the party leaders in the State and nation believe she has, and are foolish enough to nominate a wet candidate in 1932 for President, Virginia will repudiate him and vote for the dry candidate, regardless of his party affiliation."

Ford Dictum Endorsed.

Dr. Homer W. Tope, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, declared that Henry Ford was right when he recently remarked:

"Prohibition began at home with women who wanted better home conditions. They got it, and the better home conditions with it."

George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, denied Maryland was wet, contrary to the general belief. He assailed Governor Albert C. Ritchie and predicted the Executive's defeat should he again run for re-election.

EX-POLICE HEAD SENTENCED

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 16.—Seven persons whose cases in one way or another were connected with the Hotel Miramar at Oceanside, L. I., which was raided several months ago and declared a public nuisance, were sentenced by County Judge Smith here today.

Lester Chadwick, former Chief of Police of Lynbrook, who was indicted for extortion after being charged with taking $200 a month to protect the hotel, was sentenced to Westchester penitentiary for four months. The extortion charge was not pressed. Arthur Taylor, a former county detective who pleaded guilty to omission of duty, reecived the same sentence.

Clifford Shepherd of Hempstead, another former county detective, convicted of omission of duty, was sentenced to Westchester penitentiary for six months.

Mrs. Lora Murray, proprietor, who pleaded guilty to maintaining a public nuisance, was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail. Her daughter, Mrs. Martha Moll, who was employed in the hotel, was fined $250 and sentenced to six months, but the jail sentence was suspended.

District Attorney Edwards told the court that Mrs. Moll had aided the State.

Margaret Wylde, an employe, was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail. Assemblyman Edward R. Lynde, who represented her, said that she had suffered while in prison and that her father was dying.

Helen Keller and Ruth Taylor, two residents of the hotel at the time it was raided by Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littleton Jr. and County Detective Robert McLaren, pleaded guilty to maintaining a public nuisance and were remanded to jail until Saturday, when they will be sentenced. They had been indicted for perjury before the grand jury. They were later witnesses for the State, and the perjury indictment would not be pressed against them, it was said.

DRY BIRTHDAY CAKE CUT.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A birthday cake with ten candles decorated the speakers' table today as 400 members of the Cook County Women's Christian Temperance Union celebrated the tenth anniversary of prohibition in the Morrison Hotel.

As the cake was cut and distributed to every one present, the members arose and sang an anthem entitled: "It's in the Constitution, and it's There, There to Stay."

President Hoover was praised as a dry by Mrs. Catherine McCullough, chairman of the prohibition enforcement committee of the club.

"Hoover was elected President of this country because he was a dry," she said. "The Democrats lost because they had a wet candidate. Even if the present incumbent should give a weak, colorless administration, the Democrats can never beat him with a wet candidate."

WETS AND DRYS HOLD BOSTON MEETINGS

DORAN ADDRESSES DRYS

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 16.—Wets and drys celebrated the tenth birthday of prohibition today in Boston in ways calculated to indicate respective beliefs that their causes were on the road to triumph.

At Faneuil Hall a wildly cheering throng acclaimed Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards in his denunciation of prohibition and at the Hotel Brunswick a meeting of drys listened with enthusiasm to Dr. James M. Doran, United States Commissioner of Prohibition.

General Edwards, acclaimed as the "daddy" of the Twenty-sixth (Yankee) Division in the World War, called upon the State to "get rid of that useless, unnecessary and ineffective piece of legislation known as the baby Volstead act" and appealed for "laws promulgated by the ballot and not enforced by bullets."

Dr. Doran characterized the government's enforcement of the prohibition law as the taking of "orderly, legal means backed by solemn and constituted political action," and, reviewing the effect of prohibition in "maintaining the present high standard of living," declared that it had saved 100,000 lives in the past year in preventing highway accidents alone.

The meeting in Faneuil Hall was called by the Liberal Civic League "in memoriam of the death of liberty and the 1,363 who have been killed in the war of prohibition." Black neckties were worn by the majority of the men in the audience, while here and there a woman wore a black rosette. All on the platform wore mourning.

Calling of the State-by-State roll of prohibition dead was answered by muffled drums and the sounding of "taps." But a note of defiance was sounded as the band played while the audience sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the "Marseillaise."

Edwards for Regulation.

"I have always been a stanch supporter of temperance, never have I countenanced over-indulgence for myself personally or on the part of those men under my command.

"Regulation has proved most beneficial in the neighboring provinces of Canada. Sweden has officially assumed control of the liquor problem and the results there have been the best evidence that governmental regulation can eliminate the evils of the open saloon."

On the basis of a personal study, he declared that real enforcement of prohibition would cost $500,000,000 a year and require a force exceeding the combined army and navy. Deploring a proposal to station 10,000 armed men along the Canadian border to stop rum-running, he voiced fears of gun-play that would cost this country the friendship of the Canadians.

Then, referring to present enforcement with "evidence of increasing graft," he said:

"The riches of the underworld so flagrantly flaunted before us in our large cities, and the retirement of law enforcement officials in possession of enormous fortunes can do nothing but break down the morale of our hard-working, industrious citizens."

Doran Acclaims Dry Progress.

The Bay State's organized drys observed the anniversary with a luncheon at the Hotel Brunswick. The luncheon, at which Dr. Doran was the guest of honor and principal speaker, climaxed the two-day convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

In his address Commissioner Doran said:

"Any discussion of our national prohibition policy that attempts to relate the method or manner of the handling of the problem of alcoholic liquors, as in effect prior to the World War, to the present situation, ignores the one great basic fact of tremendous change in application of power to industry that has taken place in that period of time.

"The fact that there is available and now being used in the United States at least three times the amount of energy per capita expressed in terms of horse power than in England, the nearest approach to us in power development, tells a big story.

"The employment of this energy has everything to do with our high standards of living and the increased opportunity for cultural development. The proper control of this increased energy has everything to do with community order and social welfare.

"The control and suppression of intoxicating liquor cannot be divorced from the problem. The effect of national prohibition in minimizing the consumption of intoxicating liquor has materially aided in this great development.

"Its continued maintenance and further strengthening will be the principal factor in maintaining this high standard of living. Our present problem consists in large measure of hastening changes of social habits that will comport with rapid changes brought about by application of increased scientific knowledge."

Viennese Surgeon Calls It Great Cultural Advance.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 16.—On the tenth aniversary of the beginning of prohibition in the United States, testimony to its merits was given tonight by Professor Julius Tandler, surgeon and chief of welfare institutions in the city of Vienna.

Addressing the Vienna Prohibition Club, Professor Tandler said he became convinced on a recent visit to the United States that the introduction of prohibition was the greatest cultural advance ever made in the history of the United States. It had, he said, bettered the economic condition of workers in contrast to conditions here, where, he asserted, one-third of the inhabitants of lunatic asylums were victims of alcohol.

CANADA IS SOUNDED ON PATROL PARLEY

BORDER SURVEY IS NEEDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Informal suggestions, it is understood, have been made by the United States looking to a Canadian-American conference on border patrol reorganization to be held at Ottawa in February as a preliminary to the development of the program planned by Secretary Mellon for making effective the existing laws regarding immigration, customs and prohibition.

Officials denied today that plans for the conference had progressed to the point of a definite proposal, but admitted that cooperation with the Canadian Government was necessary for the carrying out of the plan.

Secretary Mellon's program calls for a preliminary survey of the border before additional points of entry can be determined upon. Such a survey could not properly be undertaken without consultation with the Canadian authorities concerning existing arrangements on the Canadian side of the boundary.

The projected conferences at Ottawa would be participated in by representatives of the immigration, customs and Coast Guard services, with an official of the State Department.

The Canadian Government is understood to be satisfied with Treasury Department denials of reports that an armed patrol of 10,000 men is to be placed along the American side of the border. It is thought that with the consolidation of the present forces of the immigration service, the customs and the Coast Guard, should such a plan be carried out, the total would be more nearly 3,000 than 10,000.

While there is no disposition on the part of the Canadian Government to dispute the right of the United States to do what it pleases on its own side of the border, there is apprehension as to what might happen if several thousand men, armed with rifles and machine guns, were given considerable discretionary powers in prohibition enforcement.

There is said to be no disposition on the part of the Canadian authorities to increase greatly the present expense of maintaining ports along the border.

There are about seventy international highways leading from Canada to the United States, and the seventy points of entry suggested in the Treasury Department plan would account for all these highways.

The Canadian Government is preparing its reply to American proposals on the clearance of liquor ships destined for ports of the United States. The speech from the throne to be delivered in Ottawa, when Parliament convenes on Feb. 20, it is expected, will contain the answer of the Governor General of Canada to the American demand that the practice be stopped.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 16.—Governor Green today called on Attorney General Wilber M. Brucker to make an investigation to determine whether any law enforcement officials in Michigan are negligent in enforcement of the Cuthberston act.

This act, passed by the 1929 Legislature, provides mandatory prison terms of at least one year for all persons found guilty of commercial violations of the State prohibition laws.

Governor, Mayor and Other Leaders Exchange Compliments.

Governor Roosevelt, Mayor Walker, John F. Curry and the five Democratic county leaders of New York exchanged compliments and sang the song of harmony last night at the nineteenth annual dinner of the Tammany Hall Speakers' Bureau in the Hotel Commodore. More than 2,000 persons crowded the dining hall.

Governor Roosevelt stayed about fifteen minutes, arriving just before 11 o'clock as Mrs. S. J. Ramsey Reese, vice chairman of the speakers' bureau had finished her address. The diners arose and cheered him and he responded with a brief talk dealing chiefly with reminiscences of his old days in Albany with Bob Wagner, Al Smith, Tom Foley "and the rest of the bunch."

Mayor Walker paid tribute to Tammany Leader Curry. He dwelt for a moment on the death of Maurice Bloch and Peter J. Hamill, and said he was glad to see George Olvany, former leader of Tammany, restored to health and able to attend the dinner.

HEAR 3 RAIL LINES ACCEPT MERGER PLAN

PENNSYLVANIA IS SILENT

NEW CONFERENCES URGED

Rail Heads Seek Further Informal Conversations, but Commissioners Are Opposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Two and perhaps three of the major Eastern trunk lines are ready to accept in principle, but presumably with reservations, the railroad consolidation plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to unofficial information reaching members of the commission.

The Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio, according to this information, will within a few weeks give notice that they will accept the commission's program, with certain reservations. The Wabash was reported ready to do likewise.

There are also reports that the New York Central is preparing to accept in principle the commission's plan.

These developments came rapidly today following the commission's action in ordering the Baltimore & Ohio to divest itself of its heavy stock holdings, amounting to virtual control, of the Western Maryland, a coal road, which under the commission's consolidation plan is allotted to the Wabash-Seaboard system.

It was considered significant that the attitude of the rail systems was permitted to become known on the eve of the argument scheduled tomorrow before the full commission on the application of the Baltimore & Ohio for authority to acquire stock control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, another coal carrier, allocated to the Baltimore & Ohio under both the commission five-system and the Porter four-system plans.

Private Conference Reported.

There were also indications that the principal officials of the major Eastern trunk lines have been exchanging views since the holidays on the rail consolidation plan, and that some of them have approached members of the commission to seek a basis for resumption of the informal conferences conducted with members of the commission until the Fall of 1928. At these conferences unsuccessful attempts were made to harmonize the conflicting aspirations of the various systems.

It was learned today that some members of the commission had repulsed these suggestions. One member is known to have advised one of the principal rail chiefs that the period of such informal conferences is now considered at an end and that the commission is of the view that further proposals of rail systems must be laid before the commission as formal applications.

The last of these conferences was held in the office of Commissioner Porter, author of the tentative four-system plan presented to the commission last Spring, and upon which the consolidation plan announced just before Christmas was based. At this conference Patrick E. Crowley, president of the New York Central; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, and O. P. Van Sweringen of the Chesapeake & Ohio group clashed, breaking up the conferences.

May Act This Week.

There were reports tonight that the Baltimore & Ohio, and possibly the Chesapeake & Ohio, may lay the foundation for a general consideration of the consolidation problem by advising the commission formally within the next forty-eight hours of their acceptance in principle of the commission's program. Some officials will not be surprised if this occurs.

Reports that the Baltimore & Ohio and the New York Central have practically reached an agreement as to the terms for transfer of the latter's holdings in the Reading and the Jersey Central, lines allocated to the former by the commission plan, were interpreted as meaning that some action my be expected very soon.

It is represented here that most of the systems have reached the conclusion that further attempts to stave off the proposal for a fifth system in the East are futile. This view was strengthened by the commission's action in the Western Maryland case, which definitely supports its own plan for the fifth system.

In ordering the Baltimore & Ohio to divest itself of its Western Maryland stocks the commission held that the action of the carrier in buying practical stock control of the smaller road was in violation of the Clayton anti-trust act.

Control Was Strongly Opposed.

The Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company, the Wabash Railway Company and the city and business interests of Baltimore, the seaboard terminus of the road, intervened before the commission, opposing the Baltimore & Ohio control.

The stocks of the Western Maryland held by the Baltimore & Ohio totaled 330,909 shares, or 42.8 per cent of outstanding stock, and included 159,050 shares of common, 163,859 shares of first preferred, and 8,000 shares of second preferred. These shares, it was shown, cost $18,673,049. The remaining stock of the road was found to be scattered in small holdings.

The commission found that lines of the Baltimore & Ohio parallel and compete with the Western Maryland and that 43.5 per cent of all freight handled was competitive. Two-thirds of the Western Maryland tonnage is coal, much of it outbound through the port of Baltimore.

Willard Testimony Cited.

The order cited the testimony of President Willard of the B. & O. that under the informal plan for Eastern rail groupings reached by the carriers, the Western Maryland had been assigned to the Baltimore & Ohio, despite the fact that in the commission's tentative plan of 1921 it had been assigned to the New York Central group. Mr. Willard further told the commission that his road had found its division between Cumberland and Connellsville virtually saturated with traffic, and that it had the option of expending $15,000,000 to relieve this condition or acquire the Western Maryland.

The commission, however, found that the acquisition would "completely eliminate both the actual and the potential competition" between the roads that existed prior to the acquisition.

Commissioner Farrell, in a dissenting opinion, held that the majority interpretation of the provisions of the anti-trust law was erroneous, and declared that the act should be construed to permit carriers to acquire stock of other roads as an investment, to be held "with the hope and expectation that such investment may be used later for consolidation purposes if the consolidation is approved by us."

"If such a purchase cannot be made until after the intent to purchase has been advertised by an application made to us, it seems to me that it cannot be made at all as a practical matter, because such advertisement would result in such an increase in the price demanded for the stock to be purchased that the purchase would not be in the public interest."

$75,000 Drug Raid Spoils Destroyed in Police Bonfire

A $75,000 bonfire was held in the furnace at poli headquarters yesterday afternoon. In it were destroyed 314 parcels of cocaine, heroin, morphine and other drugs, together with hypodermic needles and similar apparatus, which had been gathered by the Narcotic Division during the past three months.

The destruction was carried out by Property Clerk Thomas J. Horgan, under the supervision of Acting Captain Henry Scherb, chief of the Narcotic Division, and was in accordance with the orders of Commissioner Whalen.

RAIL INQUIRY ADVANCED.

House Resolution Gets Preferred Place on Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Early consideration by the House of the resolution authorizing an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of holding companies of railroad securities, was indicated today when the Committee on Rules voted to give it a preferential place in the legislative program.

The investigation is proposed as a prerequisite to whatever legislation will be necessary for railroad consolidations under the plan recently submitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Quick passage of the measure by the House was indicated today when Representative Rayburn of Texas, ranking minority member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, again voiced his approval.

BYRD GETS LIGHT ON WEATHER PUZZLE

IMPORTANT TO HEMISPHERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Rear Admiral Byrd expects his Antarctic expedition to make an important contribution to meteorology, according to a radio message from him to the National Geographic Society which was made public today.

The vast Antarctic Continent, the "home of the blizzard," long has been regarded as a "weather breeder" for continental and island areas in the Southern Hemisphere, including South America, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

But it has hitherto been called the world's "weather blind spot," due to lack of any sustained observations of its temperatures, barometric pressures, study of its land-level and altitude air currents, which are the raw materials of weather prediction.

The meterological observations made by the Byrd expedition have been erasing this blind spot. The explorer tells how the observations of his meteorological station were used in determining the time of flights and also the methods by which he has been collecting meteorological data for permanent scientific records.

Admiral Byrd's Message.

Rear Admiral Byrd's message, dated Jan. 8, transmitted through THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station, and addressed to Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president of the National Geographic Society, for whom the expedition's weather station was named, follows:

"So great has been the contribution of the La Gorce Meteorological Station to the success of our flights of exploration that I feel it my duty as well as my pleasure to report the facts.

"We dug our airplanes from under the snow in the Spring as soon as the temperatures would permit. Shortly thereafter, on Nov. 18, our weather men, Haines and Harrison, reported to me that they thought the weather was suitable for the base-laying flight. They made this prediction without any reports from the trail party.

"We left immediately and had sunshine for the 440 miles to the mountains. The visibility is generally so bad here that without sunshine we probably could not have landed successfully to lay down our base.

Accurate Forecast for Polar Dash.

"A few days later, Nov. 28, Haines reported the weather favorable for the South Pole flight and that it was possible we would not again get another day of such suitable weather. We left at once for the flight and had sunshine for practically the whole of the 1,600 miles.

"On Dec. 5 the weather men reported that conditions were favorable for a flight to the eastward. We left at once and had good visibility all the way, which enabled us to photograph more than 50,000 square miles of unknown area.

"It is in my opinion remarkable that the weather predictions have been made so very accurately with so few facts available. Subsequent weather has emphasized the notability of the predictions.

"In order to make one or two additional exploration flights we have watched the weather closely since our last flight, thirty-four days ago, but there has not been one suitable day.

"So it is clear that the contribution of the meteorological section to the success of our flights of exploration has been very great indeed.

Data From Pilot Balloons.

"Haines and Harrison have also made valuable scientific records. They have made surface observations every hour, day and night, over a period of thirteen months.

"In the upper air they have made 400 pilot balloon runs to obtain the velocity and direction of wind at various levels. Many of these balloons have given wind data as high as 30,000 feet. Upper air humidity, pressure and temperature have been obtained by kite or airplane on forty days over a period of three months.

"I am glad to be able to report to you the splendid work done by your representatives."

The technical men mentioned in the message are William C. Haines, the meteorologist, whose salary is being defrayed by the National Geographic Society, which also has allotted $50,000 to the Byrd Expedition for various scientific work, and Henry T. Harrison Jr., whose salary is being paid by the Guggenheim Fund.

BYRD BY RADIO LIGHTS 'POOR RICHARD' LAMP

Special to The New York Times.

The ceremony was staged here in the presence of 300 members of the club and their guests. It will be a perpetual light, kept burning in tribute to Franklin, whose birthday the advertising men will celebrate tomorrow in conjunction with the silver jubilee of the founding of their organization.

The lighting was scheduled for 9 P.M. It was delayed for ten minutes before the first faint waverings were received, but the oscillations were too faint to light the lamp. Notice was sent to Little America, and the wave length of the sender was changed from 22 meters to 37 meters. At 9.37 P.M. the signal came in stronger, and the lamp was lighted.

"Congratulations, Poor Richard, on your silver jubilee. It moves me to know that when I mention my name here in Little America, Antarctica, it is the sole medium of turning on in your club house in Philadelphia the eternal light to Benjamin Franklin."

The message from Admiral Byrd came into THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station in The Times Annex in telegraphic code, as have hundreds of thousands of other messages from the expedition. After the dots and dashes had clicked off the message, starting at 9:36 P. M., there was a thirty-second pause.

Then came a long dash from the station in Little America, carried over almost 10,000 miles of space in the twentieth of a second. It was picked up by the antenna of THE TIMES station, and carried through a filter and coupling unit to a special amplified, which multiplied it several million times. Thus augmented, it was carried by land wire to Philadelphia, where it actuated the lighting of the bust of Poor Richard.

Admiral Byrd:
Message same through. Ted Ash in Poor Richard Club thanks you a thousand per cent. Please reply.
POOR RICHARD.

In response, Admiral Byrd sent this message:

Poor Richard Club,
Philadelphia, Pa.:
Much obliged for radio. Glad message got through O. K.. We envy you your bully time.
BYRD.

HALTS MOON ROCKET WORK

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 16.—Although it was reported that Professor Franz Oberth, whose work on the moon rocket is now world-famous, had returned to his birthplace in the village of Mediasch in Transylvania in consequence of a nervous breakdown, Professor Oberth has declared categorically that that was not the reason.

The suspension of work, he said, was due only to the fact that the Ufa Film Company had stopped its subsidy as soon as he had done all they required to aid them in the production of their film dealing with the rocket.

Nevertheless, the work is so far advanced that Dr. Oberth is already in a position to shoot off a test rocket but is prevented by lack of funds. He believes he will obtain the necessary capital to complete his moon rocket elsewhere.

REPUBLICANS ADOPT CITY REFORM PLANS

false registration; to guarantee full protection at the polls on election day; to investigate all charges of illegal registration and voting, and to cooperate with public authorities in the prosecution of election and registration frauds.

5. To advise on city and State legislation.
6. To give enlarged recognition to the political service of women and to increase opportunities for their usefulness in party action.
7. To enlarge the activities of the present City Affairs Committee of the Republican County Committee, and in particular to create a complaint bureau where all justifiable criticism of the administration of the city's affairs shall be investigated.
8. To organize a speakers' bureau and to train speakers who shall appear throughout the year before various civic bodies and discuss such public questions as present themselves to the public interests.
9. To organize a finance committee.
10. To endeavor to create a municipal organization for all municipal elections, by uniting all independent groups and citizens who are interested in good government, and to advocate appropriate legislation to make such union effective.
11. To create a fact-finding bureau, for the purpose of drawing up a plan for reorganization of the present municipal government.
12. To advise on national legislation as affecting the interest of the City of New York.
13. To confer with the other counties in the City of New York for the purpose of creating a similar committee in each county, and furthermore, for the additional purpose that each county create an executive committee, and that such executive committee select one city chairman with the view of the closer cooperation of the Republican organizations in the five boroughs.
14. To report to the County Committee at its monthly meeting, for such action and public discussion as shall be appropriate from time to time.

In urging adoption of the resolution Dr. Butler said the country was passing through a period of political change and that the party name no longer meant as much as it once did.

"The old-fashioned party system in the United States has substantially disappeared," he said. "It has disappeared because it has become impossible for men bearing the same party name in different parts of the country to stand on the same political principles. Elihu Root is a Republican and Senator Borah is a Republican, but if they agree in any particular no one has noticed it. I am a Republican and Senator Brookhart is a Republican. If we agree on anything that fact has not been brought to my attention.

"The Democrats are in the same situation. Alfred E. Smith is a Democrat and Thomas J. Heflin is a Democrat. What they agree on is scratching each other's eyes out at every opportunity."

Dr. Butler cited the diverse views held by Republican members of the United States Senate as illustrating the weakening of party ties but said that the party name was still a trademark of great value in different parts of the country, the Democratic name being of particular value in New York City.

"We are in the position of the Democrats in Philadelphia, where they are very happy if their votes are counted at all," he continued. "We must appeal to the younger voters and make them realize that the Republicaan organization can be of service to them and that they can be of service to the organization. We cannot strengthen our organization by beating the old tomtoms and urging allegiance to the name which meant so much to us."

Questions concerning the make-up of the advisory committee were met by Mr. Koenig with a promise that every group in the party would receive representation. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

MILLS OUTLINES STEPS TO HELP REPUBLICANS

Ogden L. Mills, Under Secretary of the Treasury, called last night at a dinner given in his honor by the New York Young Republican Club for a spirit of militancy in the Republican party in New York to restore its fortunes, which, he admitted, were "at a low ebb."

Mr. Mills offered three suggestions for aiding in the attainment of this purpose. First, he said, the party must assume "character" in commitment to principles not based on political opportunism. Second, he said, it must enlist the younger element in the party and entrust to these members greater responsibility. His third suggestion was for the establishment of a paid bureau of experts to assemble data on the City Administration and provide facts for municipal campaigns.

In urging steps to strengthen the party locally, he asserted that this was necessary because of the danger to the party nationally should overwhelming Democratic successes continue to grow.

"I have no patience," he said, "with those who say that to be successful we must imitate Tammany Hall and adopt its methods and standards. In common fairness to our citizens, one such organization is enough, and more than enough, for this or any other city. The time has come to unite on a program which will restore the Republican party in the city to a position which it is entitled to occupy. That means, in the first instance, that the party must have character, and what I mean by character is the possession of convictions and a devotion to principles that will lead men and women to fight for them, irrespective of the immediate consequences."

Mr. Mills declared that despite the recent setbacks, the future was one for optimism, saying:

"I look upon the situation as one which constitutes at once a challenge and an opportunity that should be accepted, above all, by young men and women who recognize that as citizens they owe an obligation to the State and who are ready to enlist in the cause of good government."

J. Edward Lumbard Jr., president of the club, presided. Samuel S. Koenig, county chairman; W. Kingsland Macy of Suffolk County, and Alderman Joseph C. Baldwin were among the guests of honor. The club election will be held next Thursday night.

DUESSELDORF NURSE DIES

BERLIN, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Official Gazette today prohibited the importation of parrots into Prussia, to guard against the spread of psittacosis, or parrot fever, discovered in many parts of Germany. The embargo is effective immediately and until further notice.

At a meeting of the Berlin Medical Society today Professor Fritz Meyer, who recently treated several of the cases, said that his bacteriological examinations had hitherto been negative. He had found streptococci only in the three worst cases, and then only as complications.

He said that one of the dangers of the disease was that parrots to all appearances healthy might be infectious. No specific treatment is known in Germany.

One Dead in Duesseldorf.

COLOGNE, Germany, Jan. 16 (AP).—Fourteen cases of psittacosis have been reported in this city. Dispatches from Duesseldorf say that a nurse in the hospital there died from the disease today.

HARTHA, Saxony, Jan. 16 (AP).—Three persons were reported today to be suffering from psittacosis after a visit to relatives already ill with disease.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (Science Service).—Parrot fever is "essentially a medical curiosity and need occasion little alarm among the people of the United States," The Journal of the American Medical Association will say in its next issue.

"The development of cases at widely separated points suggests anew the reflection that it is no longer possible for any person or any nation to live in isolation," the comment will continue. "The possibility of unusual disorders must be ever present in the medical mind."

Discussing the disease itself, The Journal will say:

"The disease is attributed to an organism called bacillus psittacosis, or bacillus aertrycke, but there is doubt whether this organism is the real cause of pneumonia transmitted to man by parrots."

REPORT ANOTHER DEATH HERE

Symptoms and circumstances usually associated with psittacosis or "parrot fever" were discovered last night to have figured in the death of Mrs. Augusta Wenz of 464 East 162d Street, who was reported as having died yesterday morning of unknown causes.

Dr. Louis Lefkowitz, Assistant Medical Examiner, revealed the circumstances of the case last night following an autopsy. He said that Mrs. Wenz received a parrot on Dec. 3 or 4, and that the bird became ill and died on Dec. 24. The next day Mrs. Wenz became ill.

The Medical Examiner took cultures of the dead woman's blood to ascertain definitely the cause of death.

Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, head of the Bureau of Health Education, reported that the research laboratory of the Health Department had isolated bacilli in a parrot taken from a Bowery pet shop which were either those of psittacosis or of some closely allied disease. Efforts to find bacilli in a parrot which died in Hollis, Queens, on Dec. 28, were unsuccessful because of the state of decomposition of the body.

"Am informed inspection of Biological Survey service primarily for detection of animals whose importation is prohibited. Also for statistical purposes. Apparently no inspection is made to detect pathological conditions. Consider last very important. Am advised S. S. Ulma from Cristobal due here Jan. 26 to dock at Pier 15, East River. Have isolated suspicious baccilli from dead parrots from local bird shops. Agglutination like pestis cavea."

Two more suspected cases of psittacosis were reported yesterday in Hastings-on-the-Hudson and one in Ardsley. In all these, parrots purchased recently in New York City were involved.

BRIDGEMAN AT DINNER WITH MEN HE ASSAILED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Ambassador Matsudaira gave an example of the traditional Japanese tactfulness and courtesy tonight when he invited Viscount Bridgeman, former First Lord of the Admiralty, to a small embassy dinner in honor of the Japanese naval delegates.

Mr. Bridgeman sat at the same table with Prime Minister MacDonald and other British delegates, whose cruiser policy he denounced in the Navy League speech yesterday. Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, who resigned from the Cabinet after a sharp disagreement with Mr. Bridgeman's policy at Geneva in 1927, also was there.

Later a reception at the embassy was attended by hundreds of leaders of the diplomatic, military, naval and political life of London.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The War Department granted today an application of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company of New Jersey and the New York Bay Railroad Company for an extension of six months in time for completing a bridge across Newark Bay between Newark and Bayonne. The bridge is practically completed, but considerable work remains to be done in the removal of the old bridge, dredging the channel and constructing a new fender system.

MACDONALD'S TALK ENCOURAGES FRENCH

SUBMARINE BAN OPPOSED

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The conciliatory tone of Prime Minister MacDonald's talk with the press yesterday, coming after the British reply to the French memorandum, has given new encouragement to the French that the naval negotiations will start in a cordial spirit and that the problems will be viewed from the very widest aspect. The British Prime Minister's announcement that he was ready to consider the progressive withdrawal of capital ships has been found especially satisfactory, because not naval powers the capital ship remains a symbol of naval power and pride, which accords badly with the only to France but to all smaller spirit of limitation of arms and international cooperation.

Less acceptable, of course, is the Prime Minister's reiteration of the British wish to see the submarine abolished or at least restricted. There is, however, even within French naval circles, a divided opinion as to the utility of the large submarine which has been developed to the size and the expense of the cruiser, and while the French remain attached to the theory of the submarine as the weaker nation's most useful arm they perhaps are not so unprepared for concessions both in number and in size as they have sought until now to appear.

The main difficulty in the way of a harmonious agreement on the formula for limitation, which will be based on security and needs, is still, in the opinion here, the Italian claim to parity. Yesterday Foreign Minister Briand had a conversation with Foreign Minister Grandi at Geneva, but it is understood that the questions discussed were only in connection with Italy's claims in North Africa and the difficulties between the two countries there which have been under slow discussion for so long. M. Briand himself indicated that naval conversations would best be postponed until the arrival in London.

Here there is a conviction that an arrangement with Italy can be made in time and that to make Franco-Italian naval parity anything like a condition for Anglo-American parity is to falsify the whole aim of the conference at the start. The British and American fleets are so nearly of equal paper strength that complete arrangement between them is comparatively easy, while the difference between the Italian and French naval tonnage, as well as their obligations and commitments, is so great that to suggest anything like parity is, in the French opinion, almost absurd.

The French delegation will not leave Paris in a body. M. Briand, who is returning from Geneva tonight and who will leave for London Saturday at midday, will be the earliest arrival. Premier Tardieu will take a boat from Rotterdam, arriving Sunday morning. George Leygues, Minister of Marine, will take an early train Sunday morning, and François Pietri, Minister of Colonies, who is being detained by the debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the colonial budget, will leave Paris Sunday afternoon.

M. Tardieu will preside at the conference of delegates Sunday in London and will call on Secretary Stimson at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. At 9 o'clock he will visit Mr. MacDonald to discuss the organization of the work of the conference.

LONDON, Jan. 16 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Chief Rabbi Joseph Hertz has composed a special prayer for the success of the coming London Naval Arms Conference. The prayer, to be read in all London synagogues after the one for the King, reads:

Lord of the Universe, in whose hand are the souls of the living and the dead, remember in Thy loving kindness the millions of Thy children who laid down their lives in the weary years when desolation and war extended to the ends of the earth. May their sacrifice not have been in vain and may their death end all hatred and strife between nations. Father of peace, have pity on Thy handiwork and remove perverseness from the hearts of all peoples. Be with the messengers of the great nations who gather in conference in the mother city of our land for strengthening peace and the reduction of naval armament. Bestow upon them a spirit of wisdom and counsel and moral strength to understand that righteousness alone exalteth a nation and that by might shall no man or kingdom prevail. Give speedy cause to the lovers of international equity and brotherhood to rejoice.

OUR DELEGATES COOL TO MACDONALD PLAN

During the last thirty hours this ship has been steaming at reduced speed because of head winds and rough seas.

See Opposition to Big Ship Cut.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The MacDonald Government's proposals for the eventual abolition of battleships and submarines—which is all the world is likely to know of the British plans before the London Naval Arms Conference opens on Tuesday—have not received that warmth of reception abroad which a large section of British opinion apparently expected.

Concerning the feeling in Britain, the paper adds:

"The country, though at one with the MacDonald Government in its anxiety to see a real step forward toward disarmament, and though convinced, like the government, that the moment is opportune for such a step, can hardly show itself enthusiastic in support of a policy of which its knowledge is only vague and incomplete."

The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Telegram will explain tomorrow that the MacDonald Government's silence on cruiser questions is due to "the extreme delicacy" of its position. "Indeed, the conference is threatened not only with a Franco-Italian deadlock over Italian claim to naval parity with France," that correspondent will say, "but with another which might well prove to be no less obstinate than the first, and even more embarrassing to Great Britain." This he explains is due to the firm insistence by Japan on a 70 per cent ratio in relation to the projected United States program for large cruisers, and, on the other hand, "to the equally resolute opposition of Washington to this Tokio claim."

The Daily Telegraph's information is that the United States delegation will be found willing to accept a proportion of eighteen Washington cruisers (of 10,000 tons with eight-inch guns) to fifteen British cruisers, instead of demanding twenty-one. But The Daily Telegram will say, Washington will not concede to Tokio the claim to 70 per cent of the revised American standard in respect to these large cruisers, "and from the British standpoint nothing could be more untoward or unfortunate."

James E. Fenton, Australian delegate, has sprung to arms in defense of Mr. MacDonald's policy and has telegraphed to Melbourne expressing his disapproval of the Australian comment published in the evening newspapers there.

"Mr. MacDonald once again protests that he is bearing in mind the extent of the empire's maritime communications, but how can he possibly reconcile this claim with his dangerous policy regarding Egypt and the Suez Canal, the risk that he is taking in India and the decision to retard work at Singapore? There is a menace to Australia in every one of them."

Introducing T. M. Mitford, New Zealand's delegate, to members of the New Zealand Association today, the Earl of Jellicoe, former Admiral of the Fleet, who was Governor General of that dominion from 1920 to 1924, said he was sure that in Mr. Mitford "New Zealand will have a spokesman who is not afraid to say what he thinks."

"So far as Britain is concerned," added the Earl, "the security of its sea communications is essential to the preservation of the life and prosperity of its people. New Zealand is also vitally concerned in its sea communications being kept open, having regard to its great export trade and to its being the most distant British dominion."

In reply, Mr. Mitford said New Zealand was a little country, adding, "but perhaps its local knowledge of the Pacific Ocean, the waters of which wash the shores of lands carrying half the population of the world, may be of use in the deliberations of the conference."

Ambassador Dawes left for Plymouth tonight absorbed in a newspaper dispatch from New York to the effect that the American Government was willing to reduce battleships from eighteen to fifteen if Britain reduced proportionately. He puffed at his underslung pipe as he read the article, remarking he had heard nothing of the government's reported intention beyond what had appeared in the newspapers.

King George will travel to London from Sandringham on Monday to open the conference, returning to the country immediately after. The Canadian delegates are due at Liverpool tomorrow and M. Briand is expected from Paris on Saturday evening, followed by Premier Tardieu from The Hague early on Sunday.

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—When the King goes into his brief residence at Buckingham Palace on Monday, Lord Dawson of Penn, his personal physician, will visit him for a medical examination. It is understood Lord Dawson will then decide whether the King should spend a month abroad or go for a short rest and change to a resort on the English southwestern coast.

Though the King will return to Sandringham after a stay of only twenty-four hours in London, his medical advisers are anxious that he should not spend February on his favorite country estate, believing that he should go to some warmer place.

The King, who has been doing a great deal of shooting at Sandringham, is reported to be in excellent health at present.

His Majesty will participate without pageantry of state in the opening of the naval arms conference. Attired in morning dress, he will drive in an ordinary closed motor car from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords, where officials will meet him at the royal entrance and conduct him to a place in the royal gallery, from which he will deliver his address. The address will be broadcast.

Official Japanese quarters said today that reports emanating from Tokio to the effect that the delegates in London were dissatisfied with the progress of conversations between the British and the Japanese were "exaggerated and untrue."

They denied that any fresh instructions had been sent to the London delegation or that the Japanese general plan had been modified. They also denied that Prime Minister MacDonald had rejected any of the Japanese proposals.

ITALY MAY DEMAND BAN ON ALL FLEETS

Grandi Indicates That He Will Upset British Plans for Opening Conference.

WANTS CUTS TO AID WEAK

Both Political and Financial Considerations Appear to Be Behind Strategy.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—Through talks with responsible sources in the Italian and French delegations attending the Council of the League of Nations here, who are in close touch with the attitudes of their governments regarding the London Naval Arms Conference, the following information has been gained:

It is possible that Foreign Minister Grandi may upset the British plans for confining the opening meeting of the conference to generalities by making a sweeping statement of Italy's basic policy, similar to Charles Evans Hughes's speech at the opening of the Washington conference and Ambassador Gibson's speech here last Spring. If so, the statement probably will contain the declaration that Italy not only has sought reduction and not merely limitation but desires nothing better than to scrap her entire fleet if the other four would agree and that Italy believes disarmament in any event ought in justice to be worked out on a plan acceptable first of all to the weakest instead of to the strongest naval powers.

The British Government has asked the powers to give merely formal speeches at the opening public session of the conference and then to proceed immediately to private meetings without making a general statement of policy. Italy, it is stated, has not yet accepted this, and whether it will or not it is making no bones of the fact that it does not like this procedure. Among the arguments advanced against it in the Italian delegation is that Italy, as the weakest power in the conference, has nothing to lose and everything to gain by appealing to public opinion, not only through a general statement but through keeping the sessions of the conference public.

"If the conference works in secret," the Italians argue, "the journalists either will have to depend on their own delegations, which will tend merely to accentuate differences, since the home public in each country will not hear the other side, or they will have to invent news and the way will be cleared for Shearers."

Reasons for Attitude.

Back of all this appear two basic considerations, one political and the other financial. The Italians know that whatever agreement may be reached, Italy will remain in fact the weakest naval power if only because Britain controls the outlets of the Mediterranean, and French naval bases there are superior. If a high level is set, it will cost Italy heavily to remain the weakest; if a low level, it will cost Italy less, while at the same time the greater the reduction the stronger Italy will become tactically. Thus, the Italians point out, that if all fleets were scrapped Italy would still be weaker than Britain in the Mediterranean, but relatively far stronger than it is now and at no expense whatever. World opinion, which demands a drastic reduction, thus coincides with the Italian naval strategy of seeking parity with Britain by reduction to zero. Consequently, this is considered in Italian quarters the best card they have to play whether or not they dare to use it to the limit.

On the other hand, it is known that the Fascist Government is concerned about the financial situation of Italy and this is reflected by the repeated emphasis placed by the delegation here on the need for drastic reduction for the sake of economy. Foreign Minister Grandi in one of his conversations here left no doubt that he saw eye to eye with President Hoover on this as on other angles of the problem, stressing the strong desire of the new régime to use the money now devoted to the navy on the development of Italy.

Signor Grandi, who left tonight for London, where he expects to have a preliminary interview with Secretary Stimson Sunday, left the impression here he was prepared to give the Secretary of State then Italy's hearty support on the plea Ambassador Gibson made here for drastic reduction instead of limitation and to express his willingness to consider the problem from the political instead of merely the technical side. It is stated that Signor Grandi said in the above conversation that Italy was going to London with no figures in mind, holding, like Mr. Gibson in his speech, that naval needs were purely relative and that consequently Italy was ready to go as low as France would and desired nothing more than to scrap all fleets.

Though Italy is stressing France as an obstacle to the conference, it would seem that this is at least partly due to political considerations, for in the delegation here the belief is expressed that Britain at bottom will prove the greatest obstacle to drastic reduction. In this connection the Italians insist that, if the League covenant and the Kellogg pact mean anything, the strongest powers, such as Great Britain, should set the example by reducing their armaments by the method most advantageous to the weakest powers. The Italians say the British instead are seeking to impose a method of reduction by categories which would only accentuate Britain's existing advantage. In the Italian delegation it is stressed even more than in the French that the only method fair to intrinsically weaker powers is to reduce by global tonnage.

Again hope is expressed in the Italian delegation that "there will be no half-way measures in the reduction of battleships," which they want abolished. They expect, however, that the British will be willing only to reduce battleships to fifteen units of 25,000 tons each mounting 12-inch guns—a figure which the Italians say has been chosen by the British because it will give them a greater actual superiority over 10,000-ton cruisers than Britain now enjoys. Such "half-way" measures, the Italians fear, will have a bad moral effect on the rest of the conference.

In regard to the Mediterranean arrangement which the French propose, Italy, it is stated, will demand as a prerequisite the ending of the Franco-Yugoslav alliance, just as the four-power agreement in the Pacific entailed an end of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

In the French delegation attention is called to the fact that the British, in their invitation to the conference, promised later to communicate to the others their views as to the subjects which should be discussed at the conference. The French—and the Italians agree with them—complain that the British never have done this. Both complain that they have been left up in the air regarding both Britain's general views and the working program she proposes for the conference. They do not consider the British reply to the French memorandum as filling the bill. British circles say that it does give their general views. As for the program, they explain that they do not want to "appear to force" the agenda on the conference.

The French say that the only information the British and Americans have given them since September has been on purely technical details, not on general lines, but that the United States previously had given them pretty full information on the basic American policy.

BRITAIN TO WELCOME OUR DELEGATES TODAY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Jan. 16. — Great Britain is eagerly awaiting the arrival tomorrow morning of the liner George Washington in order to give American delegates to the London Naval Arms Conference a rousing welcome. There will be official receptions here at the port of Plymouth and at the London Paddington station when the boat train arrives there.

Instead of the ship reaching here soon after midnight, according to the original schedule, the liner is now due to anchor in Plymouth Sound around 7 A. M. tomorrow. Rough seas are responsible for the change in the plans. It also is held desirable that the delegates reach London at a more reasonable hour for a reception there.

A special naval tender will leave Plymouth at 6 o'clock in the morning and return with Secretary Stimson and the other American delegates at 8 o'clock. Ambassador Dawes, who is leaving London on a midnight train with Ray Atherton, will be among the welcoming party here. Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, already is here to greet the delegates.

Admiral Sir Hubert Brand, Commander-in-Chief of the Plymouth naval station; James Churchward, Mayor of Plymouth; other local officials and a special guard of honor composed of royal marines of the Plymouth division also will meet the tender.

LEAGUE CELEBRATES 10TH ANNIVERSARY

PAYS TRIBUTE TO WILSON

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—"The League of Nations has grown from a great idea into a great reality. It will see its strength develop until it can assure a reign of lasting peace."

With these words Quinones de Leon of Spain concluded a brief speech in the closing meeting of the fifty-eighth session of the League Council today, commemorating the tenth anniversary of the Council's first meeting, Jan. 16, 1920. Señor de Leon is the only member of the Council now who participated in the first session.

That first session lasted less than an hour and was devoted merely to appointing the Sarre Boundary Commission. The fifty-eighth session lasted four days, and only by rushing was it able to consider numerous questions before it, involving almost every field of international relations, in less than a week—the period the Council sessions now normally take.

Great Britain was the only great power sending a Foreign Minister—Lord Curzon—to the first Council session. The present session, though sandwiched between two very important conferences—the reparations conference at The Hague, which is still going on, and the naval conference at London, for which the Council hastened to make way—drew to Geneva the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France, Italy, Poland and Finland. It drew M. Briand and Mr. Adatci of Japan from The Hague, drew Mr. Henderson from the urgent business of preparing for the London parley, and drew the first foreign Minister Italy ever sent to the Council. It thus provided the first occasion in the years in which tension has been growing between France and Italy for the Foreign Ministers of these two powers to talk together man to man as M. Briand and Signor Grandi did yesterday—just as it previously provided a similar opportunity for M. Briand and German Foreign Minister Stresemann to develop personal relations leading to the Locarno pact.

The Council which heard Señor de Leon call the League a great reality today had already this session heard Mr. Henderson proclaim it "incomparably the most effective instrument the world has ever had for the maintenance of peace," had heard M. Briand call it "indestructible," and had heard the representative of the third great power give these declarations Germany's firm support.

Polish Minister Presiding.

One fact most impressing to the audience was that it had fallen to the lot of the Foreign Minister of a nation—Poland—whose very existence as a sovereign State was in doubt in 1920, to preside at this session of the Council. M. Zeleski, who, as President, was the only other speaker commemorating the anniversary—for the League plan was to make the ceremony very simple—mentioned the fact that the first meeting had been "convened by President Wilson, whose name will always be connected with the greatest effort for peace ever made by mankind."

M. Zaleski, whose country was invaded by Russia the year after the League began, referred feelingly to the insecurity of those early days when "the fiery furnace of war was still smoldering." He especially stressed the League's contribution to peace in bringing not only a large number of Foreign Ministers together in the Council and the Assembly but other Ministers and experts into personal contact through the technical organ at Geneva, which thus has developed into "a vast organization for daily and universal cooperation."

In this connection one of the notable results of the session just closed—though M. Zaleski did not mention it directly—has been the improvement in Polish and German relations, which is expected to bear fruit not only in political but economic fields. It had fallen to M. Zaleski as President to pay tribute in behalf of the Council the other day to the late Dr. Stresemann. The Secretariat, as usual for such an occasion, had prepared a speech for him. The Polish Foreign Minister discarded it and delivered one he himself had written, in which he added an exceptionally warm tribute to Stresemann on behalf of Poland. How much Berlin appreciated this was shown this morning when a message from the German Chancellor was read to the Council expressing thanks. Meanwhile, the long-standing Polish-German negotiation over a commercial treaty and the minorities question has been progressing here in a new atmosphere.

Inquiry Is Postponed.

The Council decided this morning to delay until May the session on the proposed inquiry into the traffic in women and children in the Far East. The delay is due to the differences of opinion regarding the inquiry still remaining between the Bureau of Social Hygiene of the American Institute, backed by the Rockefellers, which has offered $125,000 to pay the expenses of the inquiry, and the State in which the inquiry is to be conducted.

The American bureau financed the previous League investigation of white slavery in the West which was conducted chiefly by two Americans, Dr. William Snow and Bascom Johnson, whose methods aroused considerable opposition in France and other countries. The bureau insists that the same methods be followed in the Far East as a condition under which it will provide funds, while the various governments of the Far East either, like India, want the method changed or, like China and France, want the inquiry restricted to the international side of the traffic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16—"Did the governments that signed the Kellogg pact really mean it when they signed it?" asks H. G. Wells in a new treatise on "The Way to Peace," which, according to The Daily Mail will be published soon as a series of booklets called "Affirmations."

Mr. Wells says that at times this once sinful planet looks like a grove of olive branches, but that within those branches bayonets still gleam. Italy, he says, has signed the Kellogg pact but has just launched her most efficient battleship. France has also signed but still imposes military service, and the British have signed "but nobody told that the the Air Service," he says.

"In America I learn," Mr. Wells goes on, "that the prospects for an intelligent youngster are greater in the gas warfare department than in school teaching or medicine, and the Germans have succeeded in producing a gem of a battleship."

Mr. Wells holds that none of the existing treaties contains any provision for the overruling authority without which peace is impossible. He protests against what he calls the flimsy utopianism about peace now so current and contends that the first vital move toward world peace must be a fight for new education.

"Children," he writes, "can be taught that the conquest of knowledge, the establishment of world peace and the attainment of human health and happiness are finer ends than pulling down and tearing up one flag for the purpose of hoisting another."

WOULD BE FOURTH IN RACE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Jan. 16.—The Presidential campaign in Colombia, already one of the most exciting in many years, will have added impetus and very likely a new candidate with the arrival at Barranquilla tomorrow by airplane of the Colombian Minister to the United States, Enrique Olaya Herrera, who arrived here today on the steamship Santa Rita and will depart early tomorrow.

Señor Olaya Herrera declined to state definitely today whether he will be a candidate, adding that his final decision will be made after conferences at Cartagena and Barranquilla tomorrow. In a speech here to a group of Colombians led by former President Carlos Restrepo on the pier immediately after his arrival, Señor Olaya Herrera said he would not be a candidate of any party, but of the people, if he could be of service to his country. A speaker presenting Señor Olaya Herrera pointed out that his experience at Washington would be of great value as the next President of Colombia.

Former President Restrepo, who arrived here yesterday from Colombia by airplane, accompaniied by Clodomiro Ramirez, a prominent Conservative leader, will direct Señor Olava Herrera's campaign, which, with only four weeks until election, will be made by airplane.

With the addition of Señor Olaya Herrera, Colombia will have four Presidential candidates, unless one of the Conservative candidates withdraws before the election. Guillermo Valencia is the regular Conservative nominee, with the support of the present government. General Vasquez Cobo is an independent Conservative candidate. Alfredo Castrillon is the nominee of the Socialist Communist party.

Although the Archbishop Primate has declared in favor of General Vasquez Cobo, he has not the entire support of the Catholic Church, which is very powerful in Colombian politics. Two archbishops and a number of bishops have declared in favor of Señor Valencia.

Both wings of the Conservatives view the candidacy of Señor Olaya Herrera with favor as a consolidation of their forces, but apparently neither candidate will withdraw.

Former President Restrepo today expressed the opinion that General Vasquez Cobo will never withdraw, and Dr. Ramirez expressed the same opinion in the case of Señor Valencia. Señor Restrepo stated that Señor Olaya Herrera would be the candidate of a coalition composed of the nucleus of the old Republican party, which elected Señor Restrepo President in 1910, and of the Liberal party, with the possible exception of a small group of followers of General Cuberos Nino, who, Señor Restrepo stated, is inclined to favor General Vasquez Cobo.

A great amount of popular support is expected from the Conservatives, on account of the prestige of Señor Olaya Herrera, and the belief is that he is the man to rescue the country from its present difficulties. Señor Restrepo stated today that, with fair play, he believes Señor Olaya Herrara will receive 350,000 votes to 250,000 for all other candidates.

Señor Restrepo referred to the oil question as one of the most important that confronts Colombia today and expressed the opinion it should be a subject of special legislation. He proposed that this subject be discussed with the United States, but not behind closed doors, asserting it should be treated openly and fully as one power to another. The Colombian Presidential election will be held Feb. 15.

The robbers had cleared a furrier's window taking with them as they fled the wax figure of a woman in a fur coat. When a pursuing police car drew uncomfortably close the robbers threw the dummy out of their car. The police car ran over it and thinking the dummy was a real woman, the officers stopped.

The face of the figure had been smeared with what appeared to be blood and by the time the policemen had discovered the hoax the robbers escaped.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 16.—The theory that there may be a third Roman galley lying at the bottom of Lake Nemi, advanced by Professor Ugo Antonielli, who is in charge of the salvage work, has created considerable interest in archaeological circles in Rome.

Professor Antonielli bases his theory on the popular tradition which says that three, not two, ships were once afloat on the lake, and on fishermen's assertions that their nets have been caught by some heavy object beneath the surface.

Several noted Italian archaeologists, including Senator Corrado Ricci, are skeptical about the existence of a third galley, although they do not dismiss the theory altogether. Searches for the third galley are to be made during the coming Spring at the side of the lake opposite where the first ship was found.

PARLEY TO PROLONG SESSIONS AT HAGUE

Will Tackle Hungarian Claims Again Next Week Instead of Adjourning Tomorrow.

OPTANTS ISSUE BAFFLING

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 16.—Expecting to reach success tomorrow in arranging for the mobilization of the first slice of German reparations, the only question outstanding between the Reich and the former Allies, Premier André Tardieu of France and Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, heads of their respective delegations, today reached a decision not to end The Hague conference Saturday, when the German reparation matters are to be completed, but to extend it into next week in another effort to arrange the Eastern European claims.

For ten years Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, on the one hand, and Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia on the other, have been unable to compromise their various cases and there can be no denying that the continuance of the dispute threatens the tranquillity of the Balkans. In two weeks of discussion here the problem has been narrowed down, but its settlement is still elusive. It has been agreed to wipe the slate clean for Austria and Bulgaria has been let off with an annual payment of 11,000,000 gold francs (about $2,123,000). But the most troublesome issue, involving the claims by Hungary and the claims against her by the countries of the Little Entente, remains unsettled.

And so, although M. Tardieu will leave here on Saturday night to meet Secretary Stimson in London on Sunday, The Hague conference will continue for some days in an effort to settle the Hungarian case.

The Main Difficulty.

The main difficulty regards Hungary's claims on behalf of former Hungarians living in the territories given by the peace treaties to the countries of the Little Entente, who opted for Hungarian citizenship. Agrarian reforms in Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia took a great part of the lands of these optants and under the treaty of Trianon Hungary has the right to collect payment on behalf of them.

Now the Hungarians, who point to the loss of 72 per cent of Hungary's territory to the secession States and of property worth several hundred million dollars and to the amounts they are paying up to 1943, say that that is enough reparations and they cannot pay more. Entirely outside the reparations account, they wish to collect for the private property of the optants, while the countries of the Little Entente wish to assess further reparations claims against Hungary to amounts sure to overbalance the awards mixed tribunals may give to the optants. There are minor issues pending, but this one is blocking the settlement.

As a result of the efforts of the League of Nations Hungary reduced the optants' claims on Rumania from 600,000,000 gold crowns (about $120,000,000) to 300,000,000 and then recently offered to settle for 130,000,000. The Rumanians offer 100,000,000 but no more. Thus there remains a difference of only 30,000,000 crowns ($6,000,000) in the Rumanian case.

The optants' claims against Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, it is estimated from the awards already made, amount to about 170,000,000 gold crowns. Thus the Hungarians claim in all 300,000,000 crowns ($60,000,000) for their optants and impartial judges think that the tribunals would award very close to that amount.

The countries of the Little Entente do not wish to pay this money but to have it balance the reparation claims. The Hungarians retort that it is a question of private property which cannot be taken for reparations. Involved are large claims on behalf of several archdukes, claims for property belonging to the Catholic Church and claims for railroad interests owned by other nationals than Hungarians.

There have been numerous suggestions of pools and other arrangements here to liquidate this affair, but the fact remains that there is a question of principle to be settled. The Little Entente governments do not question the optants' right to be paid, but they do not wish to pay them. They want what they owe to go on the reparations account and the Hungarian Government to reimburse its optants.

If the diplomats reach no settlement in the next few days the whole question may be sent to the World Court.

Bankers to Report.

The bankers who at Baden-Baden, under the chairmanship of Jackson E. Reynolds of New York, prepared the status for the Bank for International Settlements, will report to the governments tomorrow. It is not believed that serious difficulties will arise, although there remains considerable soreness over the possibility of Dr. Schacht making trouble and no little pressure is being brought on him either to withdraw his moral opposition to the Young plan or resign as the head of the Reichsbank.

In any event the way is now clear for putting the Young plan into operation. Some governmental and parliamentary acts are still needed, but they are of a routine nature. The plan should be in operation by the end of February or some time in March.

By the Associated Press.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Jan. 16.—Swarms of locusts descended upon Casablanca early this afternoon and caused every outdoor café and dining room to close. The insects piled in the soups, beers and wines and drove late luncheon customers ot shelter.

Two companies of the French Foreign Legion, armed with fire fighting apparatus, sprayed insecticides over the invaders. The legionnaires went into the action with a battlecry of "save our beer" and fought the locusts with the greatest enthusiasm.

An official statement issued this evening said that the invasion had been repulsed and that all danger was past.

REICH PRESS SCORES SANCTIONS ACCORD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—If advance editorial estimates of Germany's newest reparations bargain may be accepted as reflecting public opinion irrespective of party viewpoints, it is already quite plain that the government is facing a stormy parliamentary period which is to witness the acceptance or rejection of the commitments it assumed at The Hague.

Not only does the bulk of current press comment designate the government's compromise on the question of sanctions a humiliating surrender, but there is also pronounced disappointment over its failure to obtain some tangible agreement respecting the restoration of the Sarre Basin to German dominion, which was to constitute an integral part of the general liquidation of the war along with the liberation of the occupied areas and the fixation of Germany's war debt.

Even allowing for the partisan acerbites which tincture editorial utterances, it is significant that such a normally placid organ as the Germania, which speaks for the Catholic Centrist party, one of the coalition group, asserts that the solution reached on the question of sanctions must provoke the gravest misgivings. in common.

Sees Plan Greatly Changed.

This newspaper plainly intimates that "the Young plan has not yet been brought to cover," and that careful study of the results of the negotiations at The Hague indicates that the Young plan accepted there is a decidedly different instrument from that drafted at Paris. The latter conclusion is also supported by the Liberal Boersen-Courier, which holds that the two plans have nothing

For the time being Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the president of the Reichsbank, has faded out of the picture, and while the Socialist organ Vorwaerts continues its crusade against him and ridicules the general impression that France reserves the right to military reprisals in the event of a German default on the ground that the Treaty of Locarno excludes army sanctions or invasion, it is this outstanding feature in the settlement reached at The Hague that provokes wide disappointment.

The Right organs consider it a legalization of future sanctions and an acknowledgement of France's right to invade the Ruhr, while the more violent comment in these quarters refers to the compromise on sanctions as a "hangman's noose."

The Fascist organ, Deutsche Zeitung, declares that President von Hindenburg now has the floor, hoping that he will interpose his veto when the time comes to promulgate the Reichstag's acceptance of the Young plan.

Another Complaint.

The charge that the German delegation at The Hague permitted the question of sanctions to become a Franco-German issue in the course of the discussions there is made a telling point in some of the papers, which declare that it is not a question involving Germany's honor but that of Europe, and that in its last analysis The Hague concession represents a defamation of the peace undertakings of the last ten years. By its very structure, it is argued, the Young plan made all discussion or reference to sanctions superfluous in that it provided for such a contingency.

The solution reached, observes the Germania, demonstrates that purely economic issues have once more been dealt with on a military basis, with the result that "the fulfillment of the Young plan, which already imposes heavy burdens on the German people, now becomes cluttered with grave moral interceptions."

There appears to be frank concurrence in the general run of press comment that the battle for the Young plan will not end with the negotiations at The Hague. A semi-official interpretation of the sanctions clause agreed to by the German delegation summarily rejects the assumption that by its terms recourse can be taken to the Treaty of Versailles, and asserts that no recognition of the future right to sanctions under that instrument is implicated in the understanding arrived at between Germany and the creditor powers.

Denies Sanctions Authority.

This semi-official elucidation broadly sets forth that with the enforcement of the Young plan the authority of the Versailles treaty with respect to the imposition of sanctions ceases, as do the functions of the Reparations Commission, which will then be assumed by the Bank for International Settlements. In other respects, too, it is asserted, every juridical safeguard is vouchsafed to Germany in the sanctions compromise with respect to the legal interpretation of the "extreme case," which will rest wholly with the World Court.

A caucus of Socialist Deputies in the Reichstag today voted to interpellate the government on the Schacht episode at The Hague, and also expressed the unanimous opinion that an auxiliary government like that set up by the President of the Reischbank was intolerable. The Socialists will demand alteration in the Reichsbank's statutes to the extent of giving the Reichstag an opportunity to be consulted in connection with determining the bank's executive personnel.

THREATENS COUNTER FORCE

Declaration That Matter Will Be Taken to the People Direct Is Denounced by Maniu Regime.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 16.—Latent civil war in the form of private political armies, with which Austria was so recently threatened, is now looming upon Rumania's horizon. A sensation has been caused in political circles by a memorandum couched in almost threatening tones just addressed by the Liberal party to the Regency Council, which administers the crown during the infancy of the boy King, Michael.

The memorandum, which protests against the National Peasant party's Voinici formations on the ground that they constitute an illegal Fascist militia, closes with a threat which implies the intention of organizing a counter force.

Special exception is taken by the party at whose head stands M. Bratianu to the fact that Premier Maniu, who is also Acting Minister of War, administers the oath to members of the Voinici and acts as its nominal chief. The Liberals affect to see in the Voinici movement the beginning of a contest which can lead to civil war. They therefore appeal to the Regency as the court of last resort and assert in almost menacing tones their readiness, if they obtain no satisfaction, to address themselves to the people direct in order to take the protection of State interests into their own hands.

The government has issued a communiqué to the effect that the Voinici is only an organization of rural youth who constitute no danger to the country. Its purely political, non-military character has already been recognized by Parliament, and the government therefore refuses to answer the charge of tolerating a cult of armed might, especially since the charge was made by a party which, it declares, had made brutal power the basis of all State action.

The boldness of the Liberal party chiefs in addressing to the Regency a sort of ultimatum to the effect that they would themselves assume the crown's prerogative was not, however, allowed to remain unanswered.

"The government cannot accept this sort of speech and behavior, which are calculated to injure the reputation of the throne, without censuring it in the sharpest manner," the official communiqué says. "The organs of State will fulfill their duty against every attempt and will defend the throne, the constitution and public order."

In an interview in the newspaper Dimineata Premier Maniu declared that the Voinici was counter-organization of the peasants to the proletariat of the cities and that its object was to fight the danger of communism.

M'DONALD SUGGESTION WELCOMED IN JAPAN

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Jan. 16.—Warm sympathy in political circles and lukewarmness among naval officials are evoked by Prime Minister MacDonald's statement in London yesterday.

The general indication of British naval policy as outlined by Mr. MacDonald has been circulated at length through the press by the Japanese Foreign Office.

For the time being attention is absorbed by the British view that the battleship is of doubtful utility and the suggestion that the British Government would like to see an agreement whereby the battleship would disappear altogether in time from fleets of world. Naval officials give the suggestion a platonic welcome. They admit its inherent reasonableness, but consider its realization at present impracticable. They point out that existing fleets are based on naval strategy postulated in turn on battleships as the pivots of naval power. Their abolition would involve changes which cannot be carried out without time and would, if hastily adopted, necessitate costly alterations to cruisers.

Official political circles do not hesitate to proclaim their sympathy. One of the most popular politicians in Japan, who had read the press reports, declared that Mr. MacDonald's attitude was a refreshing change from the prevalent talk of difficulties and predicted that allusions to the proposal would win cheers from his constituents when he opened his election campaign next week.

AHMADABAD, India, Jan. 16 (AP).—Writing in the paper Young India, Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, urges the celebration of independence day, Jan. 26, by making a declaration approving the congress policy of complete independence for India.

Speeches will not be necessary, Gandhi writes, adding that it will be better if the declarations are made by whole cities and whole villages. All meetings should be held at the same time throughout the country. Those religiously inclined, he says, might start the day by ablutions and then do some constructive work such as spinning, aiding the "untouchables" or helping to bring reunion of Hindus and Moslems.

AUTO TARIFF BILLS PRESENTED IN PARIS

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The bills for the new French tariffs on imported automobiles and parts were introduced in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon. Preliminary examination of the proposed increases by tariff experts of American companies confirmed fears that adoption of the measures will result in the elimination of American motor cars and spare parts from the French market.

Representatives of American interests in France will meet tomorrow morning to consider a formal statement of the American position to be presented to the Tariff Commission of the French Chamber. The projects were at once referred to the Tariff Commission after their presentation to the Deputies.

The proposed bills have the impressive backing of the President of the Republic, the Minister of Commerce, the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Minister of Finance, and, while there cannot be much doubt regarding the eventual intentions of the government, American motor-car men are somewhat relieved by the indication conveyed to Ambassador Edge by the highest French officials that the measures will not be hurried through Parliament at present. Those who are backing the project, including Louis Renault, leader in the French automobile industry, and several influential members of the Tardieu Government, have been urging its immediate adoption, and the Americans were prepared for such people to interpret the delay as nothing more than a "stay of execution," since the determination of French automobile interests as well as a strong influence within the Government itself to put through the new rates remains undiminished.

Fortunately for the American interests, M. Tardieu, with his usual broad vision, appreciated the American situation as explained to him by eminently authorized persons. Not the least convincing of these was the statement that by awaiting the passage of a low American tariff bill France would be able to know just where she stood in relation to the new American duties. On the other hand, were France now to embark upon a hasty, ill-advised movement to drive Americans from the French market, the American tariff makers who are engaged in the work of revising our schedules might be provoked into writing retaliatory provisions into the Hawley bill.

Then, of course, there was the political angle. The Franco-American automobile situation has all the elements of a first-class tariff controversy or even a tariff war, and the Premier did not care to leave for London with such a possibility staring him in the face.

Copies of the measure raising duties on imported automobile parts have been in the possession of Americans for several weeks, but today was the first opportunity they have had to examine the new rates on completed cars. It will require twelve hours of careful study to figure out the new duties, but a first reading indicates that the average will not be far from the original predictions, namely, in the neighborhood of 90 per cent. The present rate is 45 per cent plus 10 per cent luxury tax. The new rates appear to begin around 75 per cent for the lowest priced cars, such as Chevrolet, and to extend to 115 per cent on the highest priced automobiles. If these are borne out by a more detailed study, Americans assert their adoption would soon end the American automobile trade in France.

However, a number of things can happen before the new tariffs are finally effective, and the opening of negotiations for a Franco-American commercial treaty would probably put an end to this and other potential threats to American trade hanging over the heads of American business men in France.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—To find $500,000 in the street and receive only $12 as a reward for returning it is the disappointing fortune of a Berlin workman.

An employe of the Reich's treasury lost out of his portfolio a government note for 2,500,000 marks, when on his way to the State bank. A few minutes later Rudolf Hennig, foreman of the Berlin gas works, found the note and delivered it immediately to the nearest police station. Hennig, who lives on limited means, then rushed home to break the glad news to his wife and children, expecting at least one per cent of the total amount as a reward.

To his utter disappointment he was informed that the Reich's treasury refuses to reward him, asserting that he could never have cashed such a large note. All he has received so far is $12, which the loser gave him out of his own pocket.

The newspapers argue that Hennig is entitled to a reward and ask how it is possible to lose such a large amount.

BIG GAIN OVER LAST YEAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—The Mexican Government started the year 1930 with a cash surplus of about 19,000,000 pesos, nearly $9,500,000 at par, according to a financial statement made public today.

Although the existence of a surplus at the end of 1929 was not unexpected, the amount, conserved by Finance Minister Luis Montes de Oca, exceeds the hopes of even the most optimistic. It emphasizes the practical results of economies initiated by former President Calles and put into effect by Señor Montes de Oca.

Today's announcement is considered here as the best imaginable new year's gift of President Portes Gil's régime to the administration of Señor Ortiz Rubio, who will take office on Feb. 5. It is concrete evidence that some of Mexico's worst recent problems have been solved, thereby smoothing the road that lies ahead of the next President.

Cash in the public treasury at the end of 1928 amounted to about 360,000 pesos, or nearly $180,000. At the end of December, 1929, funds in the treasury itself amounted to 3,750,000 pesos. There were no government funds in the Banco de Mexico, Mexico's sole bank issue, at the end of 1928, but on Dec. 31, 1929, the balance was upward of 5,750,000 pesos. Cash in the hands of Mexican consulates at the end of 1928 amounted to less than 1,000,000 pesos, while at the end of December, 1929, it was more than 2,500,000 pesos.

Post and telegraph offices at the end of 1928 held cash of only 1,500,000 pesos. On Dec. 31, 1929, they were in possession of about 3,500,000 pesos

An important point in today's statement is the assurance that the surplus now held will not be utilized for current expenditure, but will be applied to the foreign debt. This is not directly stated, but in reliable quarters it is asserted that foreign creditors probably will reap greater benefits than indicated by the official budget appropriation for outside payments.

As against an apparently favorable financial situation this republic is facing the silver crisis and, although the quotations today for that metal show a rising tendency, it must increase considerably before the Mexican silver mining industry can be classified as profitable.

The latest silver production figures available, those for 1928, give the yield for twelve months as 105,000,000 troy ounces, far more than that of any other country in the world. The importance, therefore, to Mexico of the recent drop in prices of bar silver can scarcely be exaggerated. One means of relief is seen in the stimulation of the Mexican silver crafts. It is suggested that the products of Mexico's skilled workers in silverware be pushed in the world markets. Tax and freight rate reductions also have been urged to alleviate the situation and help avert the threatened unemployment in the industry.

Year Bad in Agriculture.

In other fields, also, the balance sheet for 1929 is not so favorable. Mexico's agricultural production last year dropped disastrously, as much as 30 per cent on such staple products as beans and corn.

The agrarian situation, it is reliably learned, was one of the main factors in influencing Ambassador Morrow's decision to return here after the London Naval Arms Conference. In this connection it is felt here that if Señor Ortiz Rubio lives up to his oft-reiterated intention of paying cash for any lands seized in the future for communal purposes, diplomatic problems of the future will be greatly eased and foreign investment stimulated to such an extent that he, in turn, can pass on to his successor in office a country even further advanced in prosperity.

NOGALES, Ariz., Jan. 16 (AP).—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, Mexico's President-elect, concluded his good-will visit to the United States today, expressing confidence that his tour had accomplished a new understanding between the governments and peoples of the sister republics.

His parting message to the United States said:

"To the American People:

"At the time of crossing the international line into my own country I wish to send to the American people through The Associated Press a warm message of gratitude for the cordial and courteous manner in which I was greeted in every place during my stay in the United States.

"I sincerely believe that the fundamental purpose of my visit, namely, to strengthen the ties of our countries, has been attained and that I could obtain a better knowledge of the real character and feelings of the American people, hoping at the same time that also the citizens of the United States may obtain a better understanding of the Mexican people.

"If, during my tour, I would have only received ordinary manifestations of courtesy from the authorities of this country, my trip would have resulted in much good, but added to the cordial official attentions, the manifestations of the American people have undoubtedly attained a deeper result for the better relations between both countries.

"I feel sure that the administration over which I will preside will be marked by constant cooperation and understanding between Mexico and the United States."

NOMINEES ATTACKED BY TEACHERS' UNION

THREE ARE CALLED UNFIT

It was only after political leaders had waged a battle over educational and political preferment and conflicting religious claims that the Board of Superintendents finally agreed upon five candidates for vacant high school principalships last Tuesday, the Teachers' Union charged in a statement yesterday. Three of the five candidates recommended by the board were declared to me "definitely unqualified" for the positions.

The union's statement, written by Dr. Henry R. Linville, the president, declared that "there is reason to believe" that each one of the five successful candidates sought the help of politicians and expressed the hope that "the time will come when teachers will be heartily ashamed of their record of playing with the sinister forces which make use of the institution of education as a medium through which to distribute political spoils."

While admitting that the standard of the board's choice was higher than in past recommendations, the union said educational qualifications were the last consideration in making nominations.

"Political qualifications come first and religious qualifications second," the statement said, adding that a compromise was effected along "religious and racial lines which netted some gain for the Protestants."

According to the union, two of the candidates are Protestants, two Catholics and one a Jew. The board's nominees were William A. Clark, William R. Lasher, John M. Loughran, Frederick W. Oswald Jr. and Gabriel R. Mason.

"As soon as it became known that candidates were applying for the high school principalships it was accepted among teachers with extensive acquaintance that Mr. Loughran of De Witt Clinton High School would get one of the jobs because he had given conspicuous service to Tammany Hall in various campaigns," the statement said. "Thus the nomination of Mr. Loughran was clearly settled as a logical outcome of the spoils system. It was also accepted that Mr. Lasher of Erasmus Hall High School would probably get another because of his service as chairman of the joint salary committee, although he had had no administrative experience in the New York schools.

"Both Mr. Lasher and Mr. Oswald left the teachers' side of the pension controversy in the Spring of 1929 and allied themselves with the administration forces. Their remuneration thus has every appearance of being the result of the working out of political forces. Mr. Clark, a fourth nominee, is comparatively unknown, but he appears to have established effective connections in the first and second of the major qualifications for preferment."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Unusually severe flying conditions which prevailed throughout the East prior to the holidays as a result of widespread storms caused sharp reductions in air-mail volume carried in December by the principal lines and a slight slump from November in the total poundage carried, a report by Postmaster General Brown showed today.

The total poundage carried during the month was 618,809, a drop of 4,352 from November and a slump of 82,000 pounds from the peak in October.

WOMAN HELD IN KILLING OF BROOKLYN DRIVER

After hours of questioning by the police, Fiorenzo Brancaccio, an elderly Italian baker, confessed yesterday to the fatal shooting of Andrew Ingula, whose body, with two bullets through the heart, had been found at 3 A. M. on the sidewalk in front of Brancaccio's home at 235 Elton Street, Brooklyn. As soon as he had confessed his words were contradicted by his stepdaughter-in-law, who assumed blame for the shooting.

Brancaccio and his stepson and stepdaughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ambrosio, who live with him, previously had denied all knowledge of the affair.

Then the detectives confronted Brancaccio with two pistols found in a woodshed in the rear of the house. Brancaccio wavered, then made the confession. He was taken to the Elton Street house to re-enact the shooting. Mr. and Mrs. Ambrosio went also.

"No, he's lying! He only said it to protect me. I shot him!" the woman screamed as Brancaccio took his place to show how he had fired the shots. After she had been calmed she elaborated her admission, and Brancaccio confirmed it.

They showed the police three Black Hand letters they had received during the last two weeks, demanding $5,000 under threat of death, and signed only with a dagger piercing a crudely drawn heart. Mrs. Ambrosio was awakened early yesterday by a sound at the front window, she said. Pistol in hand, she went toward it and when she saw a man clinging to the ledge she fired two shots.

The shadowy figure reeled to the sidewalk and collapsed, while from the rear of the house came the sound of another man running away, Mrs. Ambrosio said. Panic stricken, she and Brancaccio hid the weapons, she said.

Assistant District Attorney Hyman Barshay announced that Mrs. Ambrosio would be held on a charge of homicide, and Brancaccio on a charge of violation of the Sullivan law. District Attorney Brower said that his course of action would depend on the success of the police in connecting Ingula with the blackmailers.

Ingula, who was identified by a driver's license in his pocket, was unknown at the address it bore, 6,613 Eleventh Avenue, Brooklyn. The detectives said there was some reason to suspect him as a member of the Frankie Yale gang which once dominated the Brooklyn underworld.

MRS. ADLER'S DEATH LAID TO ALCOHOLISM

Mrs. Harriet Adler, 38 years old, who was found dead on Wednesday in the penthouse apartment of Dudley Murphy, a motion picture director, at 18 East Forty-first Street, died from acute alcoholism and the pressure of a choker necklace, according to the report of the Medical Examiner made yesterday following an autopsy. Mrs. Adler's position on a couch pressed the necklace into her throat, the report said.

Mrs. Adler's husband, Hamilton Adler, a broker at 120 Broadway, claimed the body in a cablegram from Honolulu, where he is vacationing. The Adlers were separated. Mr. Adler was represented by his attorney, James Froelich of 165 Broadway.

A representative of Mr. Murphy pointed out that the director had not been at the apartment when Mrs. Adler arrived there. Murphy and a friend, James A. Barbour, an advertising designer, had attended a show on Tuesday night and afterward Murphy went to a party, while Barbour went to the apartment.

According to this version of the episode, Mrs. Adler telephoned several times from her apartment in East Seventy-second Street, and finally insisted on coming down to Murphy's apartment to await his arrival. Murphy got home some time later and the men tried to persuade Mrs. Adler to go home. When she refused they retired and she sat on a couch waiting for a long-distance telephone call.

knowledge of the location where the men were reported to have landed.

"The Amguem River flows into the sea about fifty or sixty miles southeast of the Nanuk," Mr. Pollister said. "It flows from the southwest and enters the sea through a large delta, several miles wide. If the men are about 120 miles from North Cape, they are about sixty to seventy miles from the coast.

"The location given in the dispatches is the place many of us, who have studied the situation, have had in mind. It is a sparsely inhabited district, having not more than one or two permanent homes within an area of several hundred miles. That would explain the fliers' long absence and silence.

"Being about south-southeast of the Nanuk, it is the direction in which Eielson and Borland would have been blown in case of a strong prevailing northwest wind. If it is true they have been located at that point the chances are they were forced toward Alaska by the storm reported Nov. 9, after they had almost reached the Nanuk. Then finding they were unable to cross Bering Strait they probably kept on going with the wind until they ran out of gasoline or were forced down for some other reason.

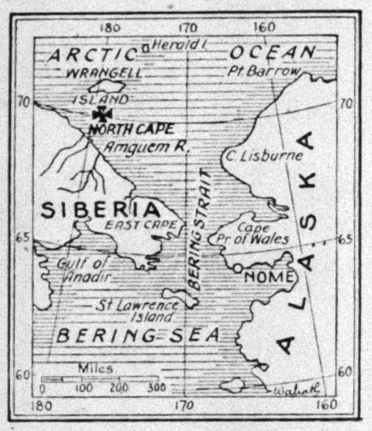
FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 16 (AP).—The report of the finding of Eielson and Borland on the Amguem River in Siberia was viewed today as "another rumor" by Major H. C. Deckard, who returned to Fairbanks from Nome last night after seeing two Fairchild cabin planes delivered there for use in the search.



AREA OF THE EIELSON SEARCH.

Mouth of the Anguema River on Siberian Coast is indicated by Moscow as point where flier came down. The cross marks the place where the Soviet ship Stavropol is icebound.

Firm Hopes for Eileson Maintained.

Aviators, seafarers, dog-team drivers and fur traders familiar with the Arctic, who have been searching for Eielson and Borland, have consistently refused to abandon hope for the airmen since they vanished on Nov. 9 while on a flight to the relief of the fur-trading ship Nanuk, icebound off North Cape, Siberia.

Reliance has been put in Eielson's long experience in the Arctic and his ability to endure the hardship of a life of icy exile. He carried supplies for two months when he took off from Teller, Alaska, and could have husbanded food to make it last for a longer period.

Three weeks ago the aid of the Soviet Government was enlisted as well as that of Canadian and Alaskan fliers and since then the search has been daily intensified.

Various stories of persons having heard the plane as night fell on Nov. 9 have emanated from many points in the North, from both Alaska and Siberia, most of which have only served to divert the search to points off the plotted course.

The last report previous to Moscow's news of locating the missing fliers near the Amguem River in Siberia came from the native wife of a fur trader at Cape Serdze. She said she saw a plane over Ekasura, twenty-six miles east of Cape Serdze, flying toward the Nanuk on the afternoon of Nov. 9. Three hours later she heard it returning. This was believed to coincide with a report that Eielson turned back and was heard that night over Pilgrim Springs, Alaska, northeast of Nome.

By ALFRED J. LOMEN,
Director of Aviation Corporation's Eielson Relief Operations.

Special to The New York Times.

Weather permitting, Pilot T. M. (Pat) Reid, who arrived here yesterday from Unalakleet, will get away in the morning for Teller and thence to the motorship Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, with much needed food, gasoline and other supplies.

As soon as repairs are made to the plane which Reid damaged when he was forced down on the Ungalik River, it will join the group at the Nanuk. All hands are busy today working on the damaged right wing and struts.

FEISAL WILL CONFER WITH WAHABI RULER

BAGDAD, Jan. 16.—Despite the long-standing feud between the Arab royal families, King Feisal of Iraq will soon meet Ibn Saud, the Wahabi ruler, in a neutral zone on the Iraq-Nejd frontier. The two monarchs will confer on the "best measures for ending the activity of malefactors whose raids are liable to disturb the friendly relations between the sister States of Iraq and the Nejd."

A great stir has been caused in Bagdad by the announcement of the meeting which is a direct result of Ibn Saud's recent pursuit and capture of the rebel sheik Feisal ed Dowish and his followers.

Admiration is everywhere expressed for King Feisal's being able to disregard the family quarrel, which reached its climax in the loss by Feisal's family of the Hedjaz throne. His willingness to meet his old enemy is considered a convincing proof of King Feisal's desire to place Iraq's interests above all other considerations.

CANVASS SENATORS FOR WORLD COURT

Mrs. Catt Heads Group Which Presents Resolutions, Urging Our Adherence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—State delegations of women attending the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War visited the Senate today and interviewed their respective Senators on their attitude toward accession of the United States to the World Court.

Most of the Senators interviewed declined to commit themselves definitely, and many said they had not yet had time to study the World Court protocol.

According to reports received by the women from the Senators, there would be between fifteen and twenty votes against accession when the matter comes to a vote. The lower figure was the estimate given by Senator Allen of Kansas, who told them that the fate of the protocol depends upon Senator Borah, and that they should appoint a committee to see him.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, told his visitors that he is working as hard for ratification as they are, and predicted only twenty votes against ratification when it comes up for discussion.

Of all the States reported on, Indiana was the only one in which both Senators were described as being unalterably opposed to America joining the World Court.

Two Stand on Reservations.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire "stood on the fifth reservation," and Senator Hale of Maine declared that he was not sure that the Root protocol took care of the Senate reservations and that before committing himself he would wait to see what President Hoover said about it.

The Senators from New Jersey were described as having "an open mind," and Senator Wagner of New York was listed as "not discouraging." Senator Copeland was absent. Senator Bingham of Connecticut was noncommittal, but his attitude was interpreted as unfavorable.

In addition to the World Court resolution passed on the opening day of the conference the delegations presented to their Senators resolutions and petitions from the women of their States. From Minnesota 731 resolutions were presented, the largest number from any State, and Senator Grundy of Pennsylvania received 501.

At a round-table discussion of disarmament, over which Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters, presided, the participants were Edward P. Warner, editor of Aviation; Reinhold Niebuhr, of the faculty of Union Theological Seminary, and Professor Parker T. Moon of Columbia University. Raymond L. Buell, research director of the Foreign Policy Association, represented "challenging public opinion."

To the assertion of Mr. Warner that "reduction of international distrust which naturally hangs over all international parleys is more important than reduction of armament," Professor Niebuhr replied that international community feeling cannot be created by parleys but must grow through years and is the only basis of successful limitation of arms.

He expressed a belief that an agreement on parity at London would bring no tax reduction, as far as America is concerned, but this view was challenged by Parker Moon, who predicted a reduction of about $200,000,000 in taxation and the success of the London parley.

Present Resolutions to Hoover.

A group of the delegates headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt were received by President Hoover in the temporary executive offices this morning and presented resolutions, advocating accession of the United States to the World Court, and pledging the conference to "support in every possible way such action as will lead to the completion of the progress of accession."

The resolution added that the conference believed membership by the United States would "not only give greater effectiveness to the court, but will also afford evidence of the sincere purpose of our government to uphold its commitments made through the Paris pact."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—A brown leather book bearing the pleas of 12,000,000 American women for armament reduction will be presented to the naval reduction conference in London the first week in February, along with the 180,000 signatures of Japanese women to a similar petition.

In the book are the resolutions passed by the Cause and Cure of War Conference, the combined membership of which includes a fifth of the adult women of the United States, urging a drastic enough reduction in naval armament to forever end competition in naval building.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—Lithuania has signed two protocols, one for American adhesion to the World Court and the other for the revision of the court statutes as well as the optional clause, it was announced here today. The Secretariat of the League of Nations also received the assurance that Albania's signature to the two protocols will be affixed soon. There is reason to believe that Abyssinia, which then will be the only State whose signature is necessary, also will soon sign the two protocols.

Washington's belief that Costa Rica's signature to the Root protocol also is legally necessary is not shared here, where it is pointed out that Costa Rica, unlike the three States mentioned above, has never ratified the original court statute. It has merely signed the statute as the United States has, and this signature alone does not make a State a member of the court.

Court, there is but little knowledge on the part of most people of the facts relating to its constitution and acual working."

How Judges Are Elected.

He briefly outlined the structure of the court and then discussed the method of election of the judges. He pointed out that the next election of members would be held next September, and that if the protocol were ratified by the United States this nation would be a participant in the selection of the new judges. He emphasized that the smaller powers among the fifty-four States which hold membership in the court held the balance of power and were keen in all deliberations of the tribunal.

"For whatever the great powers may do when they fall into controversy," he said, "resort to the Permanent Court is recognized as the most important guarantee of justice to the smaller powers. Their interest in the selection of judges is, therefore, very keen.

"As the men proposed by the national groups of great powers must submit themselves to the election by the smaller powers, the great powers naturally put forward men of eminence, whose records they think will stand scrutiny; and as the judges proposed by the groups in the smaller powers are to pass upon the controversies of the great powers, they are prompted to offer men of the required competence.

"No institution in this world can escape human limitations. We have had difficulties at times with reference to the choice of men for the Supreme Court of the United States. If you reflect upon the selection of judges for a permanent international court, I am inclined to think that you will find that it would be difficult to suggest a method which in its general features would be more likely to secure a bench of international judges in which confidence could be reposed."

Replies to Critics.

Mr. Hughes took notice of critics who contend that the cleavage between the court and the League of Nations is not marked enough. He pointed out that if a World Court were sought independently of the League some similar organization or plan would have to be set up.

"I think," he observed, "that the real point with some of our friends who oppose the present method of selection is not that the method itself is inherently defective, but that they are opposed to a permanent court altogether. But for many reasons, which I cannot undertake at this time to detail, it has long been the desire and policy of the United States to have a permanent international court."

He again discussed the court and its relationship to the League, adding that what really was of importance was the fact "that when judges have been elected neither they nor their decisions are subject to the control of the League." Mr. Hughes endeavored to clear up misapprehensions concerning the binding effect membership in the court would have on this nation.

"Unless the States which support the court," he said, "have otherwise agreed, resort to the court is not compulsory; they retain the right to refuse to submit their case to the court. In the proposal that the United States should adhere to the protocol of the court, it has not been suggested that the United States should accept a compulsory jurisdiction. If the United States adheres, it can still refuse to submit to the court any particular controversy. The court will not decide a dispute between States unless the parties to the dispute have consented to its submission to the court."

Discusses Law Codification.

Mr. Hughes referred to the codification of international law, which is progressing slowly, and replied briefly to those persons who urged delay in entering the court until the law had been modified and clarified. Such delay, he remarked jestingly, might carry this nation over to the millennium, and "most people doubt whether at such a time it would be necessary."

"Some have said," he said, "that the World Court applies what they call 'League Law.' It goes without saying that as the covenant of the League is a treaty between those who have signed it, it is to be applied like any other treaty to their disputes. But it is binding only upon those who have accepted it. The United States has not. No international court would apply to a State the provisions of a treaty to which it was not a party and to which it had not acceded or adhered. What is called League law is law for the members of the League in the sense that their agreement is obligatory among themselves.

"The fact that the United States is not a member of the League does not alter this in the slightest particular, and whether or not we support the World Court makes no difference in this respect. The court must interpret the agreement between the members of the League fairly, as it must interpret our agreements fairly, if it has occasion to do so. The United States and every other country outside the League is bound only by what it has accepted and the others are bound by what they have accepted.

"Some say that the United States is a country so powerful, so rich, and that there are so many who look at us askance, that it would be unsafe to entrust a decision even of legal questions to a permanent court. If that reasoning were accepted, it might lead to the conclusion that it would not be safe to entrust the decision to any one but ourselves, and we should have the frankness to acknowledge that we intend to maintain our own views at any cost, even if we have to fight for them.

"To my mind, there would be a far greater degree of insecurity in the long run in such a highly objectionable and intransigeant attitude even on the part of a great and powerful nation. Particularly is this so when the great and powerful nation would be weakened in the effort to maintain such a policy by the large number of its citizens who desire peaceful settlements and by the fact that ultimate action must depend upon a Congress affected by this body of opinion.

"This is apart from the international obligation we have deliberately assumed to resort solely to pacific measures. As we have thus given our pledge to have legal controversies settled in a peaceful way, we should candidly admit that we need an international judicial tribunal to determine them."

Paradise for Advocates.

Speaking of the methods pursued by the court in hearing cases, Mr. Hughes called the tribunal "a paradise for advocates." The attorneys can talk as long as they please and without interruption. Mr. Hughes, as an attorney, confessed that he had envied the World Court pleaders. He said that the judges themselves read every document submitted and had constant stenographic service which enabled each to keep constantly abreast of the development of the issues.

The transcript is in English and in French, with the latter language most favored, and the judges during the trials confer frequently. Then at an appropriate time they submit tentative opinions which are exchanges in confidence among the jurists. Mr. Hughes said that he had experienced a thrill in watching how the keen legal minds of the world matched up or differed widely in their conclusions.

"It must not be assumed," he said, "that a judge who is appointed as a national of a particular country to sit in its case will decide in favor of that country. Lord Finlay showed the independence of a judge when he decided against Great Britain. He was a regularly elected judge. But quite apart from any tendency there may be in the case of national judges appointed for a particular case to look favorably upon the contentions of his country, the appointment of such a judge is, I found, of the greatest value in the work of an international tribunal. It greatly aids in disposing of any notion that a case has not been thoroughly considered or has been decided in any way than upon its merits as the majority sees them.

"The judge reads all the tentative opinions of his colleagues. He thus sees how the case has impressed each one of the judges from their individual preliminary statements. He meets with them in consultation and hears every position vigorously and thoroughly presented and discussed. He has the opportunity to present his own views. In his original opinion, in consultations, in criticisms of the draft judgment, at every point, he is heard.

"If the court is against him, he knows why, and it is most probable that he will go back to his country with the message that whatever may be thought of the judgment there was not the slightest question of the sincerity, the independence and the thoroughness of the consideration of the case. If he were not there, if no national of a State which is a party to the dispute were on the court, it would be far easier to give currency to notions of the intrusion of political and partisan considerations.

"In the comprehensive discussions in the consultation room, there is, of course, opportunity for vigor and effectiveness in debate. Judges are not only human in their limitations, but in their aspirations. They desire the respect of their colleagues. They hope for the esteem of the world. There is only one way that they can get either or both, and that is by using all the ability that God has given them, by unremitting industry, by candid expressions. That I have found to be characteristic of the international court.

Defects Only Human.

"Whatever defects it has are those which inhere in all our imperfect human undertakings. They are found in our domestic courts, even in the highest. The one thing that has impressed my mind is this. After sitting alone, with one's own task, endeavoring to reach a conclusion as to the merits of a stubbornly contested dispute, wondering what one's colleagues think of the different points that have been laboriously argued, one cannot but have a feeling of exaltation in reading the preliminary opinions as they come in, and in realizing to what extent the minds of men drawn from many countries move along the same lines of careful reasoning.

"Whether one agreed or not with this or that opinion, one's respect was heightened by the exhibition of intelligent and conscientious application of learning and mastery, of the power of analysis and cogent statement, which are the marks of judicial work of superior excellence. There has always been danger in all tribunals, both domestic and international, whether constituted by arbitral arrangements or otherwise, of the alloy of policy, even of intrigue, of attitudes taken in deference to power rather than to justice.

"I am inclined to think that this sort of influence is much more to be dreaded in international arbitrations, such as it is in most cases practically possible to set up, than in such an organization as the World Court. The way to meet such intrusions is by the earnestness and ability of judges who are not respecters of persons or particular governments but of the law and of justice, by winning the victories of reason in intimate debates, by well considered deliverances which satisfy intelligent opinion. In this way the Supreme Court of the United States, despite all the difficulties that surrounded its early days, has come to be more firmly established in the respect and confidence of our people than any of the other institutions of government."

In moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Hughes for his address, Charles C. Burlingham, president of the association, declared that "It is a matter of regret to the bar and, I believe, to the public in general, that the United States has not adhered to the World Court."

About 500 persons attended, and forty-six radio stations broadcast the address. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Davis.

The National Cotton Exchange, Inc., at 10 Hanover Street, its officers and six firms and individuals trading there, were temporarily enjoined yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Edward Riegelmann, in Brooklyn, from further operations pending decision on a motion for a permanent injunction to be argued on Jan. 27. The temporary injunction was granted on a motion by Deputy State Attorney General Mathew A. Tiffany, of the State Bureau of Securities, at 74 Trinity Place.

Papers were served later on all the defendants by State troopers assigned to the Bureau of Securities. The officers of the exchange are James B. Jordan, president; Lester R. Walls, vice president, and Eugene Williams, secretary-treasurer. Other defendants are Jordan & Co.; Arthur Dargue and Robin Daughtry, partners of Dargue & Co.; Louis Arab and the cotton brokerage concern bearing his name.

Mr. Tiffany's affidavit charged that the exchange and the firms of Jordan & Co. and Louis Arab were insolvent. He asked for a receiver for each. Dargue testified his firm was solvent and able to meet all its obligations.

There are eighty-two members of the exchange, the last memberships having sold for $1,000 each. It is equipped with a traders' railing and a "big board." In his affidavit, however, Mr. Tiffany said the defendants were not actually buying and selling cotton and cotton futures, as represented, but were dealing only in quotations from a ticker on the exchange floor. The transactions, he alleged, were merely exchanges of "buy and sell" slips between members who had orders from the trading public, and Arab, who acted as broker on the floor.

F. Oliver Levy, an attorney at 217 Broadway, said, as counsel for the exchange, that the effect of Justice Riegelmann's temporary order was "nothing," that the transactions enjoined were entirely fictitious and that no illegal transactions had taken place in the exchange. All of its members are solvent, according to Mr. Levy, who declared that the action by the State Attorney General's office had been due to a "wrangle" between two members of the firm of Robin Fowler & Co. This firm, a member of the exchange, recently was enjoined.

Member Said to Handle All Trades.

In a statement issued by the Bureau of Securities, it was said that, according to testimony by various defendants, taken at hearings before Mr. Tiffany and Assistant State Attorney General Watson Washburn, head of the bureau, all orders received from the public were transmitted to the floor of the Exchange, where Arab took a position opposite to the customers. The statement alleged that when Arab received an order he consulted the ticker and then sold to the broker at a price several points higher than the ticker quotation.

Mr. Tiffany said Arab admitted under oath that, when no quotations were coming over at the time the order was received he telephoned a member of the New York Cotton Exchange for prices and, at the close of trading, covered his position with the firm, Jenkins & Ryan, at 82 Beaver Street.

According to the Bureau of Securities, Jenkins & Ryan are not members of any exchange. The statement from there said that Sophie Goldberg, bookkeeper for that firm, testified that most of the items of assets on the books were not collectable and the firm was insolvent. Mr. Tiffany said his investigation had diclosed that the books of Louis Arab's firm were kept by Robin Fowler & Co. Milton Seymour Cohn, attorney for Robin Fowler & Co., told the Bureau of Securities investigators that he had obtained the New York State charter for the Exchange, Mr. Tiffany said.

DR. MOREHEAD RESIGNS.

The Rev. Dr. John A. Morehead resigned yesterday as executive director of the National Lutheran Council at the convention of that body in the Hotel Vanderbilt. He had held the office for seven years.

Dr. Morehead said that he was giving up his posts to devote all his time to his duties as President of the Lutheran World Convention. The Lutheran World Convention represents 81,000,000 of that faith in various countries and is the largest organization of Protestants in the world. It was formed four years ago as an outgrowth of the National Lutheran Council's relief work in foreign countries after the war.

The Rev. Dr. G. A. Brandell of Rock Island, Ill., president of the council, expressed regret at the loss of Dr. Morehead's leadership, but said it was a pleasure that the council was permitted to contribute its highest officer to the larger movement.

A telegram to Dr. Morehead from President Hoover, extending greetings to the council, was read at the convention. President Hoover and Dr. Morehead were associated in relief work in the World War.

SENATE BARS RISE IN DUTIES ON SUGAR

The Democrats who opposed the Harrison amendment were Senators Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana, the principal sugar cane producing State of the country, and King of Utah and Kendrick of Wyoming, representing sugar beet growing constituencies.

Three Progressives, Senators Howell of Nebraska and Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, voted against the amendment.

Just before the roll-call, Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, reproached Senators who voted against the export debenture plan of farm relief incorporated in the tariff bill and who were now appearing in the rôle of advocates of higher rates on sugar.

"I want to call the attention of the Senate to the fact," he said, "and especially the attention of the Progressives, as they call themselves, that when we had a fight on behalf of all agriculture for the debenture plan the leading proponents of the sugar duty were not among the ranks of those who proposed to aid agriculture."

He denied that sugar tariffs benefited the domestic industry, and warned the Progressives not to delude themselves into the belief that either the Congressional flexible tariff plan or the debenture proposal as adopted by the Senate would be retained in the bill as it goes to the White House.

"Let me suggest to my Progressive friends, you of the wild jackass species," he said, "do not let these Regulars, when the vote comes, put the halter on you. I am poking no jibes at you. As long as the wild jackass is unroped and unmuzzled, as long as he is out on the range, he is a free being, but if you let the stand-pat Republicans at this time once get the halter on you, if you surrender your necks to the yoke, you are going to be in bondage throughout the rest of the consideration of this bill, because this is going to be the only real farm relief that the Regulars are going to put into this bill."

Action on Bounty Plan Deferred.

Senator Howell moved an amendment providing for a bounty of .44 cent a pound on sugar produced in continental United States, 90 per cent to go to the cane and beet growers and 10 per cent to the refiner. Action on it was postponed until tomorrow. The bounty would entail an expenditure of $10,600,000 a year, to be provided for by the sale of certificates receivable in payment of customs duties.

Paragraph 504 of the Senate bill levying a duty of $2 a ton on cane sugar in its natural state, instead of $3 a ton as provided by the House, and paragraph 506 providing a duty of 40 per cent ad valorem on sugar candy and all confectionery not especially provided for were adopted.

On motion of Senator Smoot, the Finance Committee chairman, an amendment providing a duty of 8 cents a pound on maple sugar and 5½ cents a pound on maple syrup, as compared with the committee proposals of 9 and 6 cents a pound, respectively, and the House rates of 7½ and 5 cents a pound were voted. Present rates are 4 cents a pound on both items. Mr. Smoot insisted that the increases were necessary as protection against imports from Canada, which he said, paid a bounty on the Dominion product.

Senator Harrison said that he would not oppose the increases, but that he would ask for reconsideration if Mr. Smoot found that he was in error in his assertion that Canada paid a bounty on maple sugar.

With the expection of a provision in Paragraph 502 imposing a duty of .03 cent a pound on blackstrap molasses, which will have consideration when the bill is taken up for individual amendments, the Senate practically completed consideration of the sugar schedule and proceeded to the consideration of the paper and books schedule, the last remaining before the "sundries," containing the controversial boots, shoes and hides rates, and the free list are reached.

The Senate approved retention of existing rates on wallpaper and filtering paper, against increases voted by the House, and increased the duties on delcalcomanias in ceramic colors above present rates but below the House rise. A 20 per cent duty was put on plain cover paper, against 30 per cent by the House and ¼ cent and 10 per cent at present.

Senate Toasted at Cuban Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Cuban Embassy was the scene of enthusiasm today when officials there were informed that the Senate had voted to retain the present duties on sugar. Ambassador Ferrara said he regarded the vote as favorable to the island republic.

"I believe that the vote of the Senate is the first step toward more intimate commercial relations between the United States and Cuba," he said. "I remember always the words of Elihu Root that the wealth of the United States is the wealth of Cuba.

"If, politically, the United States and Cuba are two separate entities, because that is the will of the American and Cuban people, economically they are united by the same interests."

Havana Awaits Final Action.

HAVANA, Jan. 16 (AP).—Retention by the United States Senate of existing tariffs on Cuban sugar caused much elation in island business circles today, but some of the leaders warned that the bill must still go through a conference process between the Senate and House of Representatives, although they expressed optimism as to the outcome.

Henry S. Brandt, executive secretary of the National Mill Owners' Association of Cuba, said that maintenance of present schedules would mean that the Cuban sugar industry would not be stifled.

CHARGES LOBBYING BY PEACE WORKERS

Mrs. C. F. Winters, a Spectator at the Senate Inquiry, Demands an Investigation.

MORE IMPORTERS HEARD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Seven witnesses were heard today by the Senate Lobby Committee, which is investigating the low tariff activities of importers, in a session enlivened at adjournment time by a demand that the Conference on the Cause and Cure of Wars be investigated.

Senator Robinson, Republican, of Indiana, was the only member of the committee present when Mrs. Charles Fuller Winters, president of the American Federation of Industrial Women, who had been a spectator, hurried up to the Senator and demanded that the committee "investigate these 250 peace doves who are thronging the corridors of the Senate, button-holing people."

"You investigated William B. Shearer when he was working for a navy large enough for us," she told the surprised Senator, "and if you don't investigate this organization, I will."

Senator Robinson informed Mrs. Winters that her suggestion must be laid formally before the committee as a whole.

Newspaper Man a Witness.

Frank K. Boal, correspondent for The Harrisburg Telegraph, was called as a witness by Senator Robinson in an effort to show that E. R. Pickrell, a customs expert, was adviser of Senator King, Democrat, of Utah.

Mr. Boal said he had been informed that Senator King's office was the place to find Mr. Pickrell. While working for The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, last September, he said, he called the Senator's office, talked with Mr. Pickrell, and made an afternoon appointment for that place. Another assignment interfering with this appointment, he said, he went to see Mr. Pickrell at 4 P. M. on the day he telephoned to ask for a postponement of the engagement, and found Mr. Pickrell dictating.

The appointment was made again for 10:45 A. M. the next day, Mr. Boal continued, but when he called Mr. Pickrell had returned to New York. Mr. Pickrell previously had testified that he had not avoided this appointment, but, not knowing the correspondent's name, had not been able to write him an explanation.

Witnesses connected with the National Council of Importers and Traders told of their aid in the organization's efforts to retain foreign valuation of imports in the proposed tariff bill.

Tells of Importers' Funds.

Harvey O. Lloyd, manager of the foreign department of Julius Kayser & Co., 353 Fifth Avenue, New York, and treasurer of the council, verified previous testimony by Peter Fletcher, its president, that the council had raised $20,217 especially for the tariff fight in 1929, spending all but $1,300. He said he had appeared a few times in Washington, both for the council and for his firm.

"Of the $1,300 remaining in the fund," he testified, "we are using about $500 while appearing here to testify."

Otto Fix, customs manager of George Borgfeldt & Co., 11 East Sixteenth Street, New York, said he visited Washington about ten times last year in connection with proposed toy rates. He had opposed the phraseology in the pending bill which would raise some rates, despite the apparent intention of the bill's framers not to do so.

C. T. Ryotte, president of the Chelsea Sales Corporation, 105 Fifth Avenue, and chairman of the customs committee of the council, testified that like others among the witnesses he once had worked in the government customs service. He left it in 1918, after 22 years' service, "because, you may recall, in 1914 the purchasing value of the dollar went down." His explanation caused much nodding of agreement among his fellow witnesses.

A report of a meeting of the board of directors of the association at the Hotel Astor, New York, last May, which noted that Mr. Ryotte had given "confidential" statements of his activities in Washington caused Senator Robinson to fire questions at him, but the witness maintained that nothing he said had been confidential, and that the description was not his own.

Customs Attorney Tells of Fees.

J. W. Bevans, a customs attorney and adviser of the council, told of receiving $9,973 from his various clients for appearing in Washington and for conferences, briefs and maintenance expenses. Of this sum, $1,781 was paid by the council, including $125 a day, as fees for his trips to Washington. The wool and clothing importers paid him $1,300, he added, and the rest was made up by numerous smaller clients, principally in fees for preparing briefs.

Frank J. Nolan, chairman of the wool fabrics group of the council, comprising about eight firms, said he had made twelve or fifteen visits to Washington on their behalf, spending about $1,400 of a $1,550 fund raised by the group in addition to its contributions to the council fund.

An error of identity caused David Walker of Morimura Brothers, 53 West Twenty-third Street, New York, to be called as a witness. He had been known as chairman of the "original group" of the association, but he denied this, as well as knowledge of any such group. However, he said, he visited Washington six or seven times last year, mostly on behalf of his firm, but once for the council.

PLAN HALL OF FAME FOR BUSINESS MEN

Hundred Years Club Will Honor Early Leaders in City's Industries.

TO AWARD GOLD MEDAL

It Will Go Annually to Man or Woman Who Does Most for Commercial Development.

Plans for perpetuating the memory of the men who, a century ago, laid the foundations for New York's business prestige, in a permanent Business Hall of Fame are now being considered by the Hundred Years Club, it was disclosed last night at the second annual dinner of that organization in the Hotel Savoy-Plaza. The club is composed of representatives of concerns that have been doing business in New York for more than 100 years.

At the same time it was announced that, beginning next year, the Hundred Years Club will award a gold medal annually to the man or woman who contributes most to the industrial development of the city. A special committee will be appointed, it was said, to select candidates for the award and decide upon the person entitled to it.

A. R. Sharton, publisher of the Journal of Commerce, reviewed the outstanding achievements in business in New York in the last century. Among those he cited were: the establishment of The Associated Press in 1848; the installation of the first elevator at 205 Cherry Street in 1850; the authorization of the Central Park project in 1858; the purchase of the first seat on the Stock Exchange for $450 in 1861; the running of the first train from New York to San Francisco in 1878; the opening to traffic of the Brooklyn Bridge in 1883; and the operation of electric street cars for the first time in 1887.

Isaac Liberman, president of Arnold Constable & Co., a founder of the Hundred Years Club, announced the organization's plans for a Business Hall of Fame and an annual gold medal award.

"The men who, a century ago, laid the foundation of New York's great business prestige," Mr. Liberman said, "have thus far received scant if any recognition. I am happy therefore to announce that steps will be taken shortly by the club to create a hall of Fame for the business pioneers of New York."

Questioned later about his plans for the Hall of Fame, Mr. Liberman said that it would be somewhat on the order of the Hall of Fame in New York University. Beyond that, he said, nothing has been decided as yet.

The following officers were elected:

ISAAC LIBERMAN, honorary president.
CHARLES C. PAULDING, president.
A. R. SHARTON, first vice president.
WILLIAM SCHIEFFELIN JR., second vice president.
HOWARD M. COWPERTHWAIT, treasurer.
JORDAN L. MOTT 3d, secretary.
LOUIS POPKIN, assistant secretary.

FRANKLIN IS HAILED AS GREATEST AMERICAN

J. Henry Smythe Jr. Opens Anniversary Ceremonies at Park Row Statue.

Characterizing Benjamin Franklin as the greatest of all Americans, J. Henry Smythe Jr., founder of Franklin Day, opened the annual ceremonies yesterday afternoon at the foot of his statue in Park Row in connection with the 224th anniversary of Franklin's birth. Wreaths were placed at the foot of the monument by Mrs. Alton B. Parker, representing the Daughters of the American Revolution; W. Espey Albig, for the Sons of the American Revolution; Luther Martin, for the University of Pennsylvania Club, and Benjamin Franklin Affleck, on behalf of the Benjamin Franklins.

The principal accomplishments of Franklin, whose birthday is today, were told by Mr. Albig. He referred to the dead statesman as a philanthropist and diplomat, who never sought any share of worldly goods, but who devoted his life to the interests of his country. "To Franklin we owe the first insurance company, the first college and many other institutions which have been largely responsible for the progress of American citizens, and the success of the nation," he said.

Prayers were offered by Rev. John K. Bodel, corps area chaplain at Governors Island. The benediction was given by the Rev. Dr. Benjamin Franklin Farber, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church. Color Guards were present from the army and navy.

Asks Women's Citizenship Treaty.

The Zonta Club of New York yesterday made public a letter to President Hoover urging that he instruct American delegates to the World Conference on the Codification of International Law at The Hague next March to vote for a world nationality treaty. This treaty would give married women the right to keep their own nationalities.

DRAMATISTS MOVE TO AID TICKET PLAN

ALSO ACTS ON FILM RIGHTS

Warning Sent to Picture Producers Who Seek Screen Privileges Before Plays Reach Stage.

A definite plan for supporting the theatre managers' committee in its efforts to abolish ticket speculation is being worked out by the Dramatists' Guild of the Authors' League, it was announced yesterday after a meeting of the League Council. The plan, according to William Childs Carpenter, president of the Dramatists' Guild, is being framed in cooperation with the managers.

At the same time Mr. Carpenter said that the Dramatists' Guild would protect its members from what it considered encroachment on their rights by motion picture producers who were seeking to obtain control of screen rights to plays before stage presentation rather than bidding for such plays in the open market after presentation as at present.

Mr. Carpenter made the following statement after the council meeting yesterday:

"The council of the Dramatists' Guild has adopted a resolution heartily supporting the proposal made by the theatre managers and outlined by Brock Pemberton for reformation in the method of handling the ticket sales, and is now engaged on a plan in conjunction with the managers which will eventuate in the guild lending the managers definite, practical support.

"The council has had its attention called to the fact that certain motion picture companies which have been financing the production of stage plays are now insisting that such financing shall be contingent upon acquiring the screen rights to those plays in advance of their presentation in the theatre. Furthermore they are proposing to dictate to the authors and managers various terms which heretofore have been considered so inequitable that the managers themselves set up protection against them in the Dramatists' Guild's basic agreement.

"It is the intention of the guild to protect its members against any and all such encroachment upon their rights, and a general warning is being sent out to this effect to all those interested."

The council meeting yesterday was attended by the following:

W. C. Carpenter
George S. Kaufman
Bayard Veiller
Rita Weiman
Elmer Rice
Robert E. Sherwood
William C. Duncan
Arthur Richman

F. D. WINSTON DROPS HIS $3,750,000 SUIT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 16.—On motion of Isidore Glauberman of Union City, counsel for the plaintiffs, Federal Judge Avis dismissed today the suit for $3,750,000 brought against the New Jersey Bankers Securities Company, the Capital Securities Company of Newark and several individuals by Frank D. Winston of New York, acting for himself and other stockholders of the Bankers Securities Company.

Individuals named as defendants were John J. Stamler, Abraham Jelin, Charles Veghts, Solomon Bernstein, Samuel F. Leber and Meyer Rubach.

Mr. Winston charged that the defendants had conspired to ruin his company and bring about a change of control. Mr. Glauberman, in asking that the suit be dismissed, said that the stockholders were working on reorganization plans.

Julius C. Nirenstein also of counsel for Winston, announced in open court that he withdrew all the charges and would cooperate with the defendants to relieve them of any unfortunate publicity that had arisen. Legal action in the future, he said, would be handled by any future board of directors.

Mr. Glauberman said that at a meeting Tuesday night of stockholders it was decided to continue the New Jersey Bankers Securities Company. Only 300 shares, he said, out of 142,000 shares, voted for liquidation. He added that there would be another meeting tonight at which eighteen men would be nominated for the board of directors. Of that number seven or nine would be elected. Edward I. Edwards former United States Senator, and Bernard L. Stafford, former Assistant Prosecutor of Passaic County, will resign as directors when the new board is inducted, he said.

QUESTIONS CRUISER'S VISIT.

Brazilian Paper Asks Why American Ship Is Calling on Election Day.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Opposition newspaper Esquerda, in an editorial today, asked why the U. S. S. Salt Lake City was to visit Rio de Janeiro on March 1, which is election day in Brazil, as well as the opening date for the yearly carnival.

The writer suggested that, though it was possible the crew wanted to attend the carnival, there was a question to be put, "Does the American Government need to guarantee the interests of its candidates on election day?"

Will you send Your Son to College . . . after reading this?

FROM the Dean of one of our first universities comes the most scathing indictment of modern college education ever handed up to the American public!

Dean Berry has watched students troop in and out of Johns Hopkins classrooms for nearly a generation—and now he frankly tells fathers and mothers just what their sons will get—or won't—out of the costly college years.

"What the ordinary college curriculum today represents," he says, "is simply the accumulated debris of the past three or four hundred years of hit-or-miss instruction. Some of it is plainly superfluous and some of it should be dismissed immediately as the merest flubdub and flapdoodle. In some of our most popular universities undergraduates are simply products of stuffing machines, and the degree of A. B. becomes a mere label—a standard bonded label on a bootleg bottle."

A stirring, disturbing article no American parent can afford to miss—"How Colleges Rob Men of Priceless Years!"—as seen by Dean Edward W. Berry of Johns Hopkins University.

DEAN EDWARD WILBER BERRY, of the College of Arts and Sciences of Johns Hopkins University, never went to college himself—yet he has become a notable leader in academic life. His startling appraisal of much so-called "education" will be one of the most widely discussed articles that has appeared in years!

Rockefeller, Ford, Mellon . . .

They'd like to have your chance today. Here Dr. Julius Klein (left), authority on national and international trade, proves Andrew Mellon's statement that business opportunities for young men are much greater now than they have ever been in the past. An article no young man can afford to miss.

THIRTEEN leading advertisers* recently asked a cross section of America's families these questions: (1) how do you buy? (2) what magazine do you enjoy most?

Each advertiser investigated independently—but each got the same major results. Of 8,727 replies, 64% said: "Family buying is done after two or more members of the family give advice and opinions." And an overwhelming majority of the replies said that The American Magazine was the favorite with all the members of the family. It led the second-choice magazine by more than 5 to 1.

GOVERNOR RENEWS BOND ISSUE DEMAND

DEFENDS RISE IN BUDGET

In Bond Club Talk, He Challenges Critics to Tell Where Money Could Be Saved Wisely.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt called upon the Legislature yesterday to authorize a new bond issue at the present session as the best means of solving the financial problems which will confront the State Government in another year. Unless the bond issue is submitted to the voters next Fall, he declared, heavier taxes must be imposed or some of the State's work eliminated.

Speaking at a luncheon given in his honor by the Bond Club at the Bankers Club, the Governor defended the $46,000,000 rise in the new budget as necessary to maintain the established pace of State governmental functions and criticized the failure of the Legislature to allow him to put through the bond issue last year.

While there would be a $60,000,000 surplus in the State treasury on July 1, he said, the fact that the expenditures under the augmented budget must be met from current revenues instead of from bonded funds would leave the State with only a $10,000,000 surplus at the end of the next fiscal year. The budget for the following year, he said, must again be increased and the State then would face a deficit unless the bond issue were voted to provide funds for carrying on the governmental program.

Holds Bond Issue Essential.

The demand for the new bond issue was a renewal of statements made in his annual message to the Legislature earlier this year when he sketched briefly his proposal for meeting the financial problem. Yesterday's call to the Legislature was a more fully documented plea, with detailed figures based on the new budget statistics.

If the bond issue, which he favored but later compromised upon, had been allowed to go through last year, the Governor said, the State would have been in a position where it could have at least considered the possibility of "some slight reduction in the income tax on the same basis as the reduction that has been given by the Federal Government." Instead of this, he said, with the bond issue refused, the State faced a definite financial problem.

Defends Budget Increase.

In justification of the $46,000,000 increase in the budget, which brings the total to $311,000,000, the largest in the history of the State, the Governor traced the growth of State functions such as aid to the ill, injured and mentally deranged, the construction of many new highways, the larger building programs and the greatly increased assistance to education.

For educational aid provided by the State, he pointed out, the total this year has reached $100,000,000, or nearly one-third of all State expenditures. It would be increased next year according to law, he said. Included among the other major items in the budget increase, he pointed out, is $22,000,000 for the State construction activities.

The Governor asserted that he was in "hearty accord at all times with the suggestion of the President that this was a mighty good time to do all the construction work that we possibly can." Such an increase in construction expenditures, he said, was but "a very reasonable answer to make to the suggestions of the Federal Government that we should do all we possibly can to speed up business."

The Governor said that expenditures in the new budget would use up all current revenues and about $50,000,000 of the surplus, leaving for the following year only a $10,000,000 surplus, with an even larger budget in the offing. If, he said, the Legislature had followed his advice last year and provided for a $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 bond issue, this prospective shortage would have been averted. Too much politics had been mixed with State finances, he asserted.

Asks Where Cuts Are Possible.

Let the persons assailing the rise in the budget point out where savings could be made, the Governor demanded. He asked whether they wanted cuts in the education quota, in the highway quota, in the construction quota or just where the money should be saved.

"How can we save money? That is the problem," he said. "And the simple answer is that we can't unless we put the State out of certain occupations, certain operations which it is now conducting.

"Now, that leaves us squarely up against the problem a year from now of running a government that will cost somewhere around $325,000,000 at that time, and only having current revenues of about $260,000,000 or $270,000,000 to meet the bills. The bills have to be met, but out of that $325,000,000, call it, for the following year, there will be at least $50,000,000 of construction put into bricks, mortar and steel that will last 75 or 100 years, and we might just as well admit now that the problem of government can only be solved in one legitimate business way, and that is for the State to bond itself.

"And let me say right here that although this State is the largest State in population, far the largest State in wealth and one of the larger States in territory, the State debt on a per capita basis is exceeded by three-quarters of the other States of the Union. We have a very low State debt for a Commonwealth of this size, a total of approximately $200,000,000, which for this State is, frankly, a drop in the bucket.

"Now, the water has gone over the dam for one year, and unless we take action this year and get the Legislature to pass an act for a bond issue, which must be submitted to the voters next Fall before it is any good, before we can issue the bonds under it, unless the Legislature does that, we will have to face a year from now the imposition of either new taxes or heavier existing taxes, or else cut out some of the work of the State."

SYME ACCUSES H. J. LYNCH.

Charges Brief of Former Justice Contains False Allegations.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Charges that Humphrey J. Lynch, former Supreme Court Justice, included false allegations and misrepresentations in a brief supporting his motion to inspect the grand jury minutes were made by Special Deputy Attorney General Sydney A. Syme in a brief filed here today in opposing the Lynch motion.

Mr. Lynch represents A. H. Atwood, L. Ward Prince and Charles Fenno, who were indicted with Frank T. Bailey on charges of aiding and abetting Supervisor Howard R. Washburn in the commission of misdemeanors. The controversy hinges upon the statements attributed to Benjamin A. Seigel, stenographer at Samuel Untermyer's hearings last Summer.

Mr. Lynch alleged on information supplied by Mr. Seigel that unsworn testimony of all the witnesses before Mr. Untermyer had been permitted to enter the grand jury room, while Mr. Syme presented an affidavit from Mr. Seigel to the effect that he never made any such statement.

It is expected that Justice Philip J. McCook will rule tomorrow on the demurrers of Lee Parsons Davis, former District Attorney, against the indictment of Bailey and Washburn and the motion of Mr. Lynch to review the minutes of the grand jury in behalf of his clients.

REPUBLICANS DUE TO ACCEPT BUDGET

But Leaders Fear Political Effect if It Should Be Further Boosted Next Year.

PARTY MIGHT BE BLAMED

So Roosevelt's Bond Issue May Be Supported to Avert Rise in Budget.

By W. A. WARN.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16—Political considerations will play a large part in determining the course of the Republican legislative majority on Gov. Roosevelt's proposed bond issue. And chief among these considerations is the fear that unless the bonds are authorized, the state budget will necessarily take a jump next year to $350,000,000 and the net effect will be unfavorable to the party, jeopardizing its chances of electing a governor at the next election.

It is thought likely, therefore, that to avert a big jump in the budget next year the Republican fiscal leaders of the Legislature will be found willing when the time comes to fall in line with Governor Roosevelt's demand for a sizable bond issue to meet the cost of prison and hospital construction to which the State is already committed and which will call for an outlay of about $50,000,000.

"Pity the next Governor" is frequently heard about the Capitol corridors when the financial outlook is being discussed. The prospect that the condition of the State revenues in the near future will not bring into the State treasury the huge surplus which has allowed Governor Roosevelt to balance his record budget for the next fiscal year is giving anxiety to both Republicans and Democrats in the Legislature. The Democrats feel that they are justified in their hopes that Governor Roosevelt will be re-elected. The Republicans have at least a will to win at the coming State election.

Clamor for Expansion.

There has been a hope held out that once the State completes its new plant, the expenditures of the State government will be less burdensome to the taxpayer. But as the fiscal leaders of the Legislature view the outlook, only a firm determination to inaugurate an era of retrenchment in the face of the growing public clamor for an expansion of the State's paternalistic activities into new fields could bring that about.

Few governors with political ambition and few Legislatures with members anxious to be re-elected have the courage to resist a public demand for old age pensions and other welfare measures that cost money. Governor Nathan L. Miller took his political future into his hands to do that very thing and he was defeated.

The Governor's annual budget bill is now in the hands of the two fiscal committees of the Legislature who expect to report that measure for the consideration of the Senate and Assembly about Feb. 15, an even month after its introduction. It was stated today that there is no intention of laying violent hands on the Governor's recommendations, but that the bill will come back in an amended form, nevertheless, appears certain.

Favoritism Is Charged.

The "rule of thumb" method said to have been applied by the Democratic Governor in trimming down the demands of the department heads, aggregating more than $351,000,000 to the $11,000,000 that was the footing of the budget bill probably will come in for close scrutiny by the Republican heads of the fiscal committees of the Legislature.

Processes of equalization, it was indicated by Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, in all likelihood, will result if conclusion incidentally is reached that there has been discrimination or favoritism shown by the Chief Executive in demanding pruning of estimates by the department heads.

A cursory comparison between departmental demands and the Governor's allowances is said to have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Republican leaders that half a dozen departments, headed by men of his own party, have been favored at the expense of others.

"What we have in mind would be doing justice for one thing and it would also be good politics," Mr. Hutchins said.

The comment on Governor Roosevelt's budget message was not flattering. While it was admitted that the form of the message complied with the rules laid down by statute and the bill that accompanied it was in every way regular from a statutory viewpoint, the grouping of the expenditures along lines said to have been originated by the Chief Executives was assailed.

"The grouping adopted by the Governor" Chairman Hutchinson said, "was an amusing device to create a favorable impression, whereas in fact, the Governor probably felt that an apology was due for the size of his budget."

Emergency Bills Signed.

Governor Roosevelt has signed all the emergency fiscal bills passed by the Legislature last week. They include measures validating acts by the building sites commission pronounced illegal in the Court of Appeals decision on the executive budget. One of the approved bills makes an appropriation of $315,000 for the immediate construction of prison cantonments to relieve congestion at the established penal institutions of the State.

Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, State superintendent of public works, last Monday issued a peremptory order to his deputies and engineers that these cantonments, five in number, must be completed and ready for occupancy within four weeks.

One of these cantonments will be located adjacent to the site of the new State prison at Attica where 100 prisoners will be employed in grading work. One will be at Whiteface Mountain, where the State is building a road to the summit, one will accommodate a highway gang, one will be located at a State quarry not far from Syracuse, where a stone crusher is being operated and the fifth in the forest preserve, where the prisoners will be employed at making "breaks" to facilitate the fighting of forest fires.

SCORES FRENCH TEXTBOOKS

Prof. Hayes Says They Distort History to Glorify France.

Elementary school textbooks in France are excessively nationalist in spirit, stressing the need for military preparedness, unrestrained indictment of Germany, and contain extravagant praise of France itself, Professor Carleton J. H. Hayes of Columbia University says in a study which has just been published by that institution's press.

Mr. Hayes finds serious omissions in the textbooks, saying that they "make it difficult for the French youth to be critical of French institutions or conduct, or to know of any service rendered to the world by modern foreign nations.

"The majority of readers and texts of modern history used in the elementary primary schools," he writes, "hold Germany, and Germany only, responsible for the great war. They discuss previous aggressions of Germany against France and they do not speak of any aggression ever committed by France; they picture Germany as 'barbarous,' 'warlike,' and 'brutal,' and France as 'great,' 'pacific,' 'just,' and 'generous.'"

URGES MOVING BOYS FROM ADULT PRISON

State Commission Repeats Its Recommendation in Lauding Westchester Institution.

HOSPITAL UNIT PRAISED

Yard Is Sought for Feeble-Minded Prisoners Where They Can Be Sent for Observation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—In a report covering an inspection of the Westchester County penitentiary at East View, the State Commission of Correction today recommended a careful study of boys under 21 who are committed to that institution. During the past year fifty-three boys ranging from 16 to 20 years of age were sent to the penitentiary for various offenses.

"A special study should be made of the class of boys under 21 years of age received at this institution as well as the causes of their delinquency," the report said. "There has been much discussion in recent times of the undesirability of placing young boys in the same institution with older prisoners charged with all types of crimes.

"The suggestion was made in last year's report that it might be a better policy to send this class of boys, if their offenses warrant, to the New York State Reformatory at Elmira, and this is repeated here. The fact that nearly 50 per cent of all prisoners received here are first offenders is worthy of serious attention as to the reformative measures to be taken up with this class."

After pointing out that the county is now building a psychopathic unit in connection with Grasslands Hospital, the report added:

"It is strongly recommended upon the county officials that a prison yard be provided in this unit where men from the penitentiary can be sent for observation and examination. It is quite certain that among the group found here are many low-grade feeble-minded, particularly among the recidivists, of whom there are many. A great number have been returned here three, four and five times, and one man has been here sixteen times."

"The county of Westchester," the report concludes, "is to be highly commended upon this fine institution where men are provided with plenty of work, decent quarters, good food and a chance to re-establish themselves before returning to society, and with all, a county penal institution which is self-supporting."

PROSECUTION CLOSES CITY TRUST CASE

Witnesses Testify That Labate Maintained a Dummy Account in the Bank.

The defense will open its cases today in the trial of Louis Tavormina and J. Vincent Labate, former officials of the City Trust Company, who are being tried before Supreme Court Justice Mullan and a jury in Brooklyn for grand larceny in connection with the company's failure.

The State rested yesterday after witnesses testified that Labate maintained a "dummy" account under the name of "L. Caridi," which was used, the prosecution contends, to cover his peculations. Albert C. Osborne, a handwriting expert, testified that the writing on the deposit slips for the Caridi account was that of Labate. The State attempted to show that Labate deposited in that account some of the proceeds from the $11,545 check which he and Tavormina are specifically charged with cashing and diverting to their own uses.

Other witnesses, whose testimony was directed against the contention of the defense that the proceeds of the check were used to buy fixtures for the bank, were Luigi Fezzarotti, and Frank Tiernan. Fezzarotti, a former clerk, testified that the Atlantic State Bank carried a furniture account inventory of $29,915 between October, 1926, and February, 1927, and that the only furniture bought of which he had any knowledge consisted of two lots, one costing $486 and another costing $407. Tiernan, who was affiliated with one of the firms which supplied the furniture, corroborated a part of Fezzarotti's testimony.

out of current annual revenues or to issue State bonds for this purpose. Under its original treaty and charter the Port Authority is a joint State agency which can finance either bridges or tunnels without additional burdens on the budgets or bonded indebtedness of the two State governments. In other words, the mechanics of the present Port Authority plan will allow the building of future tunnels and bridges under and across the Hudson River in a practical way which is readily accepted by the bankers and investors of both States.

"Two other brief points in favor of a wedding between the two bodies: First, there will be an undoubted saving in overhead — an important consideration from the point of view of the public. Secondly, there will be a removal of confusion or unnecessary friction and of unseemly rivalry between two bodies which should be striving wholly for cooperation and for a common objective.

"I hope that within the coming year the two States will make definite and distinct progress along these lines. We are proud of the commissioners of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission and we are proud of the members of the Port Authority. We take pride in the splendid engineering staffs and the excellent plans which both bodies have drawn. Now is the time to use practical business sense and get something done by mutual effort, and it is my judgment that this can best be accomplished by bringing about a joinder of the two bodies, using all that is good in each body and working toward a common end.

"If, in this generation, we can accomplish this ideal, we shall have returned to the sound economic and social structure which the founders of New Amsterdam established at the mouth of the Hudson River three centuries ago. They were right in their plans and their hopes. We can do well by carrying out the principles which they first enunciated."

PATROLMAN WOUNDS MAN IN STRIKE ROW

One of a group of fifteen or twenty striking clerks and their sympathizers was wounded by a patrolman whom they attacked about 7 o'clock last night at 161st Street and Union Avenue, the Bronx. A detective who came to the patrolman's assistance suffered a cut over the eye in the fracas.

The wounded man is A. Steve Cotovan, 40 years old, of 2,700 Bronx Park Avenue East, who was held a prisoner, charged with felonious assault, in the Lincoln Hospital, where he was taken for treatment for a bullet wound in the back. Patrolman Harry Kiritz of the Morrisania station, who wounded him, believed he had also wounded another man, but no such casualty was reported.

Kiritz was patrolling a neighborhood in which attempts are being made to unionize the clerks employed in fruit and vegetable stores, many of whom are out on strike to enforce their demands. Some of the strikers and their sympathizers who had congregated at the corner of Union Avenue and 161st Street became incensed when Kiritz ordered them to disperse.

The group, in which there were four women, jumped on the patrolman, took his night stick away from him and threatened him. Kiritz fired his pistol into the air to frighten them off. Detective Donald Carey, also of the Morrisania station, hearing the shot, came to the patrolman's assistance. Kiritz fired three shots, one of which struck Cotovan, and the crowd fled. Carey received a blow on the face, suffering a cut over the left eye.

ASKS LEGISLATURE FOR POWER HEARING

Merwen K. Hart Wants Both Houses to Hold Public Inquiry on Bill.

WOULD BROADEN ITS SCOPE

Holds Commission Should Study Feasibility of Private as Well as Public Operation.

A request that both houses of the State Legislature hold a public hearing on the proposed water power bill which Governor Roosevelt accepted Tuesday was sent to the leaders of the two houses yesterday by Merwin K. Hart, chairman of the Committee of Twenty-five of the New York State-Wide Congress. The bill would authorize the Governor to appoint a committee to study the feasibility of State development of St. Lawrence sites.

Governor Roosevelt has indicated that he will seek to arrange a hearing on the Republican bill before the legislative committees on public service. The Republican leaders already have agreed to make any reasonable amendments to the bill, according to reports from Albany. Among those mentioned for members of the commission to study the measure are former Governor Smith, Charles E. Hughes and Owen D. Young.

Mr. Hart explained yesterday that his committee was not committed to either State or private development of the St. Lawrence River project, but thought that the two methods should receive equal consideration. He said he believed that the State would not be satisfied to "jump to any conclusions on either side." Mr. Hart recalled several industries which had located elsewhere to avoid the "heavy" taxation in New York State. His telegram to the Legislature leaders follows:

"A reading of the power bill as set forth in yesterday's papers would indicate that in effect the political factors are being chiefly considered, and are likely to be considered, under the proposed plan.

"With industry in a difficult situation in New York today, with the people of the State carrying a heavy and growing burden of taxation, this will not do. The question must be lifted from the level of political strategy to the plane of statesmanship.

"The committee of Twenty-five is not committed either in favor of State development and operation, or against State development and operation of St. Lawrence or other power. We are committed, however, to a fair and an immediate consideration of the power problem upon its economic merits.

"It would seem, in order that this question may be so considered, that the bill should be amended to insure, first, that the commission shall give equal consideration both to private and public development and operation, without prejudice to either policy; and second, that the Governor shall appoint to the commission only persons who are not

"As chairman of the Committee of Twenty-five, I respectfully request that the two houses of the Legislature hold a public hearing on the pending power bill, at which time we may have opportunity to present amendments designed to secure the due and proper consideration of the underlying economic factors of the power problem. I ask that as much as seven days' notice be given."

Chamber Approves Argentine Budget.

WOMAN TO AID YOUTH WHO TRIED TO ROB HER

Foiled Hold-Up, Gave Him Coffee and Sandwiches, Then Shows Sympathy in Court.

Andrew Batchelor, 19 years old, who ran an elevator in the apartment block known as Prospect Towers, Prospect Place, until he was discharged four months ago, may be a desperado, a victim of "crook" movies or just an unhappy youth, the victim of circumstances.

Mrs. Henry Marshall Olmstead, writer and former treasurer of the League of American Penwomen, clings to the conviction that he belongs in the third category despite the fact that Batchelor broke into her apartment at Prospect Towers on Wednesday. Although he held at her face what seemed to be a pistol and commanded her to "stick 'em up," she believes he is honest and pure at heart, and even when he pleaded guilty yesterday to burglary she sympathized with him, shook his hand and promised to stand by him.

Magistrate Capshaw, presiding in Fourth District Court, held the youth in $5,000 bail for the grand jury following his plea of guilty. Detectives James Brady and Frank Raihl told the court that Batchelor was surprised by Mrs. Olmstead as he was about to leave her apartment with a suitcase filled with stolen clothing. He pointed what proved to be a toy pistol at her, but she invited him to sit down, got him a glass of water and later coffee and sandwiches. While munching "ham and cheese" he had told her a tale of unemployment, of a sick mother and a paralytic father. When she sent him away, and advised him to go to his home, 78 Meeker Avenue, Brooklyn, she informed James Campbell, manager of the apartment house, of the affair. He informed the police.

At the arrangement yesterday, Mrs. Olmstead lodged the formal complaint, but with some reluctance, she stated. Batchelor, who has no previous criminal record, told the police that he was a movie patron and that his favorite cinema fare has been crook thrillers.

NEW GROUP ORGANIZED TO PROMOTE THRIFT

American Provident Society to Encourage Saving on Basis of Needs in Old Age.

The American Provident Society, a national organization for the promotion of thrift, was formed yesterday at a meeting at Fraunces Tavern attended by economic, educational and business leaders. Its object will be to encourage thrift on the basis of tables showing "minimum, middling and master reserves," the amount of money, insurance or real property computed as necessary for an individual to have at a given year of his life if he can hope to be financially independent when old age has caused him to be no longer productive.

Membership in this society will be open without cost to all who fulfill the "minimum reserve" requirement. It is hoped to support the society from the receipts of a book by Charles de Forest, brother of Dr. Lee de Forest, radio inventor, entitled "How Old Am I Financially?" This book is being published today on the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birthday. Mr. de Forest, who was influential in the founding of the society, said that other support would be received from contributing members, philanthropists interested in promoting thrift, banks and insurance companies.

Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; Lawson Purdy, general director of the Charity Organization Society and Mrs. E. R. Grant of Washington, D. C., spoke at the meeting. Dr. Roswell C. McCrea Hepburn, Professor of Economics of the School of Business of Columbia University, presided.

TUTTLE TO CONDUCT BAIL BOND INQUIRY

He Will Present Evidence of "Organized Extortion" to Grand Jury at Once.

HAMPERED BY LACK OF LAW

Says State Act Is "Dead Letter"—Suggests a Central Bureau of Private Companies.

United States Attorney Tuttle announced yesterday that he would at once begin an inquiry before the grand jury into the methods and practices of the bail-bond runners operating in this jurisdiction. About a year ago Mr. Tuttle conducted such an inquiry before Commissioner O'Neill, with the result that the companies doing most of the bail business agreed that each of them would have only one representative and one alternate in the Federal Building, and that any representative who was offensive to Mr. Tuttle would be dismissed.

At that time it developed, Mr. Tuttle said, that there were close connections between the bail-bond runners and a "small ring of lawyers." This connection, it was said, would be discontinued and not more than the maximum premium allowed by the State law would be charged. That understanding between Mr. Tuttle and the bail-bond runners evidently did not last long. In his statement Mr. Tuttle said:

"A recent further investigation prosecuted by me privately convinced me that the same gang is at it again, this time using intermediaries or buffers who make the excess charges. I made a demand several days ago upon several surety companies that they suspend for at least six months certain runners whom I regard as the worst offenders."

No Federal Statute.

He said that in his first investigation it was discovered that while there was an excellent State statute regulating the selling of bail bonds, affording ample protection against extortion, even though no one seemed to pay any attention to it, there was, "to the disgrace of the United States, no Federal statute upon the subject at all." He continued:

"The bail-bond runners who infested the Federal Building and the police station houses fastened upon petty offenders against Federal or State laws as soon as arrested, and claimed that because of the absence of any Federal statute making the extortion a Federal crime I could not prosecute them even where a Federal offense was charged."

In the inquiry, Mr. Tuttle said, the excuse was privately given to him that the bail-bond runners were themselves the victims of enforced tribute in order to get business "and to get prompt and prior access to the arrested persons." Then Mr. Tuttle said:

"How true that is I do not know, but I was told that no one would venture to swear to it in public. At any rate, I am now summoning before our grand jury some of those individuals who do most of this business, in order to see whether I can dig out of them in private and under oath the truth about this whole dirty subject. For my own part, I am sick and tired of seeing this rotten thing go on. I will be only too happy to assist any State official who will swing a big club against it under the State law, and I am calling to the attention of the Wickersham committee to the lamentable absence of any Federal statute regulating the bail bond business."

Calls State Law Dead.

Mr. Tuttle explained that any action he takes in the matter must be limited to Federal business. He said that the State law applying to bail bonds presented to State judicial officials for approval was apparently a dead letter and if there had ever been any prosecution or revocation of the license of any bail-bond runner he had not heard of it. He explained:

"I am not stating this as any criticism of any one. I am merely calling attention to the fact that the State law contains in itself perfectly effective means for dealing summarily with these illegal and extortionate practices upon the multitude of persons arrested for petty offenses (State or Federal) who are poor or ignorant of their rights. This State law limits the maximum premium to 3 per cent of the amount of the bond, and requires the person or corporation furnishing the bail to file therewith an affidavit setting forth the consideration given for the bond and any collateral or indemnity furnished. The judicial officer approving the bond is given power summarily to inquire as to whether any excess amount is charged; and the State Superintendent of Insurance is authorized to revoke the license of any bail-bond runner who violates the State law. Such a violation also is a misdemeanor, punishable in the State courts."

Suggests Central Bureau.

Mr. Tuttle said that suggestions had been made that for petty offenses, summonses be used, the same as in traffic violations, but he pointed out that this would require an amendment to the Federal and State law. A similar amendment also would be required, he said, to permit the acceptance of small cash bail in lieu of bonds. He made this suggestion:

"The most effective remedy is to pool in some central bureau the business of the companies now writing this class of bonds; pay salaries rather than commissions; and reduce the solicitors to one-third the present number. This will also cut out the tribute; and enable compliance with the State law and operation on a clean basis. Such a bureau can be established by legislation, or by agreement between the three or four companies who write this business. I shall be happy to cooperate in bringing about such a constructive result."

In his announcement of a Grand Jury inquiry, Mr. Tuttle declared that the manner in which poor folk, when arrested for petty offenses, "are being compelled to pay bail-bond runners' premiums far in excess of the maximum allowed by law is an increasing disgrace, and I see no reason why I should be chary about saying so. Some of this wholesale and organized extortion follows upon arrests for small liquor violations, but it also occurs after arrests for other petty State and Federal offenses." He said that the premiums received from small offenders in all the court approximated $1,000,000 a year.

ACOSTA PLEADS GUILTY.

Sentencing of Flier Deferred on Promise to Support Children.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 16.—Bert Acosta, transatlantic flier, pleaded guilty to abandonment of his two children when arraigned today before County Judge Lewis J. Smith.

Sentence was deferred until Feb. 1 on request of District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, who said that Acosta had told him that he was to have a position with Charles Levine beginning on Monday and that he intended to support his two sons, Allyn, 7 years old, and Bertram, 5. Mrs. Acosta was in court and asked that her husband receive a chance to support the children.

Acosta was recently arrested at the home of his wife at 7 Driscoll Avenue. She had notified the police that he was there. His bail of $3,000 was continued.

During the nine-hour delay the liner booked eight additional first-class passengers and three in tourist third cabin. Nearly 600 passengers sailed.

CASTS STEEL SLABS IN REVOLVING DRUM

TIME AND METAL ARE SAVED

New Process Eliminates Two Operations and Turns Out Steel Ready for Rolling Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 16.—Steel engineers from all over the East this evening watched the demonstration of a casting machine which culminated half a century of development in the steel industry. A drum seven feet in diameter, whirling at a terrific speed, molded slabs ready for use in bar and sheet mills.

The new device takes the place of the ingot molds, and eliminates the soaking pit and the blooming mill, substituting an investment of about $750,000 for one of $2,500,000.

In addition, according to its inventor, Leon Cammen, a New York consulting engineer, it makes possible an operating saving of between $4 and $5 a ton in the cost of the finished steel, and increases the capacity of a mill by 15 per cent.

The demonstration was held in the Canton plant of the Central Alloy Steel Corporation, which is understood to hold a license for its future use. Engineers attending included representatives of National Tube, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and Wheeling, Bethlehem and Ludlum Steel Companies.

E. T. Weir, chairman, and George R. Fink, president, of the new National Steel Corporation of Detroit and Cleveland, which is building plants in Detroit and Gary, Ind., also were present.

Makes Five Revolutions a Second.

The machine resembles a barrel churn. While it rotates at five revolutions a second, its perimeter traveling at the rate of 105 miles an hour, liquid steel is poured into one end. The speed of the revolving drum throws the metal against the sides and there it solidifies into curved slabs. When these cool they come out of the shallow molds on the interior of the drum and are ready to go direct to the rolling mills without the customary preliminary work of crushing the ingot down to billet size.

The twenty engineers stood on the pouring floor of the open hearth department to watch this first commercial demonstration. As the ladle of molten steel approached the speed of the rotating drum was increased. The ladle tipped and the interior of the drum became incandescent. Sparks whirled from its open end in a display more spectacular than that of any steel operation save the Bessemer furnace.

After a few moments the power was cut off and the drum ground slowly to a stop. The slablike ingots were lifted out and the churn was ready for another charge of hot metal.

Mr. Cammen's application of centrifugal casting is not new in the metal industries, he explained, but it is new to large-scale steel plant practice, which has employed the old-fashioned pouring method in solidifying the steel as it comes from the open hearth. An important advantage, according to Mr. Cammen, is that his new form of slab does not have to be trimmed as ingots are trimmed, and this makes possible the 15 per cent saving in material.

Device Weighs 35 Tons.

The machine is said to have been made possible only in the last three or four years by the development of roller bearings capable of carrying so great a weight at the necessary speed, and by the ability of steel forging companies to make a drum heavy enough to hold the liquid metal. The drum and the molds inside it weigh thirty-five tons.

The first machine built was tested at the Niagara Falls plant of the Union Carbide and Carbon Company. A subsequent test was made at the Vandergrift plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company. This machine was the first of commercial size, or about six tons to a charge. They can be built, Mr. Cammen said, up to thirty tons capacity.

Mr. Cammen's company has licensed 5,700,000 tons of annual steel production, he said today, but expects to limit the licenses to 22,000,000 tons of annual capacity, which is about two-thirds of the rolled steel capacity of the United States.

Mr. Cammen was assisted in the construction of the machine by Robert S. Haydock, a steel plant engineer who represented him in Canton.

Prior to 1909, Mr. Cammen was a director of Russian steel works in the Ural Mountains. He has been in this country twenty years.

LEWIS LUCKENBACH IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

WILL SEEK BOY'S CUSTODY

Plaintiff Also Asserts Husband Tricked Her Into Going to Europe to Get Use of Estate.

Lewis Luckenbach, vice president of the Luckenbach Steamship Company and wealthy yachtsman, was accused in divorce papers filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Lillian Luckenbach of leaving New York and going to Florida with Della Louise Stone, named as corespondent, and his 9-year-old son, Lewis Jr., just in time to escape an order of arrest obtained by his wife.

The allegations were revealed when Justice Churchill granted an order to serve the papers on Mr. Luckenbach by mailing them to his island estate off the Florida coast. The court also directed him to show cause on Jan. 24 why his property in New York should not be sequestrated and a receiver appointed to guarantee the payment of alimony to be applied for by Mrs. Luckenbach.

I. Gainsburg, attorney for Mrs. Luckenbach, said that alimony of at least $50,000 a year and appropriate counsel fees will be sought later. The show cause order will be served also by mail, the attorney said, and a copy left at the steamship company's office. Mr. Gainsburg said he will also apply for the custody of the boy, who, he understands, has been returned to school at West Newton, Mass.

Mrs. Luckenbach said she fears her husband will sue her for a divorce in Florida, although she said that since their marriage on Nov. 6, 1916, neither have been residents of that State, and says he may leave his Florida island estate soon for California and Hawaii in connection with his business interests.

The affidavit of the plaintiff accused her husband of tricking her into taking a trip to Europe last Summer so he could enjoy the sixty-six-acre Luckenbach estate at Sands Point, Long Island, with Miss Stone. When she returned in September, she said, she found that the Sands Point mansion had been partly dismantled, that her son had been sent to school at West Newton, and that her husband and Miss Stone were occupying the shipping man's apartment at 30 East Sixty-eighth Street.

"I do not want to leave here," he said, "without saying that the personnel of Auburn Prison is a splendid set of officers. No better can be found in any of the State prisons."

Principal Keeper Edward B. Beckwith and Chief Clerk Robert R. Westover of the prison staff also were commended by the retiring acting warden. Dr. Christian urged pay increases for all prison employes not included in the provisions of the emergency legislation bill passed by the Legislature a week ago.

CREDIT IMPROVED HERE AND ABROAD

Reserve Board Calls This an Outstanding Result of the Decline in Stock Values.

OUR GOLD STOCKS REDUCED

Outflow to Foreign Countries Late Last Year Brought Reductions in Interest Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Federal Reserve Board today cited improved credit situations at home and abroad as among the outstanding developments incident to the October-November liquidation of security values on the Stock Exchange, which was followed by a rapid outflow of gold from this country.

In the readjustment of the gold stocks of the more important countries, the board said, gold in the United States was reduced by $105,000,000 in the period from Oct. 25 to Dec. 31, and on the latter date the American holdings of $4,283,000,000 were $417,000,000 under the record peak of $4,700,000,000, reached on May 16, 1927.

"This review of gold movements in the past two years," the board said, "indicates that the unusually high level of money rates in the United States in 1928 and 1929, which had accompanied the constant active demand for credit from the security market, together with the increasing participation of foreigners in the stock market activity, resulted in a flow of gold into this country, and that the loss of gold by foreign countries caused foreign central banks to advance their rates in order to protect their reserves.

Lower Money Rates Ensued.

"High discount rates at the central banks were accompanied in most countries by high rates of interest to trade and industry. Since the decline in money rates in the New York market, which began at the end of October with the liquidation of security loans, an outward movement of gold from the United States has set in, followed by a general decline of central bank discount rates and of open market money rates in foreign countries.

"It would appear, therefore, that the large liquidation of security loans during the past two months, which has resulted in an improvement of the credit situation in the United States, has also had a favorable influence on world credit conditions."

The board said that the gold to meet the recent export demand was drawn from the reserves of member banks, but the effect of this on domestic credit conditions was considerably more than offset by Reserve Bank purchases of acceptance and government securities in the open market and a decrease in reserve balances of member banks. During the last week of the year, the board added, Reserve Bank credit outstanding was $150,000,000 below the level of the last week in 1928.

Gold Stock in Millions of Dollars.

May 16, 1927 (peak)	4,700	..
Jan. 11, 1929 (begin. of increase)	4,106	+ 7

Dec. 31, 1929	4,283	—105
Entire period	...	—417

Increase (+) or decrease (—) since preceding date.

France Only Continuous Taker.

France was the only continuous taker of gold from the United States over the period from May 16, 1927, to Dec. 31, 1929, her total imports over the period from this country being $383,100,000. England showed a net export of $47,700,000 to this country over the period; Germany, $15,900,000, and Canada $143,200,000.

Argentina had net imports of $54,200,000; Brazil $58,000,000, and other countries not identified by the board's summary, $324,000,000. These latter figures do not show the effects of earmarking operations or of domestic production of gold.

The board said that the continuous gold movement to France was made possible by the larger accumulation of foreign balances by the Bank of France and the French commercial banks, chiefly as a result of the repatriation of French funds after the value of the franc became stable.

During 1929, France added about $380,000,000 to its gold reserves from the United States, England, Germany, Argentina and other countries. In June, the board said, the Bank of France's foreign portfolio had been reduced to about $1,000,000,000, "and since that time it has fluctuated near that amount."

In the last half of 1929, the board said, French gold takings were not at the initiative of the central bank, but represented largely exchange operations of the French commercial banks, "partly to meet a growing demand for currency, and partly on account of an accumulation of government balances with the central bank."

England's Gold Holdings Increased.

The Bank of England raised its discount rate to 6½ per cent in September because of the drain on its gold holdings, but it was cut to 5 per cent with the liquidation of the American stock market. Since Dec. 4 the board said, the gold holdings of the Bank of England have increased by $57,000,000, and "are now restored nearly to the level recommended by the Cunliffe Commission" as sufficient.

Germany, after being forced to raise her discount rate to 7½ per cent, dropped the rate to 7 per cent, after the easing on American rates, and "ends the year with reserves considerably above legal requirements, but lower by $100,000,000 than at the beginning of the year."

Argentina, the board said, increased her gold holdings by $170,000,000 in the first part of 1928, but all this had since been lost with changed economic conditions, and on Dec. 16 the conversion office was closed altogether, making Argentine currency at the present time inconvertible into gold.

Canadian exports of gold to the United States were unusually large during the period of high interest rates here, the board said, but this outflow was checked somewhat early in 1929, "indicating that a control of gold movements was in operation." Following the fall of interest rates in New York, it added, there has been some improvement in Canadian exchange.

"DREAM SLAYER" TO LIVE.

Sentence Changed to Life Term by Governor at Last Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Ernest Duane, the "dream murderer," did not die in the electric chair tonight, as originally sentenced, as word was received that Governor Roosevelt had commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment. When Warden Lewi E. Lawes was notified he sent Principal Keeper John Sheehy to the condemned cells to tell Duane. Sheehy asked Duane if he was happy. He replied that he was.

Supreme Court Justice Heffernan, who sentenced Duane, was said to have urged mercy because of Duane's strange conduct. At his trial in Speculator, N. Y., Duane testified that he had dreamed he had killed Eula Davis, sixty-year-old guide. When he awoke he found it was true. Duane also was a guide and was said to have served Gene Tunney when the former champion was training for his boxing bout with Jack Dempsey.

a large and lucrative practice rolling in. He took up his residence on the west side of Central Park, bought a ranch in Montana, and decided to go in for politics. He met with immediate success and in 1908, 1909 and 1910 served in the Assembly as a member from the Fifteenth District.

Starts City Inquiry.

The first year he was in office he introduced a bill calling for investigation of the Controller's office in New York City. Herman Metz filled the office at that time. Although Bennett's attack was not directed at Mr. Metz, he believed that there should be introduced into the city's financial department a system of accounting which would show more fully how the financial affairs of the municipality stood. Being a first-year member of the Assembly, Bennett could not get the bill passed, but the bankers finally told Mr. Metz that it would have to go through, and it was passed under the name of Senator Cassidy. As a result the Cassidy committee was appointed and Mr. Bennett made a member of it.

While in the Assembly, Mr. Bennett was discussed as a possible candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. But John Purroy Mitchel, who was also a candidate, was selected in the city convention, and in 1909 Mr. Bennett made the speech nominating him.

Opposed Mitchel Regime.

The following year he successfully opposed Ray B. Smith, clerk of the Assembly, as sub-leader in that body. Later he defeated Harry W. Mack for the leadership of the Fifteenth Assembly District. In 1914 he ran for the Senate against the organization and won with a 3,800 majority. But that ended his political officeholding for the time being. A feud having developed between him and Mayor Mitchel, he turned to the task of opposing the Mitchel Administration at every opportunity.

He found a lever in his position of counsel to the Society for the Prevention of Municipal Waste and proceeded to criticize the city government at every turn. The court house project was his chief point of attack. He assailed every phase of the enterprise, the cost of the site, cost of making the plans, the constantly increasing expense, holding that the "pay as you go policy" must eventually force its abandonment.

The Bennett-Mitchel feud reached its climax in 1917 when Mr. Bennett opposed Mr. Mitchel for the Republican nomination for Mayor. It was a bitter fight. Early returns showed Mr. Mitchel ahead with a comfortable majority. Mr. Bennett's supporters charged fraud and considered asking for a mandamus for a recount of the votes.

But errors were discovered in the balloting figures and examination of the ballots made by order of the Supreme Court gave Mr. Bennett the majority. This split the Republican ranks. Despite the fact that Mr. Bennett had won the party nomination, many Republican clubs refused to permit him to make campaign speeches in their headquarters. Mr. Mitchel declined to withdraw and entered the Mayoralty race as Fusion candidate. The result was the election of Mayor Hylan by 149,975 plurality. Mitchel polled 149,307 votes and Bennett 53,678.

The failure of the Republican organization to give him its wholehearted support embittered Mr. Bennett. In subsequent years he raised a revolt against Governor Whitman, opposing the latter's renomination for a third term. He also entered the race as a candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination. Then he withdrew that candidacy and became a candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor. But he was defeated.

In 1921 Mr. Bennett was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican Mayoralty nomination against Curran, La Guardia and Judge Haskell, and in 1925 was equally unsuccessful against Waterman and Lyons. He also entered unsuccessfully in other political races.

Mr. Bennett is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary U. Bennett; by two daughters, Mrs. Townsend Lodge and Miss Elizabeth Bennett, and by a son, William M. Bennett Jr.

VENUE CHANGE WON IN GASTONIA TRIAL

State's Motion Is Granted in Case of Five Accused of Killing Mrs. Wiggins.

CITIZENS OPPOSED MOVE

Defensive's Effort Fails and the Court Sets Hearing for Next Month at Mecklenburg.

Special to The New York Times.

GASTONIA, N. C., Jan. 16.—The State today won a change of venue for the trial of five men accused as members of the mob which killed Ella May Wiggins by firing on a truck on which she and other textile mill workers were riding.

Judge J. H. Clement, presiding in Gaston County Superior Court, granted the venue change motion made by Attorney General Dennis C. Brummit, who was sent by Governor Gardner to assist Solicitor John G. Carpenter in the prosecution. The trial is set for Feb. 24 in Mecklenburg County.

Defense attorneys vigorously opposed the removal of the case. Major A. L. Bulwinkle of the defense staff introduced 150 affidavits from leading citizens of the county declaring they believed Gaston County would give both sides a fair trial and asking that the case be allowed to be tried here.

Judge Clement made it plain that he was casting no reflection upon Gaston County and said the change was decided upon because the Wiggins killing had beei so widely discussed in the county.

This is the second trial growing out of the industrial turmoil in this section that has been removed to Mecklenburg County. The first was the famous Aderholt murder case. In each instance the removal was based upon the presiding judge's purpose to steer clear of denying either side an impartial trial.

HONOR GEORGE EASTMAN.

Employes' Gift Marks Camera Company's Fiftieth Anniversary.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP).—To George Eastman, the philanthropist and camera manufacturer, was presented a solid gold cigarette chest today in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the industry that bears his name.

The gift was bought by 10-cent subscriptions from each of the 3,300 employes of the camera works branch of the concern.

A committee of employes made the presentation at Mr. Eastman's home, where he is recovering from a slight illness.

WOULD ELIMINATE RADIO ZONE SYSTEM

BOTH FAVOR REGULATION

Uncertainty and Instability of the Present Rules Are Made the Subject of Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Elimination of the zone system, extension of the license period and the clarification and modification of certain administrative provisions were among proposed amendments to the radio act recommended by William S. Hedges of Chicago, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, and Henry A. Bellows, formerly a member of the Radio Commission but now president of the Northwestern Broadcasting Company of Minneapolis, at today's hearing before the Senate Commerce Committee on the communications bill.

As chairman of the legislative committee of the National Association of Broadcasters, Mr. Bellows drafted resolutions adopted by that organization last March, embodying the recommendations presented to the committee today.

Both witnesses agreed that service areas rather than the exact location of a station within a zone should be given consideration in the allocation of frequencies, arguing that distribution of wave lengths should be based both on population and the area to be served.

Both also conceded a "reasonable necessity for regulation in the public interest," while maintaining that broadcasting was "not a public utility in the usual sense," and Mr. Bellows added that, in his judgment, broadcasting involved "certain definite obligations to the public that could be and should be set forth in the regulations of a governing body."

Both protested against the "uncertainty and instability" of the regulations in the radio act, which they said "subjected broadcasters and the public alike to serions and needless inconvenience and hardship."

Questioned by counsel for the committee, Mr. Bellows said it seemed to him impossible to classify radio stations as common carriers, or to regulate by law the rates charged advertisers.

DENY COMPETING WITH R.C.A.

General Electric and Westinghouse Explain Radio Marketing Step.

The General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company do not plan to build radio receiving sets in competition with the RCA-Victor Corporation, it was learned on good authority yesterday, following rumors to that effect.

"Both the General Electric and Westinghouse will distribute radio receiving sets through their regular marketing channels," said a representative of the General Electric. "The instruments will be manufactured by the RCA-Victor Corporation at the Camden (N. J.) plant. The sets will carry a General Electric and Westinghouse name plate. It is silly to call this competition with the RCA-Victor unit.

Quits Profanity on Radio.

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 16 (AP).—W. K. Henderson, operator of radio station KWKH here, today telegraphed Representative John Sandlin of Louisiana that in order to preserve harmony in his radio audience he had decided in the future to refrain from using "damn" and "hell" in his radio talks against chain stores, though he did not consider these words profane, as Senator Dill charged.

Plans Radio Magazine.

A new engineering magazine called Electronics, to deal with the radio vacuum tube and its applications in various industries, was announced yesterday by the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company. The first issue will appear in April.

FAY SUES FOR $1,698,000.

The El Fay Cab Manufacturing Corporation, controlled by Larry Fay, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against the Peerless Motor Car Corporation for $1,698,000 damages for breach of a contract calling for the delivery of 1,500 taxicab chassis in 1929 and 1930. Fay alleges through his attorney, Fred B. Kaplan, that the Peerless company knew he had contracts to sell completed cabs at a profit of $1,000 each and that he had spent $200,000 for bodies and other accessories, advertising, designing and personal.

The complaint charges that after two chassis had been delivered the Peerless company broke the contract when he asked for the delivery of twenty-five more in August because of a contest of the Peerless stockholders for control of the company. The plaintiff asserts that the chassis are of special design and cannot be manufactured by any other company in the required quantity.

BOB MARTIN WINS LIFE COMPENSATION

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 16—(AP).—Fighting Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the American expeditionary forces during the World War, has been udged permanently disabled as a result of sixty fights in the service, and the Veterans Bureau has awarded him compensation of $100 a month for the rest of his life.

Martin, who was considered a better fistic prospect than Tunney at the close of the war, claimed that a traumatic brain tumor, from which he has suffered in recent years, was caused by blows received while winning fifty-four service bouts by knockouts, four by decision, drawing once and losing only one match—to Tunney. He was granted a pension of $20 a month by Congress two years ago. This he has waived in view of the larger grant.

Martin fought thirty-two bouts in qualifying for the A. E. F. title, winning twenty-eight by knockouts and four by decisions. Concerning the final match with Fay Kiser for the championship at the Cirque de Paris, April 26, 1919, Captain C. M. Jones, State service officer for West Virginia, reported to the compensation board:

"This was an especially hard fight, and the claimant's opponent delivered blow after blow on the claimant's head. It seems to me that it is reasonable to presume that this fight was the beginning of the claimant's disability."

Following the war Martin, who lives at Nitro, W. Va., fought professionally, but was unable to keep the pace he set in the army. He quit the ring several years ago.

BIRTH CONTROL BODY PROTESTS RADIO BAN

Members of American League Score N. B. C. for Attitude Toward National Convention.

BAILEY HITS CENSORSHIP

Mrs. Robertson Jones Asks Support for Bill to Lift Restrictions on Physicians.

More than 200 members of the American Birth Control League joined in protest against the ban of birth control discussions on the radio at the annual meeting luncheon at the Hotel Woodstock yesterday.

Scoring the refusal last November of the National Broadcasting Company to broadcast addresses delivered at the National Birth Control Conference, Forrest Bailey, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, declared that attitude was narrow, unprogressive, unintelligent and contrary to public interests. He urged a movement to impress upon commercial radio broadcasting stations their obligation to their patrons in transmitting subjects of vital importance, an advanced position, he said, in regard to all controversial subjects of great public interest.

Censorship is based on prejudice, Mr. Bailey contended, adding that while commercial broadcasting enterprises may well use their prerogative, refusing to grant the use of their facilities to broadcasts which they consider obnoxious, irritating or improper, it would be absurd, however, to adopt a medieval point of view and regard all topics relating to sex as improper and obscene. Such attitude, he said, was rejected long ago by science and human advancement.

Radio broadcasting, Mr. Bailey said, became a monopoly under private ownership, and to assure the freedom of the air he advocated socialization of the industry.

Mrs. Robertson Jones, president of the league, reported increased interest in birth control throughout the nation during the past year.

Mrs. Jones urged the support of the new birth control bill permitting physicians to give contraceptive treatment and advice, and the fight for an amendment of the Federal laws eliminating birth control from the penal code of statutory crimes.

Mrs. Minturn Pinchot made a general survey of the league activities during the last fifteen years and Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont spoke of the need of intelligent application of birth control as the only effective preventive of the dangers of overpopulation.

Mrs. George B. Case
Mrs. George H. Day

Mrs. Henry de Rham

C. A. WHELAN QUESTIONED.

Washburn Seeks Data on United Cigar Stores Co. Earnings Report.

C. A. Whelan, brother of George Whelan, former head of the United Cigar Stores Company, was questioned for almost three hours yesterday by Watson Washburn, Assistant State Attorney General and head of the State Bureau of Securities, at 74 Trinity Place. The questions dealt with the handling of the company's finances in the days of the so-called Whelan régime, before the Morrow interests took charge.

Mr. Washburn refused to make public any of the questions or answers. He said his investigation would continue. Mr. Whalen was accompanied to the bureau by his attorneys, Samuel and Alvin Untermyer.

The present management of the United Cigar Stores Company issued recently to stockholders a statement that purported to show that the more han $8,000,000 profits outlined by the Whelen management books in 1928 were actually about half that amount.

DEFENDS EXPENSES OF PORT AUTHORITY

J. E. Ramsey Says Its Payroll in 1929 Was $1,026,826, Due to Huge Increase in Tasks.

$115,000,000 IN PROJECTS

Executive Tells Abell Commission Port Faces Losses of Millions, Referring to Lighterage Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 16.—John E. Ramsey, chief executive officer for the Port of New York Authority, testified today before the Abell legislative investigating committee at the State House that it payroll expenditures in 1929 were $1,026,826. During its first year, 1922, the payroll total was $159,466. The increase was attributed almost entirely to supplemental directions given by New Jersey and New York for the construction and operation of interstate bridges.

Construction undertakings of the Port Authority projected for the next two years or in course of preparation represent expenditures of $115,000,000, Mr. Ramsey said. Bridge building now under way involves an ultimate outlay of more than $75,000,000, he explained, and freight, steamship and other terminals will require more than $40,000,000.

As in the case of the Holland vehicular tunnel, the payroll data and other information relating to the Port Authority were asked by the commission with the idea of learning how the money is being spent and whether economies can be effected.

Mr. Ramsey submitted figures to refute the assertion that the Goethals bridge between Elizabeth and Staten Island was not financially successful. He admitted that the outer bridge crossing between Perth Amboy and Tottenville had not fulfilled expectations in 1929. In view of an upward trend in traffic in the latter part of last year, with no bonds maturing until 1932 and with an operating surplus of $25,000 after eighteen months' operation, the Goethals bridge conditions were termed reassuring. The situation on the outer bridge crossing was explained in part as the result of an eighteen months' wait for the completion of the New York approaches.

Mr. Ramsay went into the matter of financing of the Port Authority in some detail. He explained that it had four sources of income: an annual appropriation of $100,000 each from the States of New York and New Jersey for its general expenses, advances of State funds for temporary use in carrying forward its projects, proceeds of bond issues floated on the security of the property of specific projects undertaken and tolls received from the operation of such projects after completion, from which advances were repaid and bond issues retired.

Testimony that the Port Authority proposed to relinquish control of pier and terminal developments at Hoboken, Jersey City and Bayonne when it has completed financing the projects surprised the committee. Mr. Ramsey said he could not "visualize the Port Authority owning eight or nine miles of waterfront with an investment running into billions."

Along with the statement, a mass of data and exhibits was submitted by Mr. Ramsey, who expressed the readiness of his organization to cooperate in every way that the commission might desire.

Dealing with various phases of the Port Authority's activities, he said that adverse decisions in some of the litigation now pending threatened losses to the commerce of the port running into millions of dollars. His remark was interpreted as referring to the proceedings brought by New Jersey before the Interstate Commerce Commission to end free lighterage in New York Harbor.

Bertram H. Saunders, chairman of the North Jersey Transit Commission, was on hand to testify but was asked to return next Tuesday, when the Abell inquiry will be resumed.

CANADA SET RECORD IN NEWSPRINT OUTPUT

Production and Shipments Increased in 1929—United States Output Declined.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 16.—The production of Canadian newsprint mills in 1929 was 2,728,827 tons, giving a ratio of production to installed capacity for the year of 85.5 per cent. This is a substantial improvement over 1928, when 2,381,102 tons were produced on a ratio of 82 per cent. Total shipments for 1929 were 2,722,381 tons, an increase from 2,399,030 tons in 1928. The figures for both production and shipments are new high records.

During December the output, according to a report of the Newsprint Service Bureau, decreased from the months immediately preceding. The output for December of 230,008 tons contrasts with 252,046 tons for November, and 251,914 tons for October. The December output, however, is considerably ahead of the figure for December, 1928, when production was 208,484 tons.

There was also a reduction during December in the ratio of production to installed capacity. In November the ratio was 91.2 per cent and in October 88.8 per cent. For December the ratio was 85.6 per cent.

United States mills in December produced 112,583 tons on a ratio of 79.8 per cent, and shipped 117,131 tons. This compares with 113,729 tons in November and shipments of 116,726 tons.

For the year, production by United States mills was 1,392,276 tons, on a ratio of 80 per cent, a decrease from the 1928 figures of 1,417,572 tons, on a ratio of 81.9 per cent. United States shipments last year amounted to 1,409,239 tons, contrasting with 1,399,425 tons in 1928.

ARNOLD VERDICT SET ASIDE.

Ruling Is Based on Jury's Failure to Decide on Wife's Conduct.

The verdict of a Supreme Court jury last month in the divorce action of Mrs. Bessie S. Arnold against Ray H. Arnold, investment broker, and his countersuit was set aside yesterday by Justice McCook, who upheld Arnold's contention that it was incomplete because "the jury was required to pass upon the guilt or innocence of both plaintiff and defendant and left the conduct of the plaintiff undecided."

After a protracted trial, the jury found Mr. Arnold guilty of misconduct with Mrs. Margaret Crenshaw West, but was unable to determine whether Mrs. Arnold had been intimate with Charles Hann Jr., one of her lawyers.

DUTCH RUSH WARSHIP TO WEST INDIAN ISLE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 16.—The Dutch cruiser van Galen will leave Saturday for the Dutch West Indian island of Curaçao, where unrest continues to disturb the government here. The vessel's departure had been fixed for a later date but new developments have induced the government to send it at the earliest possible moment.

The cruiser Hertog Hendrik is already at Curaçao with 300 men, and although ninety of them and 135 gendarmes have been landed, they are not considered enough. The destroyer will carry a number of anti-aircraft guns which will be stationed at strategic points on the island.

The present troubles are the aftermath of the insurrection of last July, when 500 Venezuelan exiles seized the town of Willemstad and kidnapped the Governor.

Hard of Hearing?

What reading-glasses are to weak or tired eyes, a scientific electric hearing-aid is to ears that hear faintly. Sounds that seem far away are amplified and brought to the ear with satisfying volume. For occasional or regular use, the hard of hearing will find comfort and satisfaction in

PHONAK
The Articulate Hearing-Aid

PHONAK, the articulate hearing-aid, is the result of more than 12 years of development work, and employs electric principles new to hearing-aids. The result is an exact reproduction of the original sounds—words or music, without distortion—clear, quiet, natural, and with ample volume.

PHONAK agents will gladly demonstrate the different models. Then if you wish, a ten day trial in your own home can easily be arranged without cost. If there is no PHONAK Agent near you we will be glad to show and demonstrate PHONAK in our consultation rooms.

Mme. Marie Jonnesco gave an Arabian Nights costume ball last night in the grand ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton in honor of Prince de Bearn et de Chalais. The hostess was director of an elaborate pageant staged before the dancing.

Douglas Wood was master of ceremonies in the pageant, introducing the various characters. The pageant depicted a scene in the jasmine patio of the Alhambra, where representatives of the Orient were seen in native costumes. Mahmoud Mirza Saghapi Khan of Persia and Sessue Hayakawa of Japan appeared in one scene, and were followed by Robert Reud and Decio de Paula Machado, who heralded the entrance of the royal princesses, impersonated by Mme. Hayakawa, Mrs. William Waters, Mrs. Consuelo Hatmaker, Mrs. Leland Orvis, Miss Madeleine Liebert, Miss Katherine Walsh, Mrs. Dudley Morris, Miss Leonore Griffith, and Mrs. Ernest Miller. Countess de Vautiebault appeared as Isis, Egyptian goddess.

Miss Ernestine Day, who returned from India, performed a Hindu dance of love and also a dance called the Bermuse, one of the oldest dances of China. Oriental songs were sung by Miss Helen Fowler. Mme. Yvette LeBray, mezzo-soprano, sang Bemberg's Hindu Song.

HOOVERS ARE HOSTS TO VICE PRESIDENT

Also Invite With Mr. Curtis to Dinner Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann.

PRECEDENCE NOT INVOLVED

No Diplomats and Officials Among Guests—First White House Dinner for a Vice President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at dinner tonight for Vice President Curtis, having invited with him his brother-in-law and his sister and official hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann.

The dinner was doubly unique as the first Vice Presidential dinner to be included in the White House program and as the first State function at which diplomats and officials alike other than the guest of honor were conspicuous by their absence. No questions of precedence, therefore, were involved.

The dinner was given in the State dining room, the historic gold table service and the Dolly Madison candelabra being used. Table decorations were laddie carnations, baby primroses and maidenhair fern.

The guests, in addition to the Vice President and Mr. and Mrs. Gann, were William Butterworth, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Mrs. Butterworth; Miss Susan L. Dyer, a friend of Mrs. Hoover and a guest at the White House; the Episcopal Bishop of Washington and Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Charles P. George, wife of Major George, U. S. McDowell of the Methodist Church and Mrs. McDowell; Dr. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the House, and Mrs. Montgomery; Dr. Augustus T. Murray of the Society of Friends, President Hoover's pastor; the Very Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, head of a Jesuit institution in Massachusetts; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Nichols of Kansas City, Miss Mary Randolph, social secretary to Mrs. Hoover; Mr. and Mrs. John V. Reynders and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard, who are among the closest friends of the President in engineering circles; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and Mrs. Willard; Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor; Dr Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, and Captain Allen Buchanan and Colonel Campbell B. Hodges, the President's aides.

Among the social innovations of the Hoover Administration have been the additions to the number of official and "near-official" dinners, and to the state receptions, at which every department of the government now is separately honored.

One of the "near-official" dinners for committee chairmen of the Senate and House was given last night, the Speaker and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth being the ranking guests. The others in the company were Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader, and Mrs. Tilson, and the chairmen of several House committees and their wives.

OVATION FOR ITURBI AT HIS FAREWELL

PLAYS LISZT'S ETUDES

He Also Scales the Heights of Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata"—Philharmonic Concert.

By OLIN DOWNES.

An immense audience gathered yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall for the last recital of the first American tour of the pianist, Jose Iturbi. This audience by its proportions and temper bore witness to his exceptional success here. Another virtuoso could hardly have hoped to attract such a gathering with the special and formidable program that Mr. Iturbi had chosen.

The recital, or that part of it listed on paper (Mr. Iturbi was playing encores when we left the hall), consisted of the Beethoven "Sonata appassionata" and all of the twelve "Etudes d'execution transcendante" of Franz Liszt. That was a list—save the pun—sufficient to try the heart and the fingers of the greatest artist and the most formidable pianist. The sonata is very familiar, yet its heights are scaled by very few. The Liszt Etudes played yesterday, studies which are for masters only, have not been performed as a complete set in this city for more years than records readily available can show. Mr. Busoni played groups of the "Etudes d'execution transcendante" here in 1911 and in 1915. Isolated studies from the set, such as the "Feux Follets," the "Ricordanza," "Mazeppa," "Paysage," "Harmonies du Soir," have figured from time to time on programs. To play the entire set at a hearing is technically and interpretively a deed of derring-do, which also asks something of the audience.

There was special curiosity about Mr. Iturbi's interpretation of the "Appassionata" sonata. If memory serves, he has not played Beethoven before in New York. How would he approach the familiar and colossal masterpiece?

Mr. Iturbi applied to Beethoven the same characteristic methods which have brought him such success in other interpretive fields. He read the sonata, first of all, as a consummate musician. He read behind the notes, accepting expression marks as indications but not as boundaries of the composer's meaning. It was the reading of a musician who went to original sources—those of the printed scores—and not to other minds or to complacently accepted tradition, for his ideas. There was very fine clarity, taste, logic, thematic and also emotional coherency in this interpretation, which by means of tone color and its fine scale of values did especial justice to the more introspective pages of the work. Then there were the sudden choleric outbursts, the more dramatic for a relatively subdued background.

All this, so far as it went, which was quite far, was excellent. But it must be said that something of the wild grandeur of the music was lacking. It was a somewhat miniature or at least an overly objective Beethoven. Perhaps this impression would not have been if the pianist had been able to summon a deeper and greater tone, which, as it happened, was not under the circumstances a possibility. This music by its very proud and great and passionate nature calls for a depth, richness and plangency of musical speech perhaps more necessary for Beethoven, who seldom wrote well for the piano, than for any other composer. As it was, the performance was almost too well thought out, so that the listener wanted at certain moments to hear the interpreter himself swept from his feet, denied self-control, hurled headlong from his judgment seat by the torrent and the passion of Beethoven, and his cry for truth and liberty. A fine performance, but Mr. Iturbi has played more greatly.

The Liszt, almost without exception, were superbly played, but they had upon us the same effect as that of Mr. Iturbi's performance of the Liszt E-flat piano concerto earlier in the season. It was the effect of almost too fine and meticulous treatment of Liszt. The "Etudes d'execution transcendante," for all the amazing metamorphoses that they underwent at Liszt's hands, and for all the imagination and originality of style that they reveal, contain much essentially poor music. This music must not merely be played. It must be super-played, and not only in the technical or coloristic sense. We heard brilliant and masterly performances of the very difficult studies yesterday. Only occasionally did we hear them played with the lordly swank, the extravagance, the blazing impetuosity and grandiloquence of Liszt and his period.

The player of this music must shut his eyes and hitch his wagon to a star. The music must be more real to him than itself, and the imagination must complete and make the more significant the grand gestures of the composer. Liszt was the colossal artist who only occasionally created colossal music. The problem with Beethoven is to scale his height; the problem with Liszt of the Etudes played yesterday is to help him reach it. Mr. Iturbi showed us Liszt's distinctions and refinements of style, his phenomenal ingenuity in thematic transformation and the apotheosis of what were originally commonplace technical figures. He unfolded a series of flashing tone-pictures, now of a poetical, now of a bravura cast. It may seem invidious to ask for so much when so much was given. But there was even more in Liszt's philosophy, if not in his music.

Mengelberg Gives "Sinfonietta."

Mr. Mengelberg, conducting the concert of the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra last night in Carnegie Hall, repeated one of his greatest achievements in this city, that is to say, his most impressive interpretation of the "Lied von der Erde." This performance was prefaced by the first performance anywhere of Bernard Wagenaar's "Sinfonietta" for small orchestra. The soloists in the performance of Mahler's work were Margaret Matzenauer, contralto, and Richard Crooks, tenor.

Mr. Wagenaar, whose First symphony was performed from manuscript by Mr. Mengelberg on Oct. 7, 1928, has now turned to the smaller form of the "Sinfonietta." In this he follows the modern trend toward conciseness and economy of material, although a large orchestra is used for two movements of the small "Sinfonietta." This "Sinfonietta," says Mr. Wagnaar in the program book, "is intended primarily, of course, as an expression of beauty, but further than that it deals with no problem save for its form. Its mood is light, even somewhat sarcastic—not following any particularly programmatic idea, but simply because I felt that way."

"It is a miniature symphony according to the classic formula of construction, except that the old customary tonality scheme is not carried out; harmonically, it is not in the 'old style.'"

There are three moments in the ten-minute work, symmetrically conceived, the first being in sonata form, with combined tonalities; the second a simple lyrical episode, scored for solo flute, clarinet, bassoon and harp with strings; the third another movement in sonata form. Thus Mr. Wagenaar worships at the altar of clearness, simplicity, formal perfection. It is not a poor ideal.

Nothing could offer more complete contrast with this work than the Mahler score, which is wholly subjective, ultra-romantic, clearly dramatic and programmatic in intention. The "Lied von der Erde" is surely one of his best and most inspired expressions. It is not necessary to discourse of its poetic sources—the Chinese verses taken from the volume of translations by Hans Bethge, expressive of the sadness and pessimism of Mahler's last years, and the invincible attraction for him of a philosophy which contemplated withdrawal from life.

The music is often sentimental, but it is always heartfelt, and the last portion of the work, the contralto's song of resignation, "Farewell of a Friend," is as the chill and the dun of Autumn and the long and lonely road that winds into the dusk without end. The songs of the tenor contrast notably with the mood of the contralto's music, for these are the verses of pessimistic abandon, the "Drinking Song of Earthly Woe" and "The Drunken One in the Springtime." These two principal moods and the more joyous one "Of Youth" are admirably contrived in form and expression as a foil to the dark color of other passages.

Mr. Crooks, at some expense to his vocal quality, expressed the mad gayety of the despairing one. Mme. Matzenauer, who is hardly to be surpassed in this music, again moved her audience profoundly by her song. Supporting these artists, commentating with the orchestra upon their verse, supplying emotional background and psychology, was Mr. Mengelberg. He has a rare understanding of this music and mastery of it. It is possible to believe that Mahler, if he could hear such interpretation, would be grateful and impressed by it. The audience appreciated the work and the interpretation, which honors Mr. Mengelberg and the composer.

ANDRES SEGOVIA LIMITS ENCORES IN GREENWICH

Action Is Attributed to His Displeasure at Late Arrival of Some Members of Audience.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 16.—The fact that Andres Segovia, guitarist, limited his encores last evening when he appeared here in the third and final concert of the season, sponsored by the Wednesday Singing Club, was attributed to irritation when members of Greenwich society entered the high school auditorium fifteen minutes and half an hour after the program started at 8:45.

One group of persons who were ushered to seats in the front of the hall just as he was about to play his third number caused the artist to remain in silence, as he glared at the late arrivals.

Aside from repeating Shubert's "Moment Musical" and giving one encore after his closing group, the artist responded to the prolonged applause by bowing.

He played many of the numbers with which he achieved triumphs in this country when he appeared at the Town Hall, New York, as well as in his European tours.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Frank M. Carson, chairman; Mrs. Theodore B. Conklin, Mrs. Edgar T. Mead, Mrs. Walter C. Douglas, Mrs. Frank H. Filley and Mrs. Alfred Gilbert Smith, secretary and treasurer.

SING AT 'ARTISTIC MORNING'

Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan, and Santa Biondo, soprano of that company, were the artists of yesterday's "artistic morning" at the Plaza. Mr. Gigli sang "Una Furtiva Lagrima" from Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amore," "Dalla Sua Pace" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and the "Lohengrin" narrative. Miss Biondo's songs included the soprano air from Catalani's "La Wally," the familiar "Voi Che Sapete" from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and Tchaikovsky's "None but the Lonely Heart," sung in Italian. Both artists were recalled by the large audience. The program closed with the duet from Puccini's "La Boheme."

American Singers Repeat "Figaro."

Mozart's "Figaro," an aristocratic "sequel" antedating another musician's popular "Barber of Seville," was repeated in rococo black-and-silver settings by the American Opera Company at the Casino last evening. Young voices and English speech gave a zest to Lorenzo da Ponte's libretto of intrigue a century after that author had first taught Italian in New York. Cecile Sherman's impish Cherubino carried off first comedy honors with a laughing house. Others were the Misses McCord, Stevenson, Golden and Stephan, Messrs. Laramy, Daniels, Rice, Chambers and Scholtz, and Willard Rhodes conducted. The visiting singers tonight repeat "Yolanda of Cyprus" and tomorrow "Butterfly" and "Faust."

"Luisa Miller" Sung Third Time.

Before one of the Metropolitan's largest audiences, Verdi's "Luisa Miller" was melodiously sung last evening for the third time in its current revival of the "good old" Italian opera days. There was no doubt of the popular enthusiasm shown for Rosa Ponselle's singing as the sentimental heroine drawn from Schiller's pastoral drama, while Lauri-Volpi's two arias in the second act also earned the tenor an ovation. The Misses Telva and Doninelli and Messrs. De Luca, Ludikar, Pasero and Paltrinieri reappeared, and Mr. Serafin again conducted. Tonight Mme. Elizabeth Ohms of Munich makes her Metropolitan début as Brunnhilde in Wagner's "Götterdämmerung."

"The Little Show" to Close Feb. 1.

"The Little Show" will close at the Music Box Theatre on Saturday night, Feb. 1, after a New York run of forty weeks, and will open its road tour in New Haven on Feb. 3. Subsequent engagements are scheduled at the Wilbur Theatre in Boston and the Shubert Theatre in Philadelphia. The producers, William A. Brady Jr., Dwight Deere Wiman and Tom Weatherly, are now casting a second "Little Show," which will open in New York about Apr. 21.

GRIBBLE TO PRODUCE OLD ENGLISH DRAMA

His "Elizabeth and Essex" Is Derived From Three Plays of 1761, 1767 and 1770.

TITLE OF GUILD PLAY ALSO

Harry Wagstaff Gribble yesterday announced for February production a play entitled "Elizabeth and Essex," which he declared was derived from three old English plays produced in London between 1761 and 1770. Under Mr. Gribble's direction the play will go into rehearsal on Monday as the first of a series of productions he will stage in association with W. P. Tanner, under the management of the latter.

The plays which Mr. Gribble has edited and arranged in a new scenario form are said to be "The Earl of Essex," by Henry Brooke, 1761; another play of the same name, by John Banks, produced in 1767, and a third play of that title, by Henry Jones, produced in 1770. The Theatre Guild's schedule of productions for this season includes a play by Maxwell Anderson based on the story of Queen Elizabeth and the Earl. The title of Mr. Anderson's play, tentatively announced as "Elizabeth and Essex," may be changed, officials of the Guild said last night when apprised of Mr. Gribble's plans.

MUSICALE BY JERITZA.

Prima Donna Sings for the Haarlem Philharmonic Society.

Maria Jeritza appeared at the third musicale of the Haarlem Philharmonic Society yesterday at the Astor. Emile Polak was at the piano. At no time has the diva given a more moving interpretation of music and text than on this occasion. The audience, which occupied every available seat in the ballroom, recalled her repeatedly.

Her program included Schumann's "Widmung," Augusta Holmes's sombre "Au pays" and airs in three languages from "Tote Stadt," "Hérodiate" and "La Gioconda." Encores included Schubert's "Erlkönig," Santuzza's air from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and short lyric pieces. Mme. Jeritza was dressed in simple black because of the recent death of her brother.

Catholic Actors' Guild Meets Today.

The Catholic Actors' Guild of America will meet at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon at the Hotel Astor. The prologue of "The Sap from Syracuse," which will be adopted by the guild as its play for January, will be presented following a brief address on playwriting by Jack O'Donnell, one of the authors of the play. Elsa Ersi and Miriam Battista will also be on the entertainment program. Donald Brian, president of the guild, will preside.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The annual benefit of the Actors' Fund will be held this afternoon at the New Amsterdam Theatre. A long list of well-known entertainers is scheduled to appear.

Donald Ogden Stewart, who made his début as a professional actor last season in "Holiday," will appear in his own comedy, "Rebound," opening at the Plymouth Theatre on Feb. 3. George MacQuarrie and Robert Williams have been added to the cast.

With the engagement of John Barker, last seen in "Follow Thru," the cast of George White's musical show, "Flying High," opening in Boston on Feb. 3, instead of Detroit, is now complete. Other players will include Bert Lahr, Grace Brinkley, Kate Smith, Dorothy Hall, Russ Brown, The Gale Sisters, Pearl Osgood, Fred Manatt, Bob Lively and Henry Whittemore.

The Broadway première of "Dear Old England," which had been set for the week of Feb. 3 at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, has again been deferred. After its engagement in Philadelphia, where it is now playing, "Dear Old England" will go to Chicago.

Gertrude McDonald will join the cast of "Fifty Million Frenchmen" next Monday. Miss McDonald will appear in the rôle previously played by Betty Compton, who withdrew from the show.

With the withdrawal for the time being of "Mrs. Cook's Tour," Mary Boland will go to the Pacific Coast to appear in a production of "Ladies of Jury."

A London production of "Waterloo Bridge" may be made by Seymour Hicks, who is now in New York.

There will be an Actors' Fund matinee of "Sketch Book" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre next Tuesday afternoon.

The American Laboratory Theatre has added Tuesday evening and Saturday afternoon performances of "The Three Sisters" to its schedules. The play was previously presented only on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

According to announcement from the Hammerstein office, Violet Carlson, now appearing in "Sweet Adeline," will have the leading rôle in Mr. Hammerstein's first production next season, an operetta by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein 2d.

The Paris-American Players have moved from the Theatre Femina, Paris, to the Theatre Coumartin, according to word received here. Their present production is a modern dress version, in English, of Molière's "La Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

Walter Hampden has become a member of the theatre committee of "Playchoice," which picks a play a month for its subscribers.

MUSIC NOTES.

Puccini's "La Bohème" is to be sung as a benefit performance at the Metropolitan on Tuesday evening, March 4, on the return of Bori and Gigli from concert tours. The proceeds will go to the charity fund of the Knights of Columbus.

George Gershwin, Frank Sheridan and the Stradivarius Quartet will play and Walter Damrosch will speak at a benefit musicale of the Henry Street Settlement to be held on Sunday evening, Feb. 2, at the New York Junior League Club.

Rudolph Gruen will give a piano recital on Friday night of next week at the formal opening of the new Sutton Hotel for professional and business women.

Leila Troland Gardner and Edgar Shelton, composers, are to be guests of the National Opera Club next Thursday evening at the American Woman's Association.

Tomorrow's free orchestra concert at the Metropolitan Art Museum has been revised to include Bach's air on the G-string, Nicolai's "Merry Wives" overture and part of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade."

Albert Morini of Vienna, now staying at the National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street, will manage the negro choir of the Hampton Institute, Virginia, comprising forty mixed voices, which will tour five European countries next Spring. The choir will sail late in April.

"EVERYTHING'S JAKE!" AN ENJOYABLE COMEDY

Taking up once more the adventures of those two amiable alcoholics, Clem Hawley and Al, whom he introduced in "The Old Soak," of happy memory, Don Marquis has, in "Everything's Jake!" written a comedy that is not unlike the little girl with the curl down the middle of her forehead. When the new play at the Assembly is good, it is very very good, and when it is bad it is—well not exactly horrid, but considerably below what you might expect. Fortunately the broad and brighter moments of comedy are frequent, and "Everything's Jake!" possesses enough of them to be enjoyable entertainment.

Mr. Marquis is at his best when he is writing freely and unrestrainedly about his characters, unconcerned with the exactions imposed by playbuilding. His native wit flows nimbly, and from time to time he achieves scintillant lines which are packed with wise and felicitous observation. And he has written two scenes that are about as funny as anything the town's song-and-dance fiestas have to offer. It is when he comes face to face with the necessity for telling a story or creating a situation—when, in short, he has to build a play—that he falls into a series of not very adroit devices. Luckily, in the sprawling course of "Everything's Jake!" these do not matter much.

Clem and Al are now in Paris, where they have been taken by their crony, Jake Smith, a successful bootlegger. They make their appearance, a bit ill at ease in the presence of real English nobility, the Countess of Billhorn, in Jake Smith's elegant hotel suite. But as soon as they discover that the Countess is related to and part owner of Billhorn's whisky, they are very much at home.

So is the blunt, aristocratic English woman when she learns that she is in the presence of real Americans, who, unlike Jake's wife, are not pretending to wealth and position, and a good time is had by all as preparations are made to transport Billhorn's liquor across the Atlantic for illegal consumption here. It is one of the funniest scenes of the comedy.

It is topped a few moments later by an interlude so unrelated to the rest of the play that it could almost stand alone in vaudeville or a revue. This is the scene wherein Al, Clem and Jake sit at a Parisian sidewalk café, exercising their tremendous ignorance of French in the ordering of refreshments. "The cat's whiskers" gets them four whiskies after they have tired of vin rouge, but they want six. Al confides that the word for six is soixante and as the blackout arrives they are endeavoring to follow the finest traditions of American manhood by disposing of the sixty drinks.

Otherwise Clem and Al, assisted by one Henry Withers, of wandering tendencies and a desire to place wreaths on Voltaire's tomb, are mainly concerned in getting Jake out of the hands of a blackmailing actress. The extent of Jake's lapse, as he constantly maintains, was "to get lit up and kiss a woman in a taxicab," but for a while things look pretty black for him. Or as black as they can look in a manufactured plot of no great consequence. You may be sure it all comes out for the best in the end, with Jake broke, the designing woman showing a generous streak and Billhorn's spirituous beverage about to earn them all another fortune.

The two old soaks have changed considerably since their previous incarnation by Harry Beresford and Robert O'Connor. Charles Kennedy's Clem Hawley is one of those bibulous souls who go in for a reading of the Scriptures and for the predicting of dire calamities for fallen women. Edward Donnelly's Al is neither as genial nor as expansive as was O'Connor's, but his preserved in alcohol characterization is a delight and his acting of the loyal bartender who would "go through hell for Jake" assuredly the outstanding performance of the evening.

Thurston Hall, though obviously no longer concerned with the extravaganza at the Lyric, is still, as Jake, a bluff, hearty "home folks" American among 50,000,000 Frenchmen. The performances of consequence among the feminine members of the cast are by Catherine Willard, as the adventuress, Jean Adair, as Jake's extremely nouveau riche wife, and Ethel Ethel Morrison as the countess. So much of "Everything's Jake?" is good, robust fun that just possibly it does not matter much about the play.

DUTCH CAST ACTRESS IN 'JOURNEY'S END'

Miss Nel Stants to Have Role of Schoolboy Officer—Former Mrs. Straight a London Backer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 16.—The Dutch custom of casting actresses in the rôles calling for youths will for the first time introduce a woman in the cast of R. C. Sherriff's war play, "Journey's End." The fact that Mr. Sherriff's play had no part for a woman was a "headline" incident which first brought the play to the attention of the English newspaper readers.

Miss Nel Stants, a young performer whose first notable success was in a Dutch translation of Shaw's "St. Joan," will take the part of the schoolboy officer Raleigh in the dugout scene.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—As the play nears the end of its first year's run in London on Tuesday it is revealed that an American woman, the former Mrs. Willard Straight, was one of the financial backers of the original production here. She was also associated with Maurice Browne, the American producer of Mr. Sherriff's play, in his recent acquisition of the Queen's and Globe theatres.

Her second husband, Leonard K. Elmhirst, is a collaborator with Mr. Browne and also a director in the newly formed company, Maurice Browne, Ltd.

GEORGE JESSEL A PRODUCER

He Will Give Soon a Play Called "A Cup of Coffee."

George Jessel, who is now appearing in a tryout of Bertram Bloch's play, "Even in Egypt," for John Golden, will soon make his début as a theatrical producer by offering a play called "A Cup of Coffee." The name of the author of the play, the entire action of which is said to take place in a lunch wagon, has not been made known. The principal rôle will probably be acted by Hugh O'Connell.

"GREATEST OF MODERN NEWSPAPERS"
I think of the New York Times as the greatest of modern newspapers. * * * I should like to add my voice to the chorus of praise which has arisen from all parts of the world. Even out here on the edge of the American continent The Times is read and admired as a great newspaper whose presentation of the news is singularly reliable, intelligent and effective. Long may The Times continue to stand as the exponent of large-minded and clear-sighted sanity in public life.

A VOTE FULL OF MEANING.

Yesterday's defeat of the higher duties on sugar, fought for by the Senate Finance Committee and the Republican organization, was overwhelming. Contrary to all the political forecasts from Washington, the Harrison amendment, maintaining the duties at their present level, was adopted by a vote of 48 to 38. No less than eighteen Republican Senators—only six or seven of whom have acted with the "Progressives"—broke away from their party leaders on this issue. Thus it was not another case of a triumph of the Coalition between the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans. One regular Republican after another, CAPPER, GILLETT, JONES, KEYES, METCALF, ROBINSON of Indiana, refused to vote for a duty on sugar which they knew would mean, in effect, a direct tax of $50,000,000 or so on consumers. When Republican Senators from Massachusetts and New Hampshire and Rhode Island yield to the force of such an argument, it looks as if the days of high protection even in New England were numbered.

The Senate vote was directed primarily against the demands of the beet-sugar growers. The latter have not yet given up hope that they may obtain part of what they wanted through a bounty to be paid out of the Treasury. Senator BORAH, who was on record yesterday against the high sugar duties, would doubtless vote for the bounty, which he has favored. A few others of yesterday's majority might do likewise. But the strong probability is that the bounty will prove even more objectionable than the higher duty, and will lose when it comes to the test, probably in the Senate; if not there, then certainly in the House. It will be felt that the bounty is a complete giveaway of the protective system. It does directly what tariff taxes strive to accomplish indirectly. The latter are just as much a gift as the former, though they are ordinarily concealed, at least partly, from the consumer. And if a farmer should be paid a bounty for raising sugar, why not for growing wheat or corn or oats? The precedent would be dangerous to set. No one could tell where next there might be a demand that it be applied. With so much dynamite, political and personal, in the bounty method, it appears altogether unlikely that it will be seriously attempted.

For months the sugar schedule has been regarded as the critical one in the whole tariff bill. It has now proved to be such in more senses than one. The fight for higher rates on sugar, without regard to its effect on the chief industry of Cuba, and our relations with that island, has been lost. But much more than that has been lost. Republican prestige in the Senate has suffered a grievous blow. An even heavier blow has been dealt to the protective system, which has so long held the allegiance and even the worship of the Republican party. For the arguments which have led to the rejection of higher rates on sugar are just as sound against many of the other tariff schedules. Senators dared not vote openly to tax an article of necessity and universal consumption like sugar. Will they dare much longer to tax boots and shoes and clothes and gloves and eggs and milk and meat and fruit, which enter into the budget of millions of American homes? As soon as you concede that a consumer has rights which the manufacturer is bound to respect, it is all up with the high protection to which the Republican party has so long been wedded. The vote on the sugar tariff stands up like a white flag signaling surrender all along the tariff line.

AMBULANCE PLANS.

There is still much confusion about the city's ambulance plans. What Commissioner SCHROEDER originally had in mind was something in the nature of a city-wide municipal service, with ambulances located at convenient points, possibly in police garages or at fire stations. His successor, Dr. GREEFF, apparently has a less ambitious scheme. His own hospital experience must have made it clear to him that it would be difficult to man ambulances so quartered with competent men. The modified plan contemplates having city ambulances assigned to the various hospitals. For the present, at least, it is to be confined to Brooklyn. Dr. GREEFF has even gone so far as to state that the existing service in Manhattan is "so satisfactory" that he can "think of no way of improving it." Details of the Brooklyn experiment are still to be worked out in consultation with the hospital authorities of that borough.

One of them remarked the other day that as a hospital superintendent he was in favor of city ownership, because it was financially advantageous to the institution he represented. As a citizen, however, he was opposed to it, because he believed that it would be "a mighty expensive plan in the end." It is hard to see what the city would gain by owning the ambulances and providing chauffeurs for them that it could not obtain by the simple expedient of liberalizing the present allowance to the private hospitals for their upkeep. The City Club has already pointed out administrative obstacles in the path of joint control. Only publication of the plan will reveal how far they have been met. Before it is subscribed to, even for Brooklyn, there should be opportunity for full public discussion. Hospital superintendents and city officials are not the only interested parties in an agreement which would bring about such a radical change in municipal policy.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

As was expected, the hearing on the Philippines in the Senate Committee on Insular Affairs opened on Wednesday with an impassioned plea by the Speaker of the Philippine House, Señor ROXAS, that his people be given complete, immediate and absolute independence. To be sure, he made it clear that if independence were to be granted, his people would like to continue their free-trade relations with the United States. There was even an implication that they would not be averse to having the United States give them a helping hand in other ways. But if—and here the Speaker was more philosophical than usual—there was to be no independence immediately, he hoped that a commission such as Senator BINGHAM has suggested might be sent out to study Philippine problems.

This was in accordance with the suggestion made last week in Manila by the President of the Philippine Senate, Señor QUEZON, to the effect that the views of Senator BINGHAM, Chairman of the Committee on Insular Affairs, should be thoughtfully considered. Both of the Filipino leaders apparently realize that a fuller study of the relationship between the United States and the Philippines might alter the views of some of those Americans who today are urging independence for their own selfish reasons or simply because they have not the energy to study the matter fully and think to cloak their weariness in terms of independence.

On the part of Senator BORAH, likewise, there has been a growing realization of the conflict between aspirations and realities. He professed himself an advocate of independence, but hastened to add that he did not believe that he or any one now alive would live to see it granted. Only a week ago he had said that he expected a bill for independence would pass the Senate this year, but that it would probably be held up in the House.

In the latter body two selfish forces have combined. There is the group representing the beet-sugar States and the dairy interests, and also the group unwilling to face the responsibilities alike of possession and of withdrawal.

These are hardly sound grounds on which to consider independence. Rather is it necessary to examine the extent to which the United States has not yet fulfilled its promises to the Filipino peoples; the probable economic consequences of independence within the Islands themselves; the ability of the Filipinos to finance their government when American protection is withdrawn; the defense of the archipelago; the effect of independence on the Moros and on the Filipino peasants, who have found in the United States a sturdy champion against local oppressors; the reactions of independence on neighboring lands; the disturbance of the political equilibrium in the Far East—in short, many complicated questions of the most grave consequence.

SANCTIONS AND THE WORLD COURT.

Both sides at The Hague conference are gainers by the compromise agreement regarding the application of force in case of deliberate default by Germany under the Young Plan. Whether at any moment the German Government is consciously engaged in destroying the Young Plan is to be determined by the World Court. If the Court rules in the affirmative, the French are at liberty to apply the "sanctions" provided in the Versailles Treaty, and Germany promises not to regard such measures as an act of war. By this renunciation of the right to sit as judge in her own case France adds to her moral standing before the world. It should render impossible the once familiar charges of French militarism and imperialism. Germany, on the other hand, gains additional security against French aggression and at the same time avoids any suspicion of planning sabotage against her treaty obligations.

In the furthest reach of events it may yet turn out that the chief beneficiary by The Hague agreement on sanctions is the World Court itself. Its prestige is notably enhanced when upon its decision is made dependent the march of armies and the seizure of territory. A popular definition of the World Court today would be, after the old schoolboy formula, that it is a Court which the United States is extremely slow in entering. Publicity about the World Court in relation to the United States vastly outweighs public information about what the World Court, now in its eighth year, does. Its operations, registered in the form of orders, judgments and advisory opinions, have been concerned with matters of importance in the sense that they have been matters in which the parties concerned have always been sovereign States. But it would be idle to pretend that the issues in themselves have been of transcendent importance. The Court has decided a number of cases involving German interests in Poland, the powers of the Danube Commission, interpretation of the Treaty of Neuilly between France and Bulgaria, interpretation of agreements between Turkey and Greece, commercial concessions in Palestine in which the Greek Government has sued the British Government, damages from false arrest claimed by the French Government from the Turkish Government, and the like.

In scope these matters are obviously not in the same class with the problem of German reparations. In nature such cases would be of that "juridical" type which has always been within the competence of courts. The determination whether or not a future German Government is violating the provisions of the Young Plan obviously involves interpretation of fact, as well as of right and obligation, and so answers the full conception of a court engaged in administering international justice.

FELICITIES OF AMENDMENT.

Save under professional compulsion, too few persons poke their noses into statute books. They wrong their mental processes by not submitting them to a severe test. They deprive themselves of one of the most singular of human dialects. At this time, when so much is said of the need to make the law clearer and simpler, they remain in darkness as to the grandeurs of the old and still strong school of legislation. An article in The Harvard Review, starting from the fact that the main work of State Legislatures in the last few years has been the amendment of previous acts, directs attention to the "barbarous" form of amendatory legislation in many States.

Indiana seems to specialize in this curious phraseology. Not, as might be thought, with an eye on that provision in her State Constitution by which every person of good moral character and 21 years of age has the right to become a lawyer; not to discourage ambitious youth by trying to befog their intellects. The courts have given a twist to the ordinary constitutional requirement that no revision or amendment shall be made by mere reference to the title of the act and that the act amended or section revised be set forth at length. The object of this was to guard against the familiar trick of "blind" amendment. Out of this prohibition the courts have somehow drawn the doctrine that the amending statute must recite in full, in its very words, the title of the original act.

Another section of the State Constitution provides that the subject of every act "shall be expressed in the title." In one way and another, further steps of bedevilment were taken. It would be tedious to follow them. Indeed, how could we hope to struggle with forms to break a draftsman's heart; with "an abra-"cadabra of verbiage, of acts to "amend an act to amend an act"; with "a useless mass of words com-"plicated by section numbers piled "one upon the other in utter con-"fusion"? Here is an example, the title and purview of the primary election act of 1929:

An act to amend section 4 of an act entitled "An act to amend sections 1, 3, and 7 of an act entitled 'An act entitled an act to amend sections 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 26, 27 and 33 and to repeal sections 23 and 28 of an act entitled "An act to provide for the holding of primary elections and conventions by political parties, for the nomination of candidates thereby, for the organization of such parties, and prescribing penalties for the violation of the provisions thereof," approved March 8, 1915,' approved March 8, 1917, and to amend section 3 of an act entitled 'An act to provide for the holding of primary elections and conventions by political parties, for the nomination of candidates thereby, for the organization of such parties, and prescribing penalties for the violation of the provisions thereof,' approved March 8, 1915," approved March 12, 1925, and to amend section 34 and to repeal sections 14 and 33 of an act entitled "An act to provide for the holding of primary elections and conventions by political parties, for the nomination of candidates thereby, for the organization of such parties, and prescribing penalties for the violation of the provisions thereof," approved March 8, 1915. * * * Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Indiana, That section 4 of the first above entitled act be amended to read as follows: Section 4. That section 7 of the first above entitled act be amended to read as follows: Section 7. That section 11 of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows: Section 11. On the first Tuesday after the first Monday. * * *

A copy of this masterpiece ought to be on the desk of every member of a Legislature.

DIGNITY OF THE HOUSE.

The House of Representatives has grown sensitive recently about its rights and dignities. It cheered Speaker LONGWORTH yesterday when adopting a resolution offered by a Democratic member from Nebraska, Mr. HOWARD, thanking the Speaker for refusing to fall in with the President's request for a joint Congressional committee to reorganize enforcement agencies. Whatever the polite explanations of that action at the time, it was made clear yesterday that the House considered it a gesture of independence of both the White House and the Senate. When commentators spoke of the "first breach between Mr. HOOVER and the House," this interpretation was mildly denied by House leaders. But it is evident from the mood of the House when it passed the Howard resolution that it objects to recent remarks to the effect that it is "the Administration's rubber stamp."

Ever since foreign affairs occupied so much of the attention of Congress, the Senate has filled more space in the public eye than has the House. Split into blocs and lacking a closure rule, the Senate has often annoyed the country by the protracted and indecisive nature of its proceedings. It has quarreled with every President recently in office. It has pried into personal affairs of citizens without exercising discretion as to which of them should be made public. And it has drenched the land with oratory. Throughout this period the House has steadily performed its business. Its party majority has usually been large and stable. As a result of its calm efficiency, in the Senate and elsewhere the impression seemed to arise—at any rate, the House thought it did—that the larger branch was the reliable dray-horse of Presidential and party cargoes. At its first opportunity the House, through Speaker LONGWORTH, served notice of its independence and its determination to retain all its ancient privileges. That is what produced yesterday's cheers.

YANKEE ADAPTATION.

The January issue of The Industrial Bulletin, published by Arthur D. Little, Inc., furnishes several illustrations of Yankee cooperative ingenuity and enterprise, by means of which certain New England communities have readjusted themselves to sudden changes in industrial conditions. These instances have had back of them broad regional activities by such bodies as the New England Council, the meetings of the New England Governors and the State publicity bureaus, but they would have come to little except for the intensive local community effort.

A notable illustration is the success with which Bridgeport ("The Brass City") has made its adaptation. It was extremely prosperous during the World War, but at the end found itself with enormous factories and crowds of workmen suddenly without a market for its product. Now as a result of the cooperation for the common good of the whole city, it is again an "enor-"mously busy place, so busy that it "is extremely hard to find a place "to live." The Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has brought in twenty-six new factories with an annual payroll of between four and five million dollars. And it is stated that only those industries have been encouraged that are likely to be permanent.

Lowell, Mass., which suffered greatly from the effects of the textile depression, in working for the diversification of its industries added in two years (1927, 1928) twenty-three industries and several millions to the city's industrial payrolls. The City Government has relieved new industries of heavy taxes, while an Industrial Credit Fund has been of aid to new industries in their financing. In its neighbor, Lawrence, the abandoned textile mills have been "parceled out" to various small industries, with the result that about twenty plants "now located outside of New England" will be ultimately transferred to that one city, and five thousand workers brought in to take the place of the twenty-two hundred in the cotton mill. Keene, N. H., another illustration, has in the loss of an important industry (the car shops) gathered in through united effort several divergent industries and is now making things "never before made in Keene."

The moral which this story carries is that citizens must "iron out" their individual differences, organize for the common benefit, and help not only to bring in new industries but to make them successful when they do come. Competition is lifted into a higher range.

PRACTICAL FIRST AID.

Factories of all kinds, large and small, and all industrial plants employing more than a few hundred workers are interested in maintaining their forces in good physical condition. Accident prevention, first aid, general supervision of health are part of the program in a well-managed industry. With the best intentions, employers are sometimes too vague in the execution of plans for health work. They engage a physician and give him a staff and office, and perhaps a hospital room, and thus emergencies are taken care of. But the machinery of the medical department can be much more widely used.

In The Red Cross Courier is an account of one phase of such a possibility for increased usefulness. Dr. D. L. LYNCH, medical director of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, gives the results of his ten years of experience there in first-aid work. He has tried two methods of instruction, but the first, through physicians, was abandoned early in favor of lay instruction. His charges number 21,000 men and women. Telephone men work alone or in small groups. He could not engage enough assistants to give them all a first-aid course in a reasonable length of time. Neither could he permit accidents to become more numerous and more serious through lack of instruction. Besides, if he had employed doctors, he would have had to let them go at the end of the course, and first-aid work needs to be continued from month to month and year to year.

He got about among the men himself and selected in every group one who showed in some way that he had qualities of leadership. His choice had to be a man who was well thought of by the others, who was capable of understanding and explaining first-aid work and who was genuinely eager to keep his group or district free from accidents. No doctor had been able to get at the men as well as these lay instructors did. If the men did not understand what the doctor was talking about, they would not ask him to explain more simply. But they did not hesitate to interrupt the lay instructor, to make him back up his statements with good authority, to point out unsafe working conditions and condemn them. On the other hand, he was more free with them than the doctor could be. He called them by their first names, knew how to persuade the fellow who says he "doesn't need first-aid training" and coaxed the clumsy and embarrassed to care for a wound or wind a bandage. He knows far better than the doctor what types of injury are most frequent in his industry, and he emphasizes the telling factors in accident prevention and first aid.

Lay instructors are also valuable in the contact they maintain between executives and workers. They are under the supervision of the medical director, who readily accepts confidences about special cases. All kinds of difficulties may be prevented by their recognition at an early stage. The medical director who makes it his business to train and follow up his lay assistants is an invaluable friend to the men and and an asset to the company.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Voting Machines Everywhere.

For years Tammany Hall opposed the introduction of voting machines in this city. JOHN R. VOORHIS, veteran chairman of the Board of Elections, used to shake his head whenever any one mentioned this newfangled mechanism, and when it was discussed at Albany JAMES J. WALKER, then a State Senator, raised his voice against it. The Republicans, however, persistently strove to have the machines installed in the metropolitan stronghold of Tammany, and finally succeeded.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. A New York City Democrat is Secretary of State, and he is urging that the machines be installed throughout the up-State counties where the Republicans still rule. It is reported that they will frown on Mr. FLYNN's suggestion. A voting machine in New York City is apparently a very different sort of a contraption from a voting machine in Painted Post.

There is a good deal of foolish prejudice in this opposition. The machines have long passed the experimental stage. They work well and make for accuracy, speed and honesty in the count. In the last Presidential election one-sixth of all the votes in the United States were cast on them. Up-State New York should fall into line. Its spokesmen need not worry about the effect of the machines on the vote there. If Tammany has suffered from their use in this city, it has not been observed.

Old Clothes for Export.

In New York when an old suit of clothes is discarded it generally finds its way to a second-hand shop in Eighth Avenue or somewhere in the lower east side. In Europe cast-off garments are destined for a more fateful and adventurous future.

Every year some 5,000,000 suits and gowns which have outlived their usefulness are collected from all over France and England. They are received at St. Ouen, the colored district of Paris, where they are sorted, cleaned and mended in preparation for the export markets of Tunisia, Algiers and Morocco. It is a flourishing industry, employing thousands of girls. Lille also is a great market for old clothes.

They are bought at so much the pound, depending on fluctuations of supply and demand. In Africa they are sold at anything from 25 cents to $5 the suit. An English paper suggests that a good slogan for the trade would be "Shilling Suits for Sheiks."

There may be a political as well as an economic element in the French practice of passing on the nation's old clothes to the colonies. African tribesmen are far more likely to feel in sympathy with citizens of the mother country if they get into the way of wearing the same sort of clothes—in fact, the same clothes.

The School Art League.

There is an organization in New York that for more than twenty years has aided in developing the interest of public school students in art. It is known as the School Art League and has grown from a committee of ten to a membership of over 18,000. Of this number about 17,000 are high school pupils who, for their term dues of ten cents, are privileged to attend eight "talks" at the art museums and annual exhibitions.

Other activities include scholarships for talented graduates from high school; Saturday morning classes for pupils who want more drawing, modeling, design and craft work than they can get in their classrooms; and medals for the best work done in the 415 elementary workshops and in the art classes of the thirty-eight high schools.

The time has come when the supervision of this work can no longer be by volunteers. In Philadelphia a teacher has been assigned by the Board of Education as director of the School Art League, and in New York precedent exists in the assignment of a number of teachers who cooperate with the Athletic League. As Mr. JOSEPH LEE, the president of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, said at a meeting a day or two ago, under the auspices of the Child Study Association of America, "recreation is not limited to athletics but includes the arts: music, drama, painting, modeling, &c."

What is done for athletics may with propriety be done for the arts. Unless some assistance of this kind is given to the School Art League it will be necessary to abandon in whole or in part the service now given to some 25,000 pupils a year.

Principal JACKS has said: "Give the children the kind of education that can be followed up and developed when they have become adults."

Popularity of Marriage.

Popularity seems a curious quality to ascribe to marriage. However, a reading of the article on the subject by FREDERICK L. COLLINS in the February Woman's Home Companion reveals that he means marriages are increasing in this country. He has made a survey of divorce and marriage, and his figures prove to his satisfaction that there are more marriages today for every thousand of population than there were twenty years ago. The increased number of divorces does not catch up to the increase in marriages.

Probably many divorces are obtained so that both of the parties to the original contract may marry again. Usually, one or the other has already selected the next mate, or been selected by one. A Mexican divorce judge calls himself Cupid's friend, because he gives him another chance, and Reno boasts that it is becoming a Gretna Green.

Mr. COLLINS challenges the statistics of other surveyors of marriage concerning the number of unmarried women in the country. He says that there are not more than there used to be. It only seems like more, because they "make more noise." Instead of shrinking into corners in other people's homes, they shout their single blessedness from the housetops. With them marriage is not "popular."

A PRAYER.

Give her the sunlight, wherever she goes;
Dear lips to kiss and a heart to break;
Nightlong the sleep of the folded rose—

Give her gay music, wherever she dwells;
The melodies thrushes and linnets make;
Each dawn the waking to silver bells—

Give her small blossoms, wherever she walks,
And evenings of hush where the rainbows live,
And moments alone when her own heart talks—
Let her have these, which I could not give!

WORKING OF MANDATES.

Much of Prof. Hocking's Argument Found to Have Been Anticipated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The current number of The Yale Review contains an interesting article on "The Working of the Mandates," based largely on a study of the Syrian mandate, by Professor William Ernest Hocking. Much of the argument of Professor Hocking's article on the nature of mandates is anticipated in an article by Elizabeth P. MacCallum, research associate of the Foreign Policy Association, and Edward Mead Earle, Associate Professor of History at Barnard College, Columbia University, in an article entitled "Trusteeship or Exploitation" published in Asia, September, 1926 (Asia, Volume XXVI, No. 9).

After discussing the difficulties inherent in the administration of the mandates and the difficulties confronting the Permanent Mandates Commission in getting at the whole truth, Professor Hocking says (p. 26):

"May I put forward a suggestion at first sight more audacious than any of the preceding? It has the merit of being the natural procedure, and its original vigor would be followed by a simple modus vivendi in which the sense of encroachment on the functions of the mandatory would disappear. It is, that there must be in each mandate a resident representative of the League who, by his constant presence, with his constant and visible respect for the mandatory power, reciprocated by that power, becomes a symbol of the primary relation of cooperation between them."

This proposal has also been anticipated:

1. In 1925 the League's commission (headed by Count Teleki) to investigate the Mosul boundary dispute included among its recommendations one to the effect that the League should maintain a resident commissioner in Mosul for a number of years for the purpose of receiving complaints and petitions of grievances. Although this was advanced as a temporary expedient only, it was not adopted by the League in its Mosul decision.

2. In an article in The Nation for Jan. 13, 1926 (p. 29), in a discussion of the Syrian situation, Professor Earle said:

"The mandates system cannot succeed without the cooperation of the Near Eastern peoples, and their cooperation will never be forthcoming until they are convinced that their case will obtain an honest hearing. The League, therefore, should maintain a resident commissioner in each of the 'Class A' mandated areas, including Syria, to receive complaints and petitions and to inform the Permanent Mandates Commission concerning observance of the letter and spirit of the covenant. A precedent for such a course of action exists in the report of the Turco-Iraq Boundary Commission, which proposes that a League resident be set up at Mosul on behalf of the minorities there represented."

This recommendation of Professor Earle followed a recital of the grievances of the inhabitants of the mandated territories—particularly denial of the right of petition except through the mandatory—very similar to the one which Professor Hocking has given.

There is no reference in Professor Hocking's article to either of these previous publications. It might be urged that Professor Hocking should be pardoned for having overlooked the two articles referred to. Even so, it seems unfortunate for him to have written on the mandates at such length without apparently knowing that his major proposal was made practically five years ago in a modified form by an important League commission.

Aid for Incurables Needed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

St. Francis' Home for Incurables, 609 East Fifth Street—there is nothing remarkable about the address unless one knows that there are nearly three hundred inmates there (they call it God's Cottage on Earth, by the way), and that there has always been a long waiting list, and that soon that home of suffering and loving service will be unsafe. The home was built on swampy ground and is sinking.

On Oct. 4, 1865, St. Francis' Hospital—two houses remodeled—was opened at that address. The Sisters of the Poor of St. Francis were in charge of it. By 1906, despite enlargements, the Fifth Street building became too small and a new St. Francis Hospital was opened on 143d Street. The old St. Francis' was sadly out of repair and was to be abandoned. Again the cry for a home for incurables was raised, and the hospital was extensively renovated and remodeled as a home and opened with 250 beds, which were promptly filled, and soon there was a long waiting list. By 1924 the Sisters owned a lot with a 180 foot frontage on Sixth Street, through to Fifth Street, with frontage there of 150 feet. The Sixth Street houses were filled as soon as they were acquired, of course.

Now the houses on Sixth Street are condemned; the Fifth Street home has nearly 300 patients, and will be condemned before very long.

The Sisters have the land, the experience in caring for incurables, the knowledge of the need of the home, the patients in the home and that tragic waiting list. They need a new home, to be built quickly on Sixth Street, to have ready for the reception of the patients when the present home must be vacated. They have not the money to build the new home.

You who are able must not fail these incurables, many of whom are in their second childhood—that pathetic childhood that holds no hope for its victims. By generous contributions enable the Sisters of St. Francis to build a new, commodious "God's Cottage on Earth," 1930 Model.

FINISHES 60TH YEAR IN MINISTRY MONDAY

HE WAS 86 LAST OCTOBER

Pastor Lays His Long Career to "Behaving Himself"—Smoked Once a Week, When Young.

The Rev. Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, and president of the Council of New York University, will on Monday complete sixty years in the ministry.

There are only two other active pastors in the city who have served that long. One is the Rev. Dr. George U. Wenner, for sixty-one years pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, 406 East Nineteenth Street, and the other is Mgr. Edward McKenna, pastor of St. Raymond's Roman Catholic Church, East Tremont and Castle Hill Avenues, the Bronx, who recently observed the sixty-first anniversary of his ordination.

Dr. Alexander will preach Sunday morning, and it is expected this will be a reminiscent sermon. He was 86 years old on Oct. 12. He works hard every day administering one of the largest Protestant parishes in the city and attending many board and committee meetings. He has been preaching in Manhattan forty-five years.

Asked his recipe for his excellent health and living so active a life, Dr. Alexander replied:

"'Behave yourself' is my recipe for longevity."

"No, I do not smoke," he said in response to another question, but for fifteen years of my life I habitually smoked once a week. Dr. Alexander has never in his life touched alcohol except by a doctor's prescription.

"Life is full of interest, very full. No, I have never regretted for an hour that I heeded the call to the Christian ministry. I have had a very happy ministry," he declared.

"I thought when I came to the metropolis from my pastorate in Schenectady, where I had served fourteen years, I was leaving the joy of my life behind me. Because social conditions were so different in New York, I thought I could not be a pastor as I had been in Schenectady. But in that I found New York a great disappointment. The hearts and homes of the people here are as open to a minister they trust as anywhere in the world.

"I never have had any experience with a church quarrel and I have never had any enemies—that I know of.

Dr. Alexander was one of the first men in America to learn stenography, and to this day he takes all his notes in shorthand.

OFFICER WINS NAVY CROSS.

Lieutenant Riddelhoff Decorated for Bravery in Nicaragua.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Jan. 16.—First Lieutenant Stanley E. Riddelhoff, United States Marine Corps, has received the Navy Cross for excellent service in the northern provinces of Nicaragua during the fifteen-month period ending June 30, 1929.

His accomplishments included leading a patrol into an unexplored region and capturing a bandit supply dump containing supplies for 100 men for one year, thereby inflicting a heavy material loss upon the bandits. On numerous other occasions he led patrols with unusual bravery. Later, as operations officer of the First Battalion of the Eleventh Regiment and then as adjutant, he displayed leadership and ability.

Lieutenant Riddelhoff's father lives in Los Angeles.

The presentation ceremony included a review of all troops available in Managua. General Dion Williams, United States Marine Corps, commanding the aviation unit in Nicaragua, circled over the field, diving close in tribute to Lieutenant Riddelhoff. The French Minister, M. Lamonte, was present, and the marine band played the French national anthem in his honor.

WILL START TRADE CENSUS.

Agents Get Instructions Prior to Canvass in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Fifty special agents of the Census Bureau, who will later supervise a census of manufactures and distribution in cities all over the United States, received instructions today before beginning a canvass of mercantile establishments in the District of Columbia.

Such a census, covering wholesale and retail trade, has never before been taken in the District. The question which the census agents will ask include a description of the business, the number of properties or firm members, the number of paid employes, distinguishing those that are on part time, the total amount paid in salaries or wages, amount paid for rent, if premises are rented, interest for money borrowed, total other expenses, stocks on hand and net sales, distinguishing cash sales from credit.

No information will be disclosed regarding any individual establishment, the data being used only for statistical tables. The canvass at the start will be restricted to establishments having annual sales of less than $60,000. The larger establishments will be canvassed later.

REOPENS CONSULATE TODAY

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Mexican Foreign Office announced today that the consulate at Laredo, Texas, closed for some weeks, will be reopened tomorrow.

The staff is being reassembled from El Paso, San Antonio and other points.

Additional help has been ordered from San Antonio to take care of the rush of business that is expected to follow the reopening of the consulate, which was closed by the government after District Attorney Valls had threatened to prosecute General Calles for complicity in the execution of two Mexican rebel officers several years ago if he passed through Laredo on his way home from Europe.

General Calles returned unmolested to Mexico, the American State Department having provided his diplomatic immunity, but the Mexican Government considered the threats of District Attorney Valls insulting and closed the consulate. American authorities have since been engaged in negotiations for its reopening.

GOVERNOR IN THRONG AT HAMILL FUNERAL

THOUSANDS LINE STREETS

Procession Is Led by Walker and Lehman—Burial in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Governor Roosevelt, Lieut. Gov. Lehman, Mayor Walker and scores of prominent officials of the city and State were among the more than 2,000 persons who crowded St. Alphonsus's Church, 312 West Broadway, yesterday for the funeral of Peter J. Hamill, minority leader of the Assembly. Mr. Hamill died early Monday morning in Polyclinic Hospital after a week's illness following an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Governor Roosevelt arrived at the church forty-five minutes before the beginning of a solemn high mass of requiem for the Democratic leader and was escorted to a front pew. The large auditorium soon was filled and several thousand persons lined the sidewalks in West Broadway and stood for more than an hour to view the procession.

The funeral procession started from the Hamill home at 34 Dominick Street, where thousands had filed past the silver-bronze coffin during the night and early morning. Mayor Walker and John F. Curry, Tammany leader, had arrived at the home half an hour before the start of the procession, which was led by Mayor Walker and Lieut. Gov. Lehman. Dozens of close friends made up the group that fell in line, including Republican as well as Democratic representatives.

The coffin, covered with pink rosebuds, a hanging border of lilies of the valley and a spray of orchids, was borne down the aisle followed by six nuns and then by members of the family. Mrs. Hamill was escorted by her brother, Eberhard Van Axen, and her brothers-in-law, George and Leo Hamill. Behind the family came Mayor Walker, Mr. Curry, John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, and others.

Father Langton Celebrates Mass.

The Rev. John Langton, Catholic chaplain at West Point, was the celebrant of the mass. The Rev. Francis A. Hemmer of St. Joseph's Church, West 125th Street, was deacon and the Rev. James A. Dunningham of St. Angela Merci Church, Morris Avenue and 163d Street, the Bronx, was subdeacon.

Jacques C. Ungerer, organist of St. Patrick's Cathedral, conducted the music. Six soloists from St. Patrick's sang in the mass chosen from "Messa da Requiem," by Don Lorenzo Perosi, and "Missa Pro Defuncti," by Claudio Casciolini. The soloists were John Finnegan, Alfred Boajian and De Los Becker, tenors; Henry Baumann and James Thomas, basses, and Jan Van Bonnell, baritone. At the close of the service "Lead, Kindly Light" was sung.

In the sanctuary during the services were Mgr. Thomas G. Carroll, Chancellor of St. Patrick's Cathedral; Mgr. J. B. Curry, the Right Rev. James M. Byrnes and the Rev. Andrew Kuhn, pastor of St. Alphonsus's.

Chief Inspector John O'Brien was in charge of the police contingent assigned to handle the large crowd. There were 200 patrolmen of the First Division under Inspector Vincent J. Sweeney, Deputy Inspector Thomas F. Walsh, two captains and twenty sergeants.

As the honorary pallbearers and officials marched out of the church they formed a double file for a half block up the street, through which the coffin was borne to the hearse. Under the direction of Inspector William Coleman and a large detail from the traffic squad, the procession of more than 200 automobiles got under way.

Burial in Holy Cross Cemetery.

The cortège moved through West Broadway to Canal Street and proceeded under motorcycle escort eastward to Centre Street, thence south to Duane Street, across to New Chambers, along Madison Street past Mr. Hamill's old clubhouse, to Market and Bayard Streets and finally over the upper roadway of Manhattan Bridge to Brooklyn and Holy Cross Cemetery, Flatbush, where burial took place in the family plot. The Rev. William J. Rafter of Holy Name Mission read the commital service at the grave.

Among those at the church were:

JOSEPH BURKE, former Assemblyman.

FORT VICTORIA OWNERS SUE FOR $1,500,000

A suit for $1,500,000 damages over the sinking in the lower bay of the British steamship Fort Victoria by the American steamship Algonquin was filed yesterday in the Federal Court here. The plaintiff is the Bermuda & West Indies Steamship Company, Ltd., owner and bailee of the British ship, and the defendant is the Clyde-Mallory Company as charterers, with the Cherokee-Seminole Steamship Corporation, of the Algonquin.

The accident occurred on the afternoon of Dec. 18 in a fog. No lives were lost, but the Fort Victoria with its freight and the personal effects of its passengers went to the bottom of Ambrose Channel. Serious charges, including negligence and a disregard of fog and other signals, are contained in petitions for and against the limitation of liability.

In replying to these charges affidavits by the defendant say that the British ship was not competently manned, and that it did not obey the fog rules.

It is also alleged that the damage received by the Fort Victoria was not in itself severe and that the leakage "could and should have been controlled by reasonably prompt closing of water bulkheads or by the use of a collision mat."

Federal Judge Coxe appointed Edward B. Boies of 15 William Street commissioner to determine claims arising out of the accident. Claims for damages must be filed with him on or before March 30.

RECITAL BY VAN HOESEN.

Baritone Repeats Success Achieved at Former Appearances.

Harrington Van Hoesen, a baritone who made a favorable impression at his first concerts here a season or two ago, gave a recital last night at the Town Hall, assisted by Frank La Forge at the piano. The singer repeated the success achieved at his former appearances, for he has a voice of fine natural quality and the taste and musicianship to make the most of his natural gifts. In his German, French and English songs, both serious and light in mood, he displayed his program-making skill. Many of the songs were unhackneyed, and nearly all of them of musical worth.

They included two Handel airs, from "Rodelinda" and "Siroe"; Brahms's vivacious "Mein Mädel hat einen Rosenmund" and "Verrath"; four songs by Hugo Wolf, grave and gay; a group of Spanish and French songs by Nin and Duparc, and the rollicking old French "Chanson du Jardinier"; and a final group of songs in English, including two by Mr. La Forge, "Far Away" and "Contemplation," the latter heard for the first time in public.

Mr. Harrington's performance of this exacting list was generally satisfactory and often attained a high level of excellence. His tone, however, which in sustained forte measures was full and round, often lost firmness of texture and resonance in rapid passages and in the parlando effects to which he resorted. The audience recalled the young singer enthusiastically, and there were many encores and repetitions. Mr. La Forge, who provided masterly accompaniments, shared in the applause.

'GENERAL JOHN REGAN' IS TO BE REVIVED

A revival of "General John Regan," a comedy by George A. Birmingham, will be presented by the Irish Theatre during the week of Jan. 27 as its third production of the season. The theatre's current revival of "The Playboy of the Western World" will close next week.

"General John Regan" was first produced here by George C. Tyler in 1913. After twelve weeks the engagement was interrupted by a dispute between the management and the late Arnold Daly, who was playing the title rôle. The late Sir Charles Hawtrey acted the part in London, where the play ran for a full season. In 1927 Mr. Tyler revived "General John Regan" on the road for E. H. Sothern. It was withdrawn after a short engagement.

J. Augustus Keogh, who recently arrived here to join the staff of the Irish Theatre, will stage the play. Mr. Keogh was formerly director for the Abbey Theatre in Dublin, and is said to have staged the first productions there of "John Bull's Other Island" and "The White-Headed Boy."

GEN. WODEHOUSE DIES AT AGE OF 77

FOUGHT AFGHAN AND ZULU

Wounded While on Indian Frontier—Chum of Prince Imperial of France, Killed in South Africa.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—General Sir Josceline Heneage Wodehouse, former Governor of Bermuda and former army commander in South Africa and India, died at his home in Farnham, Surrey, today, at the age of 77. In his cadet days he was a friend of the future Lord Kitchener and the ill-fated Prince Imperial, son of Napoleon III. The Prince and General Wodehouse served in the same artillery battery and were inseparable companions, having volunteered together for the Zulu War, in which the Prince was killed.

Born on July 17, 1852, the son of Admiral George Wodehouse, he was educated at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich and was commissioned in the Royal Artillery in 1872. In 1879 he served in the Zulu War, and in the next year fought with the horse artillery in the Afghan War. From 1883 to 1894 he was in the Sudan, serving the last seven years of this term as Governor of the Egyptian frontier province. In 1897 he was on the Indian frontier, and in the next year, while in command of the Third Brigade, Malakand field force, was badly wounded at Nawagai.

From 1898 to 1903 General Wodehouse served successively as president of the Indian districts of Bengal, Secunderabad, Lahore and Rawal Pindi. After having a commission at the War Office in London, he was appointed in 1907 Governor of Bermuda, being succeeded in 1908 by Gen. F. W. Kitchener, brother of Lord Kitchener. During the later years of his life he was the general officer commanding the Northern Army of India.

General Wodehouse was created a Companion of the Bath in 1889, a Companion of St. Michael and St. George in 1890, a Knight Commander of the Bath in 1908 and a Knight of the Grand Cross of the Bath in 1913.

He married in 1885 Constance, daughter of Sir Charles D'Aguilar, who died the next year. In 1901 he married Mary Joyce Sitwell.

CHARLES A. PERKINS, EX-PROSECUTOR, DIES

HANDLED CITY TRUST CASES

Took Part in the Lexow Investigation—Made a Drive Against Notorious Gangsters.

Charles Albert Perkins, District Attorney of New York County during part of the time John Purroy Mitchel was Mayor, and Special Assistant District Attorney in the cases recently arising out of the failure of the City Trust Company, died yesterday at his home in Suffern, N. Y., after an illness of six months. He was in his sixty-first year.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 A. M. in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. The body will be cremated.

During the greater part of his career as a lawyer, Mr. Perkins was in the District Attorney's office, having charge of many prosecutions. Born in Lawrence, Mass., on Jan. 26, 1869, the son of Albert C. and Caroline Perkins, he was educated in the public schools of Exeter, N. H., and at Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn.

Upon his graduation from Dartmouth College in 1890, he was elected permanent secretary of his class, and came to this city to take a position as clerk in the law office of Kenneson, Crain & Alling, of which the present District Attorney, Thomas C. T. Crain, was a member.

Upon receiving his degree from New York Law School in 1893, Mr. Perkins was admitted to the bar and entered private practice with Edward C. Bailey. Two years later he was retained to assist the prosecution in the Lexow committee investigation. In 1897 he was named by W. M. K. Olcott as a Deputy Assistant District Attorney. Previously he had taken part in drawing up the plans for the consolidation of the greater city.

After four years of private practice, Mr. Perkins was appointed Deputy District Attorney in 1902, and two years later was made Assistant District Attorney. During the thirteen years that he held the latter office, he had charge of the bureau of indictments and extradition, and prepared more than 75,000 indictments for grand jury consideration.

On the election of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman in 1914 as Governor, Mr. Perkins was appointed District Attorney of New York County, assuming office on Jan. 1, 1915. During the year of his incumbency he obtained a record number of convictions of notorious gang leaders. In the campaign of that year he received the Republican nomination for re-election to office over Frank Moss, but was defeated in the election by Judge Edward Swann.

He then entered private practice in partnership with Arthur Train, the author, later joining the firm of Perkins, Malone & Washburn, in which he continued until his death. In 1921, he was appointed special prosecutor in the Lockwood Committee's investigation of building supplies.

Mr. Perkins in June, 1928, was named by Moreland Commissioner Moses to act as special prosecutor in the State's investigation of the Banking Department and the cases arising from the City Trust Company failure. He was forced to resign last August because of ill health. He had also served on numerous committees of the New York County Bar Association, and last year was chairman of a committee investigating alleged police brutality.

Chickasaw, Farragut Gunboat, Now Ferries Autos in South

An old auto ferryboat which had not been drydocked since 1916, was found to be the famous Union gunboat Chickasaw during a recent inspection of her hull at the New Orleans plant of the Todd Shipyards Corporation.

When the hull was found to be made of charcoal iron, a type abandoned by shipbuilders fifty years ago, workmen investigated and found that the ferry was actually a historic craft.

The Chickasaw was built in 1863 at St. Louis and participated in the battle of Mobile Bay, under Admiral Farragut. In that battle she helped to bring about the downfall of the Confederate Forts Morgan, Powell and Gaines and in a desperate broadside battle with the Tennessee, pride of the Confederate Navy, forced her surrender after the commander of the Tennessee had been mortally wounded.

GEORGE D. WADLEY, PLANTER, DIES AT 72

SOUGHT $300,000,000 FUND

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 16.—George Dole Wadley, members of whose family were pioneers in the railroad development of Georgia and who himself was prominent in the construction and operation of railroads in the South and in Mexico, died today at the old Wadley plantation, twenty miles north of here. He was in his seventy-third year.

Mr. Wadley's most noteworthy work was in behalf of the cotton growers of the South when in 1912 he organized the Southern States Cotton Corporation for the purpose of stabilizing the price of cotton. He became its president. Unable to obtain sufficient financial assistance in this country he went to Germany to arrange for a loan of $300,000,000. The World War came along and with the drop of the price of cotton to six cents he lost a fortune.

The holding movement was dissolved, through a technical legal point raised by dissatisfied stockholders, but Mr. Wadley always insisted that the time would come when the plan would be effected to save the Southern farmers from ruin.

At one time he was a partner in the New York brokerage house of Browning & Co. He was superintendent of construction of the Mexican National Railway and was general manager of the Central of Georgia Railway system here, of which his father, William M. Wadley, was the first president. A daughter, Mrs. William G. Burt, survives.

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

It Is a Very Common Expression to Hear, "I Am the Most Useless thing in the world." Yet there are lots of things lying around you that you could do if you were to set your mind to see them. Of course, if you are only thinking of yourself, of having everything done for you, there is nothing necessary for you to do. But think of the cause that needs assistance and the wrongs that need resistance. Lots of people would welcome you to help in lightening life's burdens for others heavily loaded down.

In support of the effort for increased industrial activity, Wanamaker's has for many weeks been working in close cooperation with furniture manufacturers, and the result is

The Plan has been made possible by co-operative concessions, concessions by manufacturers looking for a large and immediate outlet for furniture, concessions by Wanamaker's on the entire furniture stock (all office furniture, Belmaison furniture, unpainted furniture being in the 20 per cent group) so as to promote the largest possible volume of distribution.

GUNDER AND 3 AIDES INDICTED FOR FRAUD

Three Corporations Also Named by Federal Grand Jury in Bankers' Capital Case.

LOSSES PUT AT $3,000,000

Misuse of Mails Is Charged in Five Counts and Conspiracy in the Sixth.

PLEADING SET FOR MONDAY

None of Defendants Arrested as Yet—Bills Voted After Prolonged Investigation

The Bankers' Capital Corporation, at 44 Wall Street, which recently was petitioned into bankruptcy with losses to investors estimated at more than $3,000,000, the Eastern Bankers' Corporation and the American Fiduciary Corporation were made corporate defendants yesterday in an indictment charging them and four individuals with use of the mails to defraud and conspiracy to effect that purpose.

The individual defendants are Howard H. Gunder, who was chairman of the board of directors of the Bankers' Capital Corporation; Roland J. Randall, who was its president; Philip Gunder, brother of Howard, who was a director of the corporation, and Everett J. Sturges, former State Banking Commissioner of Connecticut, who was president of the Bankers' Capital Company of that State.

The Federal grand jury alleged in the true bill that the defendants had made false representations, had sold and traded stocks among themselves and allied concerns in order to create fictitious profits and a fictitious market, had paid dividends which were not earned and had appropriated to their own uses moneys invested by customers. There are six counts in the indictment, five of which allege fraudulent use of the mails.

Six Overt Acts Charged.

Under the conspiracy count six overt acts are mentioned which include the alleged issuance of a false report that the earnings of the Bankers' Capital Corporation for the first six months of 1929 were more than $304,000, three exchanges of securities among the allied concerns, subscription by the Bankers' Financial Trust in 1927 for the entire issue of 4,000 shares of the sole voting stock of the American Fiduciary Corporation and the purchase in 1925 by Howard Gunder of 1,110 shares of preferred stock of the Financial Stocks Estate for which he gave only his note for $111,000.

The mail frauds counts name several persons to whom it is alleged the defendants sent false representations through the mails. These alleged recipients include Dr. Harry Grieff, 76 Columbia Street; K. Geissler, 1,729 Park Avenue; Charles F. Geissler, 1,729 Park Avenue; Tobias Shapiro, 69 Avenue C, and Ephraim Sudarsky, 277 Broadway, all in New York City. Others mentioned as intended victims of the alleged scheme to defraud are Samuel Ruchman, Albert Reichman, Meyer Kreeger, Martin S. Hubshman, Samuel D. Polson and Clairenell Reafern, whose addresses were not given.

The indictment set forth that a part of the alleged scheme to defraud was for the Bankers' Capital Corporation to acquire and control all the stock of the Bankers' Capital Company of Connecticut and a majority of the stock of Superior Service Finance Corporation, which, in turn, would control the voting stock of the Superior Credit Corporation. It was said further that the Bankers' Financial Trust was to control a majority of the voting stock of the Eastern Bankers' Corporation, the Bankers' Capital Corporation and the Delaware General Financial Corporation and all the stock of the American Fiduciary Corporation, and that the Financial Stocks Estate was to control a majority of the stock of the Bankers' Financial Trust.

"It was further a part of said scheme and artifice to defraud the victims aforesaid," continued the indictment, "that Howard H. Gunder would be sole beneficiary and only trustee of the Financial Stocks Estate."

Hearing Set for Monday.

All the "representations, pretenses and promises" outlined in the nineteen-page true bill were intended, according to the grand jury, "to induce victims to part with their money and property, it being the plan and purpose of the defendants to obtain said moneys and properties of said victims and to convert and appropriate the same to their own use in amounts and proportions to the grand jurors unknown."

Although none of the defendants has been arrested, Monday was set for arraignment and pleading before Federal Judge William Bondy. Each of the individual defendants was before the grand jury during United States Attorney Tuttle's investigation, which began after an equity receivership had been sought before the petition in bankruptcy had been filed. Assistant United States Attorneys George J. Mintzer and Emanuel G. Kleid presented the testimony to the grand jury.

COLD HALTS FLOODS AFTER LEVEES FAIL

Mississippi's Tributaries Overflow Northeastern Arkansas and Quitman County, Miss.

INDIANA STILL IN DANGER

Crest in Wabash and White Rivers There Moves South—Relief Appears in Ohio.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 16 (AP).—Flowing southward to the accompaniment of a cold wave and freezing temperatures, water from the rain-swollen St. Francis River tonight was spreading over lowlands in Greene County, Ark. In Mississippi the Coldwater River, after breaking its banks at several places in Quitman County, had sent a flow of water inland.

It was estimated the inundated area in Greene County will be increased to about 10,000 acres by water let in through depressions in the dike. Along the Coldwater levee workers were reported late today to have checked the flow by the use of sand bags.

The principal new trouble was a major break in the Big Lake levee in Arkansas late in the day, which was reported to the Federal engineers' office here tonight. The report said water was pouring through a 300-foot crevasse and that already more than 170,000 acres of extremely valuable lands had been flooded from two to three feet deep.

At other points in the lower Mississippi Valley levees were holding. The cold weather is proving an ally of the levee workers in checking the movement of water from up-country streams and drainage basins.

Families living in inundated areas or sections threatened by the streams had been evacuated along with live stock and other movable property endangered. So far there has been no loss of life.

The Mississippi River at Memphis rose to a stage of 32.6 feet and at Cairo to 42.9 feet. Both marks are within three feet of flood stage.

South Central Indiana Menaced.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16 (AP).—Residents of the lower Wabash and White River valleys braced themselves tonight for the oncoming crest of the flood that has passed the upper reaches of those streams. Both rivers, in the north central portion of the State, were slipping back to normal stages after having been out of their banks for several days. Further south, however, the accumulated flood waters were moving toward Vincennes, Ind., and Mount Carmell, Ill., and the crest is not expected there before tomorrow or Saturday.

Preparations are being made to protect health in the flooded territory. Dr. William F. King, secretary of the State Board of Health, sent L. S. Finch, chief engineer, and two assistants to Vincennes to erect an emergency chlorinating system for use in event the city's water supply becomes contaminated.

Ohio Relieved From High Water.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 16 (AP).—General relief from high waters was reported in all sections of Ohio tonight as cold weather definitely dismissed a threat of additional rainfall. The mercury was expected to drop to about 10 above zero early tomorrow.

MISHAP ON PRINCE'S SHIP.

Kenilworth Castle Halted 85 Minutes by Engine Trouble.

S. S. KENILWORTH CASTLE, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Prince of Wales, and other passengers on the Kenilworth Castle had an unusual experience today when minor engine trouble caused the liner to stop and remain hove to for eighty-five minutes.

The trouble was due to a defect in the packing of a piston, necessitating its replacement. The mishap took place early this morning and when the steady hum of the engines stopped many passengers, including the Prince, awoke, and went on deck to see what was wrong. All were soon reassured and the Prince showed not the slightest concern.

The ship remained rocking slightly in the calm, moonlit sea and then, when the defect had been repaired, resumed her voyage to the south.

MISS PARKS NAMED JUDGE AS SLAYER

2 of Her 5 Statements Read at Trial Said Atlantic City Jurist Killed Rogers Boy.

GRAND JURY SCOUTED TALE

State Also Rejects Charge Judge Corio Choked and Drowned Lad—He Will Take Stand Today.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 16.—The name of a Common Pleas Judge in Atlantic City was brought into the Parks trial here late this afternoon. It came in the reading of a statement made last November, in which Gladys May Parks accused Judge Joseph A. Corio of choking her two-year-old ward, Timothy Rogers, and holding his head under water. Miss Parks is accused of the murder of both Timothy and his four-year-old sister, Dorothy, the children of Alan A. Rogers of Woodbury.

The accusation came at the end of protracted legal argument over the admissibility of five statements the defendant is alleged to have made between the time she was arrested, early in November, and the time her trial started, last Monday. Three of the statements were reiterations of her story that Dorothy died after a spanking and Timothy after falling downstairs; the other two dealt with Judge Corio. All of them were read by William MacDonald, the court stenographer, who had transcribed them.

Clifford Baldwin, Camden County prosecutor, said that he was sure that Judge Corio had nothing to do with the case. The judge had gone before the grand jury that indicted Miss Parks and it had refused to return any indictment against him. Moreover, Mr. Baldwin said, Judge Corio has a "complete alibi" that he will prove on the stand tomorrow, when he takes the stand under subpoena.

Mr. Baldwin said that among witnesses who could rebut Miss Parks's charges against Judge Corio are his wife, his brother, a niece and a clerk in his office. All of them had been with him on the afternoon and evening of the day in question, Mr. Baldwin said.

Calls Charge Outrageous.

"I cannot imagine of conceive of any reason why this woman has mentioned me in her statement. The latter part of the year of 1926 she called in my office in Atlantic City and demanded some money about some property at Vineland, and I advised her at the time that she could not get any money from the property and then she said that I had sold her out and the lawyer on the other side had paid me off.

"I immediately returned to her all the papers in the case, dismissed her as my client and ordered her out of my office. She said she would get even with me. I have not seen her since. I did not know she had the custody of the children until I read the account in the public press.

"I was never in Camden to see her. I do not know where Burns Street is. I have never seen the children and I am fully prepared to testify and show in detail where I was on the day that she mentioned in her statement and I shall fully prove that her statement concerning me is an outrageous falsehood."

The first statement concerning the judge was made on Nov. 25, in the presence of the stenographer, Prosecutor Clifford Baldwin and several others. After the usual legal formalities it continued:

Q.—It is not true that a fall down stairs killed Timothy? A.—No, he fell down two days previously, but only hurt his arm a little.

Q.—How did he come to die. A.—He was choked.

Q.—Who choked him? A.—Mr. Corio.

Q.—Joseph Corio? A.—Yes, Joseph A. Corio.

Q.—What day? A.—Aug. 22.

Miss Parks, according to the alleged statement, then said that she had met Judge Corio on an Atlantic City street after Dorothy had died. She wanted to ask his advice about the matter, because Dorothy's body was buried in the cellar of 216 Burns Street, she said, and she therefore asked him to come out and see her that evening.

Judge Corio had appeared at the house before supper, she said. Timothy had been "in bed where he couldn't fall" while she was at Atlantic City, but she had managed to get him cleaned up and fed before the judge arrived. She didn't know whether he came in an automobile, but he came alone.

Describes Alleged Attack.

"I had no chance. He came in and saw Timmy. He said that was the baby I was trying to pass off and disgrace him as his. I told him it was my cousin. He said he'd fix the little brat. He picked him up and choked him and put him in the sink. Then he threw him on the floor."

After that, Miss Parks declared, Judge Corio chased her around the house. She was screaming, but she stopped after realizing that the neighbors might hear. Her visitor then went out the back door, she said, but came in again in a moment and told her to say nothing. He told her not to put any clothes on the child but to bury it at once, she asserted.

She said that as soon as he had gone she turned Timothy over and found that he was dead. Regarding the cause of Judge Corio's alleged remark that Timothy was "the baby I was trying to pass off and disgrace him as his," Miss Parks said that several years ago she had written him to say that she had a child by him. She wrote this letter three years ago, after they had had a quarrel, she said. But, she insisted, she "did it as a joke" and "to make him mad." She said she thought that when Corio saw Timothy he thought it was the same child, although "I never had a child, I just wrote the letter to make him mad."

After Judge Corio had gone, she said, her brother-in-law, Earl Farr, who lives in West Philadelphia, came to the Burns Street house and, when she told him about Timothy, he said that he would take her to Absecon, where she buried the body. He did so, she said, but "he had nothing to do with the matter but take me to Absecon."

Court Rules a Dog Is Man's Best Friend, But Not Part of Watchman's Equipment

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 16 (AP).—A dog is not a part of a night watchman's "equipment," but is his best friend.

The Georgia Supreme Court so ruled today in a long memorial to John Montgomery and his dog, in sustaining lower courts in denying to the widow, Madie Montgomery, her claim for compensation for her husband's death.

Montgomery, a Savannah night watchman, was drowned in the Savannah River while trying to save his dog from a similar fate. The dog reached land.

Associate Justice S. Price Gilbert, in writing the decision, said:

"From the dawn of primal history the dog has loomed large in the art and literature of the world, including judicial literature. So it doubtless will be until the 'crack of doom.'

"In metal and in stone his noble image has been perpetuated, but the dog's chief monument is in the heart of his friend—man."

In conclusion the justice wrote:

"From what has been said it will not be difficult to ascertain where the sentiment and inclination of the court would lead. The court, however, is a court for correction of errors, and we must be guided by the law."

Attorneys for the widow had appealed on the ground that the dog was a part of Montgomery's equipment as a night watchman, as the animal was a watch dog.

TERRANOVA FREED IN BAIL OF $10,000

DENIES HE ATTEMPTED IT

Formally Abdicates as Artichoke King and Resolves Never to Taste Another.

Fortified by a resolution never to taste another artichoke, Ciro Terranova was arraigned yesterday in West Farms Court, charged with having staged a fake hold-up of Magistrate Albert H. Vitale's testimonial dinner. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and was released in $10,000 bail for a hearing on Monday.

Terranova, dressed in a trim brown business suit, formally abdicated as artichoke king and announced that he was a contractor. He admitted that he had dabbled in the stock market, but for the life of him could not remember his broker's name nor the two stocks in which he had dealt. He disclosed, incidentally, that during the two weeks the police sought him he had been doing business as usual at the vegetable stalls in Harlem Market.

When he obtained his release from Magistrate Douras the accused man smiled happily. It was the first pleasure of the day. Insistent detectives had put him through the line-up formalities at headquarters and a battalion of photographers had caused him to blanch when they set off a battery of flashlights, which sounded uncomfortably like pistol shots.

Terranova had paraded before 200 detectives at headquarters under the aegis of Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney, with Police Commissioner Whalen looking on. The inspector read off the prisoner's police record, and then began questioning him.

"What is your occupation, Terranova?" said Mulrooney.

"Contractor," was the reply.

There was laughter at this, owing to the fact that the police suspicion is that Terranova, alias Morello, alias The Boss, arranged the hold-up to gain possession of a "murder contract." The document, as the police tell about it, was an agreement by a Chicago gunman to murder Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow for $20,000. The deed done, the gunman, according to the police, demanded $15,000 which was due and threatened to tell the police if it were not paid.

"Aren't you in the artichoke business?" said Mulrooney.

"I made a New Year's resolution never to eat artichokes again," said Terranova solemnly.

"Take him out," said Mulrooney to Detectives Owens and Horan, officially credited with arresting Terranova outside headquarters on Wednesday. The detectives escorted the contractor and stock specialist to the basement, where he was photographed for the police archives.

When Terranova between the two detectives emerged from headquarters to enter a machine for the ride to the Bronx court the flashlight guns boomed. Terranova fell back into the brawny arms of Horan and as he was assisted to the automobile he was pale and agitated.

Frank Aranow of 84 William Street, attorney for Terranova, greeted his client in court. Assistant District Attorney Martin M. Frank appeared and presented a short affidavit setting forth the charge against the defendant. Bail of $10,000 was acceptable to Mr. Aranow and to District Attorney Charles B. McLoughlin. The defense attorney said that Terranova had surrendered voluntarily to the police and that he had been arrested in headquarters and not outside, as the police contended.

Before his arraignment Terranova was questioned for forty-five minutes by District Attorney McLaughlin. The prisoner said that he knew nothing of the hold-up and had not attended the dinner. On the night of Dec. 7, he told Mr. McLaughlin, he attended a performance of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

He left the showhouse at 11:35 P. M. and passed Southern Boulevard and Fordham Road, two blocks from the dinner in the Roman Gardens restaurant, at 12:15 P. M. He said that he reached his $50,000 home in Pelham Manor at 1 A. M. Terranova said that he had not known a dinner had been planned to mark Magistrate Vitale's return from a post-campaign vacation in Virginia.

He added that he did not know Detective Arthur C. Johnson, demoted and tried for surrendering his service weapon to the seven hold-up men. All Mr. McLaughlin learned from Terranova was he retired from the artichoke and plastering business a year ago and had made $3,000 on one stock and lost $3,000 on another.

ONE IN POSSE SLAIN, ONE SHOT BY THIEF

ILL VETERAN JOINS CHASE

Partly Clad, He Commandeers Auto and Traps Fugitive Who Is Said to Admit Three Other Hold-Ups.

Two members of a posse were wounded, one mortally, yesterday during a chase through Belleville, N. J., of a hold-up man who had stolen $46 and a wrist watch in an A. and P. grocery store at Cortlandt and Holmes Streets, Belleville.

Edward Maurer, 19 years old, of 151 Stephens Street, a butcher's helper, was killed by the gunman's fire. Paul Bohrer, 40, of 160 Stephens Street, a garage man, was hit in the abdomen. He is in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark.

William Gimble, 20, of 46 New Street, Belleville, identified as the hold-up man, was caught after he had been pursued more than a mile. He is held on charges of murder and robbery. The loot was found in his pockets.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Edward Dennis, manager of the A and P. store, was putting display cards in a window and his clerk, Frank Conklin, was busy behind the counter when Gimble walked in with a pistol in his hand. He thrust the weapon under Dennis's nose and the manager climbed in from the window.

"I'll take all you've got in the cash register," said the hold-up man.

Dennis gave him all the money, $40 in banknotes and change.

"Not enough," snapped the dapper gunman. "I've got a wife and a kid in the hospital. I need more."

Dennis took $6 from his own pockets and turned it over and when Gimble demanded his wrist watch he gave him that. Conklin stood helplessly by with his hands aloft.

"Let me out the back door," the hold-up man said as he stuffed the loot into his overcoat and Dennis led him to the rear entrance that opens on a back yard.

Store Manager Gives Alarm.

As Gimble disappeared over a fence Dennis ran behind the counter, seized a pistol he keeps there and, rushing into the street, gave the alarm by firing two shots into the air. The Maurer boy, Bohrer and other tradesmen in the vicinity immediately organized a posse.

The butcher's boy leaped to the seat of his delivery wagon. Dennis mounted the running board, others jumped on and they started in the general direction taken by Gimble, knowing he must emerge again into the open. Behind them, on foot, the posse grew.

Maurer stopped the truck in front of 277 Stephens Street, the home of Peter Lewis, a World War veteran convalescing after an attack of grippe. All got out of the truck and stood on the street making plans to deploy, when Gimble suddenly appeared from an alleyway, hatless and disheveled.

Two shots cracked from his revolver. The first hit the butcher's boy and the second dropped Bohrer. Before Dennis could return the fire Gimble was on the truck, speeding north. Maurer had left the motor running. Dennis, blind with rage as he saw the gunman's victims squirming on the sidewalk, sent two shots after the car, but they went wild.

Veteran Commandeers Auto.

Lewis, only partly clad, jumped from his parlor into the street, seized the gun from Dennis's hand and commandeered a passing automobile. Joined by some of the others, he resumed the chase. In front of 681 Main Street a few minutes later they found the delivery truck abandoned.

Gimble, his black hair down over his eyes, darted from the doorway of a leather factory on the street and streaked across an empty lot. Lewis instantly was after him, gun in hand, and finally trapped him as he dodged into a taxicab at the corner of Washington and Hancock Avenues.

Before the gunman could draw his own weapon Lewis reached through the taxicab window and thrust the grocer's gun against his side. His fist lashed out and the gunman cowered down into a corner of the tonneau to escape further punishment, but at this moment two policemen ran up and arrested him.

Gimble admitted at headquarters, according to Michael Flynn, chief of police, that he had held up three other stores in the neighborhood within the past few weeks. His remark to Dennis that he had a wife and child in the hospital had been untrue, Flynn said.

GET $100,000 FURS IN 3-HOUR ROBBERY

1,600 RAW PELTS TAKEN

Robbers entered the loft of the New York Fur Auction Sales Company on the fourth floor at 226 West Twenty-sixth Street about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, slipped a bag over the head of George Willard, night watchman, and escaped with 1,600 raw silver fox furs valued at $100,000.

Willard was indefinite as to the time he was attacked, but insisted he was not asleep, according to Detective John J. Behan. The watchman said that the men bound him hand and foot to a chair and put him in a washroom. He said he did not catch a glimpse of them, and could not identify them or tell how many there were.

When he wriggled free at 6 o'clock and notified the police, detectives under Acting Captain Daniel Curtayne of the safe and loft squad found that the thieves had entered through the building at 234 West Twenty-sixth Street. In this building they had found a table which they took to the roof and used in place of a ladder to reach the window of the fur concern.

According to the detectives, the removal of so large a quantity of furs must have taken three hours or more. The loot was equivalent to the normal load of a large truck, and the thieves evidently had lowered it, bundle by bundle, from the window, bringing it to the street level either through 234 West Twenty-sixth Street or a lumber yard next door.

On the theory that the furs might have been stored by the robbers in some near-by loft, a search was made by ten detectives, but yielded no clues, it was said. At the offices of the fur company all information was refused, but the police said the premises had been ransacked, and the silver fox furs chosen as the most valuable.

Because the amount taken corresponded to a truckload, detectives were convinced that the loot had been removed to a distance, and orders were issued that a close watch be maintained on fur markets here and in other cities looking to identification of any of the stolen goods offered for sale.

15-TON STEAM ROLLER RUNS AWAY ON HILL

Special to The New York Times.

MILBURN, N. J., Jan. 16.—A fifteen-ton steam roller which was being driven up Old Short Hills Road today got beyond control of its driver and rolled backward down the hill at a high rate of speed, wrecking automobiles, breaking pavements and finally ramming the corner of a building before it was stopped.

Anton Boslavage, the driver, stuck to his post and made frantic efforts to regain control of the machine by shifting gears, as it was not equipped with brakes. As he passed Brookside Drive the machine began to pick up speed and headed for a steel railroad bridge, but the driver managed to steer clear of it.

The machine rolled into Main Street, the main traffic artery of the town. The policeman who was on traffic duty had just switched the light against the steam roller but when he heard the rumbling machine as it approached Milburn Avenue he decided thatthere was no use of trying to argue with the driver, so he swung the light, giving it the right of way.

A little further down the avenue a police sergeant and another policeman were seated in a police car. They were made uncomfortable for a few moments when they saw what was headed their way, but Boslavage managed to steer clear of their car.

Crossing the centre of the town at a speed estimated by the police to be at least forty-five miles an hour, the machine was traveling on the left side of the road. Boslavage was unsuccessful in his attempt to avoid striking an automobile owned by Jacob Shahnazarian, a silk merchant of Morris Avenue, Summit. A boy who was seated in the rear seat of the car was bumped into the front seat, but was uninjured.

The steam roller continued on its path of destruction. It next encountered an automobile owned by Ira Meeker, which it promptly demolished. It then climbed, or rather buried, the curbstone and mounted the sidewalk. It was headed for the corner of a building, with Boslavage doing his best to avoid striking it, but his best was not equal to the task. The machine crashed into the structure, throwing the driver, who suffered a fracture of the collar bone. The corner of the building was pushed out into the street and the machine rolled over on its side. Boslavage was removed to a private hospital, where he was treated by Dr. J. M. Silverstein, who said his injuries were not serious.

Will Rogers Is Not Sure He Can Qualify at Conference

To the Editor of The New York Times:

LONDON, England, Jan. 16.—Landed here at 2 o'clock this afternoon by lamplight. Our peace pilgrims arrive at Plymouth Rock tomorrow morning. Papers here today announce the type of clothes to be worn at the opening by the King on Tuesday. Says every one is to dress the same as the King.

I am here as official observer for the Democrats and social adviser to Senator Joe Robinson, minority member of the delegation, and I am going to have a tough time making that suit of Joe's look like anything the King ever owned. So if Joe and I don't get in you will know there wasn't anything we could put on that we would be mistaken for King George.

GETS 4-YEAR TERM UNDER JONES LAW

$10,000 FINE ALSO IMPOSED

Prisoner Pleaded Guilty to Rum-Running and Had Jumped Bail on Two Similar Charges.

Following his plea of guilty to violation of the Jones law Sigvald Andriessen, who served three enlistments in the Coast Guard service and resigned to take up bootlegging and rum-running, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Robert A. Inch in Brooklyn to four years in prison and fined $10,000. This is the longest sentence for a violation of the prohibition law inflicted in a Brooklyn court.

Judge Inch had in his hand a report made by agents of the customs service. It showed that Andriessen was born in Norway and enlisted in the Coast Guard service in 1921 and later became a citizen of this country, although he now claims Lunenburg, N. S., as his place of residence. Andriessen resigned from the Coast Guard in 1927.

His first arrest took place in 1927, when he was found aboard the rum-runner Alice M. He was held here in $5,000 bail and jumped his bond. In 1928, according to the report, he was fined $300 by Judge Inch for a prohibition offense. In March of 1929, the report says, Andriessen again jumped a bail bond of $5,000 in this district after his arrest on the rum-runner Litchfield.

The indictment to which Andriessen pleaded guilty grew out of the seizure by the Coast Guardsmen of the vessel Mary, Mother of Elizabeth, out of Lunenburg, off Jones's Inlet. There were more than 500 cases of liquor aboard. Andriessen was charged with being the supercargo. When brought to the Federal Building in Brooklyn he was identified as the man who had twice jumped his bail.

The report of the customs operatives said Andriessen is suspected of having been connected with the rum ring operated by Rudolph N. Wilk, who was sentenced to prison for two years and fined $10,000. In passing sentence Judge Inch said:

"According to the report of the customs service Andriessen is described as a member of a ring that smuggled in more liquor than any other, with the possible exception of the Dwyer ring. I wish to make an example of him to serve as a warning to others. This is a case of a young man deliberately violating the laws he swore to obey when he became a citizen."

Captain Wilson Berringer and six members of the crew of the Mary, Mother of Elizabeth, including Andriessen, pleaded guilty before Judge Inch on Jan. 8. The captain was fined $1,000, which he paid, and was sentenced to a year and a day, which was suspended. The members of the crew, except Andriessen, were sentenced to a month in jail, but as they had already been in jail longer than that for lack of bail they were immediately released. The sentencing of Andriessen was deferred until an investigation of his activities could be made. Andriessen is 27 years old.

Louis Halle, counsel for Andriessen contended that Andriessen was not a commercial violator of the law.

Mr. Halle announced that he would take an appeal and would contend that the entire Jones act is unconstitutional because it is indefinite in its terms and vague and uncertain in regard to the prescribed penalties. Judge Inch granted a stay of execution of sentence for a few days to give him time to prepare his appeal and to get bail for his client. Andriessen will be held in the Federal detention jail in Manhattan until bail is furnished.

AIRSHIP SPEED RECORD CLAIMED FOR THE R-100

British Dirigible Makes 81.5 Miles an Hour on Twelve-Hour Test Flight in Fog.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The world speed record for airships was claimed by the British Air Ministry for State airship R-100, which during an experimental flight over Cardington Airport today attained a speed of 81.5 miles an hour. The Graf Zeppelin's best recorded speed is said to be eighty miles an hour.

The R-100 was moored at the mast at Cardington at 10:40 P. M. today after having been in the air thirteen hours carrying out speed and turning tests. For a long time she was lost over Bedford in the fog. Sir Charles Dennistoun Burney, chief of the Airship Guarantee Company, builders of the ship, who was among the fifty-eight persons aboard, said that at one time he thought they would all have to spend the night aloft. Major C. F. Scott was in command of the vessel. Sir Charles said:

"Our speed was 11½ miles an hour above the maximum speed specified in the contract and brings us within sight of a crusing speed of ninety miles an hour—which I consider essential for successful commercial operation. We had 600 horse power in reserve and possibly with all engines at full speed we could sail at eighty-five or eighty-six miles an hour. With only two engines running we sailed at seventy miles an hour."

GANGSTERS WRECK HARLEM NIGHT CLUB

HERD EMPLOYES TO CELLAR

RAID LAID TO RACKETEERS

Management Suspects Invaders, Who Escaped, Were Sent by Rivals of New Resort.

The Plantation Club at 80 West 126th Street, one of the best known Harlem night clubs, and after-theatre rendezvous of white amusement seekers, was wrecked yesterday by a gang of white men who forced their way in, made captives of four employes and attacked the club's elaborate furnishings, decorations and equipment with crowbars, picks, knives and axes.

They wrought damage estimated at $25,000 and fled. One of the officers of the club, which is owned and managed by white men and employs negro entertainers, said last night he believed the raid was the work of racketeers employed by rival clubs.

The Plantation Club was opened only a month ago at a cost, it is said, of $80,000, and immediately came into prominence among the Harlem entertainment resorts.

Club Elaborately Decorated.

In the centre of the big floor, approached by steps from the street, was a large dance floor of parquetry, surrounded by mirrors. Over the floor was a blue sky effect, filled with stars and moons which glittered at night above the dancers' heads. At one end was a "Show Boat" tableau, and tiny representations of plantation cabins were set about the walls.

The attack began at 11 A. M. yesterday. In the club were John Sallitch, custodian, and Harry Jones, watchman. In the cashier's office was Mildred Korn, a bookkeeper. Morris Gillian, a painter, was at work.

The door bell rang and Jones, opening it, found a man in a white coat, who said he was the laundryman. The man pushed his way in through the half-open door and eight other men, all of them white and well dressed, followed. Sallitch at once was suspicious.

"What do you want here?" he demanded.

"We're Federal men and we're looking for narcotics," the leader explained.

Thereupon two of the invaders herded the four white employes of the club in the cellar and stood guard over them. The others drew their implements of destruction from under their coats and set upon the club's decorations and equipment.

Use Knives to Rip Upholstery.

Some of them took knives and ripped up the upholstery of the settees which surround the club's main room. Others swung at the ornate ceiling and smashed the spot lights and the cloud machine. Men with crowbars and pickaxes ripped up the flooring of the dance enclosure.

One man played destructive scales up and down the piano keys with a pickaxe. Mirrors were shattered and the "Show Boat" tableau was demolished. The gang completed the damage by breaking into the dressing rooms and cutting to pieces some 200 costumes belonging to the entertainers and the dancers.

When they had finished the invaders dropped their tools and fled, releasing the four employes, who sent in an alarm.

The police undertook an investigation under the direction of Inspector Archibald McNeil, Deputy Inspector Edward Lennon and Lieutenant George Thompson, in charge of the detectives of the West 123d Street station. Because of the completeness of the wrecking they discounted the claim of the invaders that they were Federal men looking for narcotics and concentrated their search on gangsters. They took fingerprints from the axes and crowbars which the destroyers had left.

The club management immediately engaged workmen and started rushing repairs in the expectation of reopening tomorrow night.

GEM THIEVES GET $100 IN FIFTH AV. ROBBERY

After their original plan to stage a $500,000 diamond robbery had failed, two armed thugs called at the office of Fred Chafran, dealer in precious stones, on the nineteenth floor of the Empire Trust Building, 580 Fifth Avenue, bound a young woman to a chair and escaped with only $100 worth of jewels—fifteen small emeralds and three platinum ring mountings.

A telephone call to Herman Satz, another gem dealer, with offices on the same floor of the building, on Sunday morning, was reported after the robbery as a possible explanation of the hold-up yesterday.

"A man called me up Sunday who said he was Mr. Phillips," Mr. Satz told the detectives. "I said I didn't know him, but he insisted that he wanted a five-carat emerald. I told him that would cost about $4,000. He said he wanted it right then and asked me to meet him at my office. I suspected a hold-up and refused to go."

Mr. Chafran's secretary, Miss Laura Goldner, 24 years old, of 2,361 Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn, was alone in his office at 11 A. M. When she answered a knock at the door a pistol was pointed at her head.

"Let us in. We want your stock and we won't hurt you," said a young man who was holding the weapon. She opened the door and he walked in, followed by a companion. Still holding the pistol at her head, the man ordered her to open the safe. His companion took a ball of twine from his pocket and bound her to a chair. After rifling the safe the men warned Miss Goldner to make no outcry and departed.

Miami Inaugural Handicap Is Won by Gun Royal as 45-Day Race Meeting Starts

GUN ROYAL TAKES MIAMI INAUGURAL

Wins Handicap Worth $2,370 for Stern at Opening of 45-Day Race Meeting.

HERRICK FINISHES SECOND

Crystal Domino, Favorite, Tutti Frutti Disappoint—Pegg's Pride, at 8 to 1, Triumphs.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16.—The fifth race meeting of the Miami Jockey Club got under way at Hialeah Park today in the rain, which changed the track conditions but did not prevent keen competition and the attendance of a large crowd. It was estimated that 5,000 persons saw Joe Stern's Gun Royal capture the Inaugural Handicap with its purse of $2,370.

This 6-year-old gelding seems to have the ability to negotiate a track that is good or bad, and he had three lengths to spare when he splashed home ahead of C. E. Hamilton's Herrick and half a dozen others. Partisan, owned by George D. Widener, was third.

The racing was the first of a forty-five-day meeting, and all circumstances were favorable despite the fact that the two Florida meetings recently held at Pompano and Keene Park did not meet with success. The recent purchase of the plant here by a group headed by Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, has established confidence. The racing is under the rules of the New York Jockey Club, a departure from the conduct in previous years.

Six Scratches in Inaugural.

The muddy track made for six scratches in the Inaugural, which was the best test of the six that were on the program.

While Gun Royal was played down from 5 to 1 to 7 to 2, he was not the favorite, the public making Crystal Domino the 11-to-5 choice. At the outset the Sagamore Stable's Sun Meddler dashed away to make the pace and he was closely followed by Gun Royal. Arthur Robertson, one of the riders under contract to Harry Payne Whitney, had the leg up on Sun Meddler, but he could not keep the horse from running out at the turn and this put Gun Royal in the lead with nothing much to worry about.

Jockey Fisher just kept his mount going and he coasted over the line an easy winner, with Herrick closing a big gap to be second. There was disappointment over the showing of the favorite, which broke slow and never seemed to get going, and also over Tutti Frutti's race. This horse, an invader from Chile a year ago, ran up a fine record at the 1929 meeting and he had considerable support today. But except for a flash of speed in the first half mile he was not a contender. The winner's time for the six furlongs was 1:13.

Fisher's ride on Gun Royal gave him a double on the day, as he had been up on the Arden Farm's Sun Worship, winner of the second race.

Sun Worship Favorite.

Sir Worship was the favorite and he beat Water Lad and The Okah, which finished in the order named, and others. The first three favorites won, but the last three came to grief. After Crystal Domino's defeat in the feature the form players turned to Single Star in the fifth race. Single Star is noted as one that can go in the mud, but it was Pegg's Pride, owned by Dr. J. Fred Adams, that came first to the line. She paid 8 to 1 and had four lengths on Baron King, which beat Sun Broom a length. Single Star was fifth.

Angelena from the Mullrick Stable was winner of the nightcap, beating Dragon, the 3-to-2 favorite, by five lengths. The race was not much of a contest, as Angelena went to the front at once and kept on opening up more and more of a lead as the race progressed. She finished going easily and was timed in 1:49 for the mile and a sixteenth. Wolfy was third.

Hedgewood Boy, Famous Sire, 7th on 1929 List, Dies, Aged 28

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Jan. 16 (AP).—Hedgewood Boy, one of the greatest pacing sires the race track has ever known and pacing mate with Lady Maud C., died today at the age of 28. He was retired eighteen years ago. The team pacing record of 2:02¼ set by Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. stood for ten years. Hedgewood Boy was the sire of 160 pacers with records of less than 2:30.

Hedgewood Boy has been one of the leading sires among light-harness horses for several years, and for the 1929 season he ranked seventh among the leading fifteen sires of winners. Thirty-nine of his get were victorious, chief among them being Cap Leggett, Hunter, Hedgewood and Hedgewood K.

JUVENILE FEATURE IS WON BY MILLARD

DON ALVARO HOME THIRD

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 16 (AP).—Of the seven claiming races on today's card, the third, for juveniles, appeared to be the best. It went to the Agua Caliente Stable's Millard. Baron Long's Martha Mae was second and W. C. Nolen's Don Alvaro was third. All of the horses were California-bred. The winner paid $4.80 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Millard was away fast, and under a very capable ride by T. Teasdale finished a nose in front of Martha Mae. F. Coltiletti, on Martha Mae, made a vain effort to head the winner, but the best he could do was second place by a length and a half. Millard was installed the favorite.

STAR O'MORN WINS; RETURNS $49 FOR $2

DOWAGIAC, FAVORITE, 4TH

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 16 (AP).—The second long shot of the day, Star O'Morn, paying $49.20 for a $2 mutuel, captured the feature attraction at the fair grounds today. Star O'Morn is owned by the Black Dot stable. F. Seremba's War Instigator was second and Disturb, from the Southland stable, was third. Dowagiac, the favorite, was fourth. The time was 1:13.

Star O'Morn was well up with the leaders during the early stages and won easily by half a length. War Instigator dropped back in the stretch, after leading until then, but was able to take the place from Disturb by a neck. Dowagiac did not develop best speed until the end.

SIMMONS, WITH 157, DROVE IN MOST RUNS

BISHOP DREW 128 PASSES

Al Simmons, who was an important factor in the success of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics last year, gained the distinction of topping all players of the circuit in runs batted in, the official statistics, released for publication today, show. The brilliant outfielder accounted for 157 of the 901 runs which were credited to the Mackmen. Babe Ruth, who was in 135 games, while Simmons took part in 143, batted in 154 of the tallies scored by the Yankees.

Max Bishop of the Athletics tried the patience of the pitchers. He was extremely careful about what he swung at, and drew 128 passes in 129 games. Lu Blue of the Browns was second in this respect with 126 bases on balls in 151. Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, with 122, and Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, with 103, were the other players who were passed more than 100 times. Ruth, who holds the record with 170, walked only 72 times in 135 games.

Joe Sewell of the Indians was hard to fool. He tied his own world's record of four strike-outs in 152 games, while Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics struck out only eight times in 135 games, and Sam Rice whiffed nine times in 150. Foxx, striving for homers, fanned 70 times. Gehrig's mark was 68 and Ruth's 60.

The records, which include players who batted in ten or more runs, follow:

Delegates From All Sections to Attend Session Here Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the United States Polo Association is to be held at the Biltmore Hotel on Wednesday with an attendance of delegates from all parts of the country. Officers will be elected, rule changes discussed and the report of the handicap committee submitted. There will also be some discussion of the plans for meeting the British challenging team during the coming season.

The rule changes are not expected to be extensive, but there has been strong agitation from the Middle West for shortening the length of the game from eight to six periods. Delegates have been canvassed on this subject and it undoubtedly will be discussed at the meeting.

BOBSLED RUN CASE WILL BE APPEALED

WANTS A FINAL DECISION

Thinks Court of Appeals Should Decide Extent State Preserves Can Be Encroached Upon.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Attorney General Hamilton Ward announced today that he would go to the Court of Appeals for a ruling on the constitutionality of the legislative act of 1929 authorizing the construction of a bobsled run on Sentinel Range near Lake Placid for the Winter Olympic Games to be held there in 1932.

In a decision handed down by the Appellate Division at Albany yesterday the court declared the act to be unconstitutional. It held that the proposed slide was an encroachment on the State forest preserve, necessitating the cutting of 2,600 trees in violation of Section 7, Article 7, of the Constitution.

"If the courts hold that this section is to be strictly interpreted, then there will be a halt on the modern tendency to make use of the Adirondacks for the purpose of recreation and pleasure," Attorney General Ward said. "I feel that there should be a final adjudication of the question. The way will then be open for the submission of a constitutional amendment to define to what extent the preserve may be encroached upon for scenic and recreational purposes, if the Legislature deems such a course advisable."

Suit to prevent the bobsled slide construction was brought by the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks. Another location for the slide is available at Mount Jo on private lands nine miles from Lake Placid, but access to it is difficult.

WEST INDIES LEADING ENGLISH CRICKETERS

Closes Second Innings With Total of 753—England Has 467 for First Innings.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, Jan. 16 (Canadian Press).—The strong cricket team sent out from England is having a hard tussle with an equally strong team representative of the West Indies. The West Indies closed its second innings today with an aggregate of 753 runs, made up of first innings, 369, and second innings, 384. As the English team garnered 467 runs in its first innings, it was faced with the task of getting 286 runs in its second innings, which started late today, to tie the score.

The English were left with this deficit of 286 despite the rapid clean-up they made of the West Indies second innings, after the strong initial stand of Headley, star West Indies batsman. The English took the last six West Indies wickets for only 58 runs. But Headley had accounted for 176 runs by himself out of the total West Indies second innings score of 384.

Forcing the pace from the start of their second innings, England nevertheless lost three wickets late today for 167 runs. Gunn was dismissed at 29, Sandham when the figures had mounted to only 80, and Stevens at 98. Hendren and Ames, who were not out when stumps were drawn in the fading light tonight, had run the English score to 167 for three wickets.

In the West Indies second innings the English bowlers faced strong batsmen. Calthorpe took one wicket for 38 runs, Aatill none for 72 runs, Stevens five wickets for 90 runs, Rhodes three for 110 and Haig one for 40.

THE "LAST INCH" TEST! Not many cigars can pass it! Often cigars taste good at first—but smoke them down as far as cigars are intended to be smoked and there's a big difference! Faulty workmanship can't be hidden. A hard drawing cigar produces abnormal heat—bringing out the unpleasant flavors of inferior or misblended tobaccos.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 16.—Albert R. Hakes, youthful champion of the Shorewood Counties' Club at Dunkirk, N. Y., was a victim of the fate that generally befalls medal winners today in the opening round of match play in the third annual national championship of golf club champions, which is being contested for the Walter J. Travis Memorial Cup over the St. Augustine links.

The Empire State representative, competing in this tournament for the third year in succession, was eliminated this morning, losing on the nineteenth hole to A. A. Manucy, a local entry.

Equally surprising was the outcome of one of the second-round matches in the afternoon, when Albert W. Haigh, three-time titleholder at the Westchester Hills C. C., White Plains, N. Y., was defeated by Robert W. James of Winter Park, Fla., who won, 3 and 2. Haigh was rated the most formidable contender in the metropolitan district representation, but he lost to James after a courageous fight on the incoming journey.

Semi-Finals on Today.

Manucy, conqueror of Hakes, and James survived, for the thirty-six-hole semi-finals tomorrow, along with Carl Morris Dann Jr., 19-year-old defending national club champion, and Howard Tryon of the Elmira C. C., Elmira, N. Y. Tryon is the only representative from the Northern sector who is still in the running for the championship.

Tryon made fine progress. In the morning he defeated Samuel R. Freeth, champion of the Salisbury Club on Long Island, 1 up. In the afternoon the Elmira youngster scored in another close match, overcoming Arthur Buzby of Fort Georg, Fla., by 2 up and 1 to play.

Haigh, twice senior champion of the Westchester Association, seemed destined for titular honors in the morning when he handily defeated R. C. Garretson of Ashland, Ohio, 4 and 3. Going out in 38, Haigh assumed a lead of 4 up on the first nine holes, and clinched it with a par 5 on the fifteenth. In the afternoon, however, Haigh fell before James, whose margin was 3 up and 2 to play.

James 4 Up on Turn.

Haigh was called upon to match the best golf James has produced this season, and was not equal to the task. The latter had a poor tee shot on the first, but played the other eight holes going out in par figures, reaching the turn 4 up on Haigh.

The Westchester veteran was not discouraged, however, and won the first three holes coming back. With a chance to square it on the thirteenth, Haigh took one over par and permitted James to obtain a decisive margin.

The cards:

In	3	5	4	5	5	5	3

The match between Hakes and Manucy was one of the closest played in the history of the tournament. Hakes reached the turn, 1 up on Manucy, but was in the woods with his drive on the fourteenth, winding up with a 7, which enabled Manucy to square matters. On the first extra hole Manucy sank a long putt after Hakes's chip shot failed to hold the green.

Manucy Defeats Owens.

Manucy, after his victory over Hakes, was 3 down to Willis D. Owens, runner-up for the national collegiate championship, at the twelfth hole in the afternoon. The local player took the next two holes in par and squared it on the seventeenth with another par. He won on the last hole by negotiating a half stymie.

Freeth, the Long Island star, engaged in a see-saw battle with Tryon in the morning. This pair produced the best golf of the day, Freeth registering 38, 37—75, against Tryon's 37, 37—74.

They halved the first eight holes, Tryon taking the lead with a par 4 on the ninth. Freeth squared it with a par 4 on the eleventh, but Tryon took the next two and got a birdie deuce on the sixteenth to establish a winning lead.

Yale Alumni Weekly Lauds Ban on Coaches In Agreements With Harvard and Princeton

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16.—The Yale Alumni Weekly said editorially today in praising the adoption by Princeton, Harvard and Yale of an agreement to play their major baseball series games with coaches off the bench that the alumni would prefer to see games full of technical misplays with the undergraduates in full control to witnessing smoothly campaigned contests with the coaches directing the play with machine-like precision.

The weekly said:

"There is really no enjoyment to spectators of college baseball games if they know that the teams are running bases under professional and more experienced camouflaged directions from the bench.

"College baseball is a sport in itself, delightfully reckless and full of amateur blunders at critical moments, spirited, youthful. All this makes it what it is. When one wants precise and scientific play, there are professional league games to go to.

"If the teams are well drilled in the essentials before their games, they will play just as well and enjoy themselves more, if in their games they handle their own situations by themselves. And the alumni back to see them play will be more interested to come again."

Paired With Mrs. Hurd, She Bows to Ott in Best Ball Play, 5 and 4.

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C., Jan. 16.—Miss Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of the Merion Cricket Club, two of the best women golfers in competition, lost to William Ott, local professional, in an exhibition best ball match on the Ocean-Forest links today. The event was staged as part of the opening festivities of the Ocean-Forest Hotel and drew a large gallery. The women golfers ended 5 down and 4 to play. Miss Hicks took an 87 and Mrs. Hurd an 85, combining for a best ball of 82. Ott scored a 79 over the course, which measures 6,560 yards from the back tees.

Miss Hicks frequently outdrove Ott but her work around the greens was rather ragged. ANNUAL BOAT SHOW WILL OPEN TONIGHT

300 CRAFT IN EXHIBIT

By GROVER THEIS.

The marine capital of the world has been set up in Grand Central Palace, where the Silver Jubilee Motor Boat Show will open tonight at 7 o'clock, celebrating twenty-five years of progress marked by numerous mechanical and hull improvements and an astounding increase in popular interest in boating.

Henry R. Sutphen, president of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, which sponsors this annual event, will open the show officially, although there will be no ceremony involved, since past experience has demonstrated that what the public wants is to get in and see the boats. To boat fans, speeches and formalities are mere annoyances. Accordingly, when the doors are flung open on Park and Lexington Avenues the influx of spectators and prospective buyers will start with a rush.

Big Attendance Predicted.

Ira Hand, manager of the exposition, and John J. Amory, chairman of the show committee, confidently predicted yesterday that the number of boat enthusiasts who will pass through the gates in the coming week will far exceed last year's record, and if the numerous evidences of growing general interest in boats equipped with engines do not fail, Mr. Hand and Mr. Amory are right.

Since last year there have been parlous doings in Wall Street, and for a while last Fall the motor-boating industry called a momentary halt on itself, with feelings of trepidation because it wondered what the consequences might be. But the obvious answer lies in the fact that the jubilee show will occupy 100,000 square feet more floor space than it ever has in the past.

The number of exhibitors will be 217, far ahead of any previous display. More than 300 boats ranging from those propelled by the simple oar to the raciest runabouts, new outboard hulls and ambitious cruisers that incorporate the luxuries of a mansion will be on view. And dear to the heart of the inveterate boatman, there will be an exceptional array of engines, gear, equipment and the little gadgets that delight him eternally.

Exhibits Worth Millions.

The estimated value of the exhibits will be far in excess of last year's $2,500,000, but even though the word "million" may sound out of reach to the man in the street, this year's show includes many more types than ever before that have regard for the pocketbook of this same man in the street. Good boats at less than $1,000 will be featured and one concern plans a production schedule of something like 700 boats a month. Conversation with builders, dealers and distributers reflects widespread optimism, with sales volumes also setting a new mark.

The amazing growth of the automobile for pleasure and utility is being duplicated by the motor boat, be it large or small. Out on the St. Clair River in Michigan there are motor car manufacturers who go back and forth from home to business in highly polished, smooth running motor boats, runabouts, or commuters, depending on distance. On Long Island Sound and on the Pacific Coast the same practice prevails. The boats get you there and get you back on schedule without having to face the frightful congestion of highway or railroad.

Getting down to more humble but to the greater number of people, more interesting things are the uses to which the motor boat is being put for recreation—for example, fishing and hunting and plain pleasure jaunts. In these particular forms of diversion the outboards have filled a great need and provided a means of transportation whether attached to a canoe or the latest elaborate sedan type.

Outboard Boating Popular.

Outboard boating as a popular sport at vacation resorts, North and South, East and West, has so expanded that sport goods firms have been impelled to show their wares in conjunction with the hulls and engines, which is an innovation at the show. The outboard adherents will travel to the fourth floor with great avidity.

A pre-view pilgrimage through the four floors of the Palace presents such a myriad of things exciting to the boat enthusiast that it is impossible to enumerate or do more than make a mere mention of items. The first thing that greets the spectator is the resplendent array of cruisers on the first floor. There also are the bulky marine engines, notably the fifteen-ton Diesels.

On the mezzanine floor are the sparkling runabouts. These are characterized by the fine woodwork, for one thing, to which has been added interiors of leather in color, vanity cases, floor rugs and other refinements designed especially to attract the feminine interest.

The man who owns a boat and may not be a prospective buyer of a new one will spend his time on the third floor after a critical and perhaps envious inspection of hulls, for in this division he will find the appurtenances which he desires to add to his Sally J. or Molly O.

After tonight's opening the exhibition will throw open its doors at 10:30 each morning and stay open until 10:30 or later at night. The show will close a week from tomorrow.

Telegrams of congratulations on the progress made in the industry were received yesterday from Secretary of War Hurley, Governors Roosevelt of New York, Allen of Massachusetts, Green of Michigan and Emmerson of Illinois.

O'Connor and Haines Gain Final in Squash Tourney

HAINES BEATS WOLF IN MARTIN SQUASH

O'CONNOR ALSO ADVANCES

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Rowland B. Haines of the Columbia University Club, national amateur squash tennis champion, and Burdett H. O'Connor of the Crescent Athletic Club, reached the final round of the invitation Clyde Martin Memorial tournament at the Yale Club last night and will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3:30.

In one of the most magnificent struggles seen in amateur play in years, Haines brought the winning streak of Harry F. Wolf of the New York A. C. to an end after a battle royal that lasted for close to two hours before a gallery that fought for standing room about the court. The score was 17—14, 12—15, 5—15, 15—11, 18—14, and as is shown by these figures, Wolf was perilously close to victory in both the fourth and fifth chapters.

Leads in Second Game.

The other semi-final saw O'Connor, who faced Haines in the final of the national championship two years ago, turn back H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club, national veterans' champion and second ranking player of the country. Mixsell yielded to the harder hitting of the Brooklyn representative in three successive games after coming close to taking the first and leading at 9—3 in the final. The score was 15—12, 15—3, 15—9.

The match between Haines and Wolf figured to be one of the great struggles of the year and it fully came up to expectations. It was a spectacular, free-hitting contest between two of the most savage sluggers in the game, both of them powerfully developed of physique and with dynamite in every shot. Both of them used the half volley liberally, particularly Haines, whose forte is standing in the centre of the court and meeting every ball possible as it rises from the floor.

Haines Has More in Reserve.

In the last analysis, it was the greater lasting powers of the champion that brought him through to victory and he lasted better because his style of play calls for less exertion in keeping the ball in play. While Wolf was hurling himself around the court almost continually, Haines was meeting everything on the pickup before it reached the backwall, and so he had more in reserve in the final stages.

In the final game Wolf was seized with a leg cramp when the score was 7—3 against him and after play had been suspended he came back to make a game rally that carried him to 9-all and 13—11. Haines was in a dangerous position, with Wolf only two points short of victory, but the Columbian here showed his championship form by rising to the occasion. With his service standing him in good stead, as it had been doing all through the last two games, he smashed his way to victory over the courageously fighting Wolf, who was hardly able to limp about the court.

M'BURNEY PREP WINS IN DUAL SWIM, 40-22

Defeats Columbia Grammar Team—Four New Pool Records Set, Two by Moore of Victors.

Four pool records were shattered when McBurney Prep defeated the Columbia Grammar School in a dual swimming meet in the McBurney school tank yesterday, 40 to 22. Moore of McBurney broke two of the marks, the 40-yard free style swim and the 100-yard free style event. In the former Moore finished in a dead heat with Meister of Columbia Grammar so that the 40-yard record is shared by both swimmers. The third record to fall was in the 220-yard free style, which was won by Spear of McBurney. Stern of Columbia Grammar broke the fourth mark in the 40-yard breast stroke event.

The hardest fought of the races was the 40-yard free style event in which Moore and Meister swam shoulder to shoulder the entire distance to finish in a tie and clip the pool record to 0:20 5-10.

THE SUMMARIES.

40-Yard Free Style Race—Moore, McBurney, and Meister, Columbia Grammar, tied for first place; Schell, McBurney, third. Time—0:20 5-10 (new pool record).

40-Yard Back Stroke Race—Won by Spear, McBurney; Wolfiagel, McBurney, second; Fuchs, Columbia Grammar, third. Time—0:26 9-10.

100-Yard Free Style Race—Won by Moore, McBurney; Bray, McBurney, second; Mack, Columbia Grammar, third. Time—1:00 5-10 (new pool record).

KINSELLA SQUASH VICTOR.

Defeats Reid in Exhibition Match, 10-15, 18-15, 15-9, 16-17, 15-6.

Walter Kinsella of the Fraternity Squash Tennis Club, retired world's professional squash tennis champion, defeated James T. Reid of the Crescent A. C. in an exhibition match at the Fraternity Squash Tennis Club last night, 10—15, 18—15, 15—9, 16—17, 15—6. Kinsella conceded Reid a handicap of three aces in each game.

After dropping the first game, Kinsella took the next two in impressive fashion.

Matsuyama Takes Two Matches.

Kinrey Matsuyama was forced to play his best game to defeat Herbert Hammer in an 18.2 balkline billiard exhibition at Lawler's Manhattan Academy last night, 250 to 236, in nine innings. Matsuyama had a high run of 78, while Hammer's best was 95. In an afternoon game Matsuyama defeated William Kling, 250 to 24, in eight innings, with a high run of 165.

RAYMOND F. DeVOE,
Who Entered Semi-Finals of Met Squash Racquets Play Yesterday.

RAWLINS ADVANCES IN SQUASH RACQUETS

Defending Champion Extended to Beat Haskins, 15-7, 15-10, 8-15, 15-8, in Met. Play.

Herbert N. Rawlins Jr. of the Racquet and Tennis Club, Perry R. Pease and George Debevoise of the Harvard Club and Raymond DeVoe of the home club reached the semi-finals of the Metropolitan squash racquets championship at the University Club last night and will meet in the order named late this afternoon.

Rawlins, the defending titleholder, met with his first serious opposition from Lathrop Haskins of the Harvard Club and yielded a game in winning at 15-7, 15-10, 8-15, 15-8. DeVoe, whose play has been the surprise of the championship all week, got off to a bad start in his match with Eugene L. Maxwell of the Nassau Country Club, but after losing the first game the University Club representative struck his best stride and took the next three chapters. The score was 8-15, 15-10, 15-10, 15-12.

Pease, who is playing for the first time this season in this tournament after recovering from an old knee injury, played beautiful squash in turning back Brainerd F. Whitbeck Jr., member of the Harvard varsity last year. Whitbeck made a close fight for the opening game but, after losing it at 17-15, faltered, and Pease was in command thereafter.

Debevoise, the logical favorite with Rawlins to reach the final, advanced at the expense of Richard Peabody of Nassau. Peabody gave a fine account of himself in the beginning, but could not sustain his form, and Debevoise won the second and third games by comfortable margins.

Herbert N. Rawlins Jr., Racquet and Tennis, defeated Lathrop Haskins, 15—7, 15—10, 8—15, 15—8; Perry R. Pease, Harvard, defeated Brainerd F. Whitbeck, Harvard, 17—15, 15—11, 15—9; Raymond F. DeVoe, University, defeated Eugene L. Maxwell, Nassau, 8—15, 15—10, 15—10, 15—12; George Debevoise, Harvard, defeated Richard Peabody, Nassau, 18—16, 15—7, 15—7.

REGATTA ON JUNE 26 AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Stewards Also Announce That Crew Not on Time for Race Will Be Disqualified.

PLACE LIMIT ON RESTARTS

Only Actual Breakage of Equipment Will Be Cause for New Start—Navy Joins Association.

Making drastic rule changes designed to speed up the annual Poughkepsie regatta, the stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association yesterday decided to disqualify any crew not at the starting line on time and to call for a new start only in case of actual breakage of equipment, it was announced through The Associated Press.

Beginning with the 1930 race which was definitely set for Tuesday, June 26, the crew in which an overanxious oarsman "jumps his slide" or "catches a crab" will no longer be able to call for a new start. Each crew must take the consequences of its own errors of watermanship.

For the first time since 1901 when Syracuse was admitted to the original group of Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania, a new member was added to the Intercollegiate Rowing Association when the application of the United States Naval Academy was unanimously approved.

Finished First in 1921.

Regular visitors to the Poughkeepsie course of recent years, the Navy varsity finished first in 1921, 1922, and 1925; second in 1907, its first attempt, and 1923 and 1926; fourth in 1927 and 1929, and fifth in 1928.

Forecasting an entry list as great or greater than the record field of nine colleges and twenty-two crews which participated in last year's event, the stewards decided to send invitations to all of the institutions which received bids to the 1929 event. This list including Princeton and Stanford as well as those which participated in that memorable race. Princeton declined the invitation last year and Stanford did not have a crew.

The rulings were prompted by the experience of last June when the failure of two crews to reach the starting line on time combined with a number of false starts delayed the varsity event so long that the rising wind and water swamped four crews.

Text of the Rules.

"Any crew which is not at the starting line and attached to its stakeboat for any race at the time designated by the board of stewards shall be disqualified.

"In case of postponement due to bad weather conditions or other causes the crews will be notified in ample time, and will be given a new starting time by the referee for which the previous rule will not apply.

"No recall of any start will be made except for actual breakage of equipment during the first thirty seconds. Note: Breakage caused by a jumped slide or crab will not be considered sufficient cause for recall.

"Any crew ceasing to row for any other reason during this period, thereby causing other crews to stop, will be disqualified, and a new start for the remaining crews shall be ordered by the referee."

Restarts Allowed Hitherto.

On many occasions in the past delays have been caused when the sliding seat of an oarsman jumped the track or one of the men dug his oars too deeply or failed to feather correctly, in the stress of the first few seconds of fevered action, a new start having being granted hitherto.

The date selected for the year's event, somewhat later than usual due to tide considerations, is not likely to be changed but was announced as "subject to confirmation of proper tidal conditions by the United States Department of Commerce" and arrangements with the railroad which runs the observation train.

Columbia was represented at the meeting by Maxwell Stevenson, chairman; and Reynolds Benson, graduate manager of athletics, Cornell by Charles E. Treman and Romeyn Berry, graduate managers; Syracuse by Frederick H. Plumb and George B. Thurston, graduate manager, and Pennsylvania by Louis Borie.

Bow oarsmen of competing crews this year will have something to do besides row. To facilitate starting, the board of stewards decided to have each bow man hold a rope, the other end of which is to be attached to a skiff, in order to keep his shell from being blown to one side by the wind while awaiting the starting gun.

The new system will necessitate adding a command to cast off to the time-honored starting call, which has been simply, "Are you ready all? Row!"

GRAY AND DYETT WIN.

Gain Final in Class C Balkline Billiard Title Play.

Frank Gray and Fred Dyett qualified for the final round of the Class C 18.2 balkline billiard championship when they won their final preliminary-round matches at Lawler's Brooklyn Academy last night. Gray defeated Charles Kerr, 150 to 77, in forty-two innings, with an unfinished run of 31, which came after runs of 21 and 25. Dyett downed Orlando Benet, 150 to 128, in forty-eight innings.

In the third game Eddie McGill defeated Henry Sohl, 150 to 146, in thirty-four innings. McGill must win his last game today to qualify for the final.

KIECKHEFER HOLDS LEAD.

Walker Cochran and Augie Kieckhefer divided the third and fourth blocks of their ten-block three-cushion billiard match at Dwyer's Broadway Academy yesterday, but Kieckhefer is still leading, 200 to 179.

In the afternoon, Cochran won, 56 to 50 in 64 innings, each having a high run of 7. At night Kieckhefer triumphed, 50 to 46, in 66 innings. Kieckhefer's best cluster was 6 and Cochran's 4.

Lee Beats Brown in Cue Play.

Louis Lee defeated Russell Brown, 30 to 28, in the New York State amateur three-cushion tournament at Dwyer's Brooklyn Academy last night, running out with a cluster of five in the forty-sixth inning. L. Coffman defeated Leo Cole, 30 to 25, in forty-eight innings.

Walking Race, U. S. vs. Canada, Novel Millrose Meet Event

A track novelty was announced yesterday by the Millrose A. A. for its twenty-third annual track and field meet at Madison Square Garden on Feb. 8. In place of the two-mile miss-and-out race the Wanamaker organization plans to introduce an international two-mile walking team race between the United States and Canada. Hank Ciemen and Reg Howell, two Canadian champions, will represent that country, while William Carlson and Mack Weiss, the two leading American walkers, are expected to represent the United States.

CRESCENT QUINTET CONQUERS N. Y. A. C.

LEADS AT HALF BY 21-11

Simmen Tops Scorers With 14 Points—Third Success for Winners in Eastern Club League.

The undefeated Crescent A. C. basketball team of Brooklyn registered its fourteenth victory of the season and its third Eastern Athletic Club Basketball League triumph, defeating the New York A. C. quintet, 37 to 23, in the latter's gymnasium last night. At half time the Crescents led, 21 to 11.

Harold Simmen, Crescent centre, was the individual high scorer with six field goals and two fouls for 14 points. He was followed by Johnny Layton, Crescent left forward, who tossed in four field baskets and two fouls for 10 points. Rohan led the losers with 7 points.

For the first five minutes the teams battled on even terms, the score being tied twice at 2-all and again at 4-all. Then the Crescent offense started to function and the Brooklynites ran the score to 8 to 4. Thereafter the Crescents were never headed and led at 11 to 5, 14 to 8 and 17 to 9 at intervals before the half ended.

The second half was a little more closely contested than the first, the Crescents, however, outscoring the oposition, 16 to 12 in the final period. The winners gathered 8 points to 5 for the N. Y. A. C. in the early minutes of the half. Later, the Crescents led, 32 to 18 and again at 36 to 22 just before the close.

Maroon Six Beats Americans in Overtime, 3-2, Before 12,000

AMERICANS BEATEN IN OVERTIME, 3 TO 2

Succumb Before Maroon Sextet After Himes Ties Count, 2-2, at Close of 3d Period.

STEWART'S GOAL DECIDES

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

With 29 seconds left to play in the overtime period of last night's hockey battle at Madison Square Garden, Nels Stewart, the hulking centre of the Montreal Maroons, pounded the puck into the net for the deciding goal. It won for the International Group pacemakers, 3 to 2 and administered to the Americans their third defeat in their last nine games.

This stirring finish, though disappointing to most of the 12,000 fans watching it, was merely returning to the Americans the shock they themselves gave the Maroons about a minute and a half before the third period ended.

A goal by Dave Trottier of the Maroons in 2:31 of the third period broke a tie that had existed since the first period. The Maroons defended their 2 to 1 lead successfully until the period had less than two minutes to go. The Maroons were resorting to safety measures, long drives to the opposite end of the rink and skating back of their own net with the puck.

Americans Tie the Score.

The fans were resigned to defeat when suddenly Sheppard staggered through the press of Maroons near the visitors' goal and shoved the puck across to Normie Himes. The agile centre of the Americans pushed it past Flat Walsh, tying the score and necessitating overtime play.

The tying goal sank home in 18:21. Throughout the overtime period the Americans carried the fight to the Maroons, but with half a minute to play a 2-2 tie seemed inevitable.

The winning play was a two-man advance, Babe Siebert skating along the left boards and passing the puck to his centre near the goal. Stewart cleverly sidestepped the last American defense man, and his shot beat Worters's valient effort to slap it aside.

The teams were in a tie for the greater part of the seventy minutes of action. After more than half of the first period was waged without score, the Himes-Sheppard combination got in its first bit of stick finesse. McVeigh, the other member of the first-line trio, was in the play as it swirled around the Maroon goal, but Sheppard it was who passed out from behind the net to Himes, who scored in 12:50.

Score Changes Quickly.

This lead lasted less than two minutes. Siebert launched a long drive that drifted past Worters into the net in 14:29. Worters lost sight of the puck and never moved as it flitted past his elbow. It was a shot from beyond the blue line.

Play was close throughout the scoreless second period, but early in the third Trottier lurked in front of the American goal and took a pass from Wilcox, who had carried the puck to the end boards. Trottier's goal in 2:31 looked like the winning tally until the Himes-Sheppard combination flashed the red light in the next to last minute of the period.

The game became rough, though the penalties weer few. Trottier was injured in the third period and had to leave the ice. Billy Holmes had a severe evening. He was put off for roughing with Wilcox in the first period and subsequently had encounters with Siebert and George Boucher.

The saves stood 10 to 7 in the first period, with Walsh leading, Worters led, 14 to 13, in the second, but Walsh saved 13 to Worters's 10 in the third. In the overtime session Walsh had 5 to 7 for Worters.

CANZONERI AND BERG AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Clash in Important Ten-Round Main Event—Former Titleholder Is 6-to-5 Favorite.

Tony Canzoneri, former world's featherweight champion, will oppose Jack (Kid) Berg of England in the main bout of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden tonight. The battle is regarded as one of the most important lightweight contests of the metropolitan boxing season, and is attracting considerable interest.

Both fighters are in the front rank of contenders for the title held by Sammy Mandell, and each is eager for a meeting with the champion. Canzoneri, who outgrew the featherweight class soon after he lost the crown fifteen months ago, already has met Mandell in a title struggle, and lost a close decision.

Berg has been campaigning steadily among the best lightweights in America, and has met with considerable success. Canzoneri, however, has been made the favorite at odds of 6 to 5 to turn back the British battler.

The ten-round semi-final will bring together Sammy Dorfman, clever east side lightweight, and Harry Carlton, hard-hitting Jersey boxer. In the first ten rounder, Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo, Mich., will oppose Jake Zeramby, French lightweight from Lynn, Mass.

Henry Perlick, twin brother of Herman, will appear in the six round bout, against Edouardo Corti, Argentinian. In the four-round opener Petey Hayes will oppose Davey Brown.

LONDOS THROWS POGGI AT COLISEUM IN 25:04

Weakens Rival With Headlocks, Then Scores With Body Hold —Steinke Wins Quickly.

After 25 minutes and 4 seconds of wrestling before a crowd of about 500 at the New York Coliseum last night, Jim Londos threw Nazzarino Poggi with a body hold after several headlocks had visibly weakened Poggi. Londos weighed 200 pounds, his opponent 194. For the first twenty minutes Poggi put up an even battle, but after that the headlocks applied by Londos quickly turned the scale.

In the first of the scheduled thirty-minute limit matches, Hans Steinke, 240 pounds, three Dmitri Demetro, 201, in 4:46. Cyclone Ress and Vanka Zelzeniak wrestled to a thirty-minute draw in the next bout.

Ottawa Sextet Recalls Starr.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 16 (AP).—Harold Starr, young defense player, has been recalled by the Ottawa Senators from the London Club of the International Hockey League. Starr will fill the gap left by an injury to Frank (King) Clancy.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

THE conversation was general. Hockey players were drifting in and out of the room. Roy Worters was seated on a little chair, and Lionel Conacher was seated in a big one. Conacher was performing juggling feats with his derby hat.

"Say, Connie," piped up a voice from the corner, "would you fight Shires for $10,000?"

"That reminds me," said Conacher. "The population of the United States has been underestimated. Since that fight talk started, I've had more fellows come up and offer to be my manager than the census says there are in the country."

"Yeah, but would you fight this Shires?"

"For $10,000," replied the former amateur heavyweight boxing and wrestling champion of Canada, "I would fight anybody."

"You'd murder that bird. He can't be any good."

"Well, maybe you're wrong," countered Connie, twirling the derby on its vertical axis. "He's a professional athlete, isn't he? He must be clever with his hands and feet to play big league baseball. He must be pretty smart, too, the way he's capitalized himself."

"Sure he's smart. He made more money in two fights than he made all last year playing ball. And he's built himself up as a drawing card for baseball, too. He'll cash in on that this year."

Another Elimination Contest.

"If they wanted to put it over," said Conacher, "they should have a boxing tournament in the hockey outfits first. They should match me against Eddie Shore, for instance. And let any one else get in that wanted. Then the winner could fight Shires."

"He might want to fight with baseball gloves."

"We'd agree to that if he'd come into the ring on skates."

"That Shires is an all-around athlete. Played football and everything. Not the kind of football you played in Canada."

"Hey, wait a minute," said Conacher, sitting up sharply, "We play the same football that they play down here. There's only a little difference. People here have the wrong idea. They think we play soccer or Rugby or something like that. It's football. The same game you play here."

"What's the difference, if any?"

"Just a couple of rules, and we have one more man on our team. We have twelve. College teams here have eleven. We name the positions in a different way. A centre is a centre, but we call the guards, tackles and ends wings. The guard is an inside wing. The end is an outside wing. The extra man is the flying wing. He can play anywhere."

A Few More Distinctions.

"Is that the only difference?"

"Well, you have four downs for ten yards, and we have three downs for ten yards. Then we don't allow interference for a ball carrier once he gets three yards beyond the line of scrimmage. He has to take care of himself once he gets that far. You see, as soon as the teams line up for a scrimmage, the referee paces off three yards ahead of the ball, stands there, and sees that there's no interference beyond that line."

"Ease up on that football. The war is over. How about the problem of playing and managing a hockey team at the same time?"

The juggling act was going along smoothly up to that time, but, at this question, the derby went into a flat spin and crashed. Lionel the Large reached forward, picked it up, inspected it for collision damage and gravely brushed it with the sleeve of his coat.

"Why bring that up?" he said, somewhat mournfully. "I'll tell you the toughest part of managing and playing at the same time. It's when you boot one. You're the manager. Your job is to tell the other fellows what's wrong with their play and to hand out the corrections. It was my error that led to the first Boston goal on Sunday night. I let that what's-his-name—the fast skater—McKay beat me in my own alley. Well, after you pulled a stupid one like that it's tough to hop on somebody else for the same thing. But, outside of that, managing isn't so hard."

Casual Conversation.

"Did you ever row for the Argonauts?"

"I tried it, but I never was any good. Played football for 'em, though. You know, I entered Pitt to play football under Pop Warner if I could. That was funny. I guess I was the victim of overadvertising by my friends. They said I was so good that the Pittsburgh athletic officials decided I must be a professional. They barred me. I thought I'd continue my studies, anyway. I'd try to get into some other college through a prep school. So I went to Bellefonte Academy. We had Gibby Welch and a lot of fine players there. It was a corking team."

"How do you spend your Summers? Up in the woods?"

"Woods? That reminds me. All those fellows at Bellefonte thought that Canada was nothing but snow, ice, Christmas trees and 20 below zero all the year round. And all of 'em wanted to join the Royal Mounted. I told 'em we raised strawberries up my way, and even the geography teacher wouldn't believe it. But I proved it to 'em."

"Did you bake them a strawberry shortcake?"

"I did better than that. The next year I was with the Pittsburgh hockey team, and I sent a whole crate of Canadian strawberries to the school. I tried to get up to school to help 'em eat the berries, but I couldn't make it."

Short Shrift for Long Trousers.

"You were too young to get into the war, weren't you?"

"That's funny, too. I was 14 when it started, but I was a good-sized kid and thought I could fool 'em. A lad I went with had just got his first suit of long trousers. He was 16 and he got by. I was wearing short pants, and I knew they'd run me out of the recruiting place. Well, I got this kid with the longies, and we went behind the South African Monument, right in the heart of Toronto, and we changed clothes. I got by the physical examination flying, but they kept me from 9 o'clock until way late in the afternoon checking up my lies about my age. Then some fine-looking old gentlemen came out and told me to run home and go back to school. I did, but we had to change the clothes back again before I could go home."

"Speaking of wars, Connie, we've got a little war on with the Maroons. Isn't it about time we sharpened up our skates?"

So they all went off to sharpen their skates.

SAM WISE'S PIGEON BEST KING IN SHOW

Barnyard vocalization reached a new height on the second day of the forty-first Annual Poultry Show at Madison Square Garden yesterday as the judges attached hundreds of new prize-winning tags to the cages of the feathered occupants. Only the pigeons, many of which were heavy winners, took their honors in modest silence, while a majority of the cocks and cockerels boasted raucously of their competitive prowess.

W. F. Whiting, former Secretary of Commerce, who succeeded President Hoover when the latter resigned to take the Presidency, was one of yesterday's distinguished visitors and concurred in the opinion of various officials that the present show is one of the finest ever held here.

A somewhat larger crowd attended the show yesterday, a majority showing rather expert interest in the birds, while others were merely seeking a new form of entertainment.

Harry F. Allen, brother of the Governor of Massachusetts, was one of the big winners among pigeon exhibitors. His Silver Kings took four firsts, four seconds, three thirds and two fourth prizes. In addition, he won the special prize for the best young Silver King and the special for best young King, either white or silver.

Allen's Entries Trail.

In Jacobin pigeons, judging of which was completed yesterday, Frank W. Gorse, Needham Heights, Mass., and H. B. Dale, Springfield, Ill., took a majority of first prizes from a large field.

Completion of judging of turkeys sent the Bird Brothers, owners of the heaviest turkey in America, out by themselves as winners. They took all prizes for bronze turkeys. Two other clean sweeps were made by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Therin, Holyoke, Mass., with Narragansett birds, and Miss Gladys Honssinger, Lebanon, Mo., who exhibited Bourbon Reds.

Two exhibitors were the big victors with white and buff Plymouth Rock poultry. The Burrwood Farm took the lion's share of firsts with the white birds, while H. H. Bonniwell Jr., Gaylord, Minn., carried off most of the prizes for buff Rocks.

Total Awards Reach $20,000.

Individual prize winnings amount to no more than $5, but the cash awards for the entire exhibit total nearly $20,000. There are grand awards in the form of cups and special prizes offered by individual companies. A picture of the best specimen owned by the biggest winner of the show will grace the cover of next year's catalogue.

One interesting set of exhibits judged yesterday comprised the poultry entered by members of the 4-H Club, comprising youngsters who are just beginning the business of fine poultry breeding. Their exhibits were confined to Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns.

CARLSBAD DELEGATE HONORS F. J. MARSHALL

Adolphe Bardach, a delegate of the Carlsbad Town Council of Carlsbad, Czechoslovakia, accompanied by Dr. Vladimir Tlustak, Czechoslovakian Consul in New York, was the guest of honor at a special gathering of the members of the Marshall Chess Club, last night, when the visitor, in the name of Mayor Hermann Jakob of Carlsbad, presented a signed photograph of that official to Frank J. Marshall, the United States chess champion, who participated in the last international chess congress at Carlsbad. Mayor Walker will be the recipient of another photograph, according to Mr. Bardach.

The speaker praised Marshall, who, he said, was highly regarded throughout the chess circles of Europe. The Marshall Chess Club of Prague, of which Marshall is the godfather, recently won the championship of that city.

Marshall was then introduced by Hermann Helms, editor of The American Chess Bulletin, and the champion began a simultaneous exhibition against sixteen players. He won all the matches. His opponents included Mr. Bardach, L. M. McCoy, E. B. Hilliard, J. Szold, E. D. Tolles, R. Townsend, C. C. Harvey, Hugo Herz, B. Kramer, Thomas Page Pitt, M. Rentlinger Jr., Albert J. Wolf, Z. ALEKHINE VICTOR AS TOURNEY OPENS

TARTAKOWER ALSO SCORES

SAN REMO, Italy, Jan. 16.—Starting promptly on scheduled time, the sixteen experts entered in the international chess masters' tournament contested the eight games of the first round in the Winter Garden at the Municipal Casino today. Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris, world's champion, was the first to finish, and opened his account with a victory over Mario Monticelli, one of the two Italian representatives.

The next to win was Dr. S. Tartakower, another Parisian. His opponent was Roberto Grau of Buenos Aires, who today made his début in the international arena. The two French representatives experienced comparatively little difficulty in outwitting their adversaries. The other winners were F. D. Yates of England, E. D. Bogoljubow of Germany and Dr. M. Vidmar of Yugoslavia. Geza Maroczy of Hungary held A Nimzowitsch of Denmark, winner of the Carlsbad tournament, to a draw. Another draw was recorded between Ahues of Germany and Rubinstein of Poland. One game was adjourned.

At the first boad Nimzowitsch defended irregularly against Maroczy and an evenly contested game ended in a draw after thirty-eight moves. A Ruy Lopez was played by Spielmann of Austria against Yates, who won a pawn in the middle game and scored after fifty-eight moves.

Resorts to Morphy Defense.

At the first board Nimzowitsch deplayed a Ruy Lopez against Monticelli, who resorted to the Morphy defense. The champion, after opening the queen's rook file, posted a rook on the sixth rank, where it exercised strong control. Later Dr. Alekhine pushed a king side attack so vigorously that Monticelli, to obtain relief, sacrificed a piece for two pawns. The latter still had a fighting chance, but committed an oversight on his thirty-third move which caused his immediate resignation.

Dr. Tartakower played the queen's pawn opening against Grau and chose the king's fianchetto development. Winning a pawn on the fifteenth move, the Parisian gradually improved his position, added two more pawns to his store, and scored the game after thirty-five moves.

An evenly contested Ruy Lopez between Ahues and Rubinstein was abandoned as drawn after forty-seven moves. Romi of Italy and Colle of Belgium, who discussed the queen's pawn opening, played stubbornly for seventy-five moves and then adjourned in an even position. After winning a pawn from Araiza of Mexico in a queen's gambit, Bogoljubow, with the white pieces, scored his victory in forty-three moves. A bad oversight on the part of Kmoch of Austria in a queen's pawn opening enabled Dr. Vidmar to win in thirty-five moves.

Play Second Round Today.

The second round will be played tomorrow with the competitors paired as follows:

Colle vs. Bogoljubow, Rubinstein vs. Romi, Grau vs. Ahues, Monticelli vs. Tartakower, Yates vs. Alekhine, Nimzowitsch vs. Spielmann, Vidmar vs. Maroczy and Kmoch vs. Araiza.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular, Generally Lower, Trading Larger—Call Money 4%, Sterling Heavy.

For the first time in the new year, actual transactions in stocks crossed the 3,000,000-share mark yesterday; but the larger trading did not result from movements of any importance in prices. Advances and declines were again intermingled, with no definite sign of trend or purpose. There was no indication even of that "selective market" which Wall Street chroniclers used to harp on a few months ago, in the descriptions colored also by reference to "healthy reactions," "inside accumulation" and "bankers' buying." Numerically, declines predominated yesterday, but they were not important and were offset by a fair showing of equally moderate advances.

Not much happened on other markets. Call money continued at 4 per cent, with time money virtually unchanged. The weekly brokers-loan statement increased the total $13,000,000; one must go back to January of 1927 or 1926 in order to find such inconsequential changes at this time of year. In the Reserve Bank statements, the week's sweeping cut in borrowings on rediscount by the member banks was the notable exhibit. The account was reduced $125,000,000 in the system as a whole and $60,500,000 at the New York bank alone; total rediscounts left outstanding are the smallest since February, 1928, at the twelve Reserve banks combined and the smallest since June, 1927, at New York.

Silver bullion advanced a small fraction further, regaining the best figure reached on the recovery from the recent extreme low price. The weakness of the wheat market attracted attention. The price fell yesterday to the lowest in nearly a month; it has declined 11 cents since the opening of January. The year's subsequent movement may possibly apply an interesting test to the play of market tendencies as against the Farm Board's policies.

The past week's daily acquisition of gold by the Bank of England had plainly indicated that, for the first time since last July, the institution's gold reserve would be restored this week to the level fixed as a minimum by the Cunliffe committee on reorganization of the British currency. The $6,800,000 gold, reported in yesterday's statement as added to that reserve since a week ago, brings total holdings nearly $3,000,000 above that stipulated minimum. Since Oct. 3—just after the London bank rate had gone up to 6½ per cent and a somewhat fateful date for American as well as British finance—the Bank of England has increased its stock of gold by $98,000,000. It will also be observed that the Bank's reserve ratio, 46¾ per cent, is now well above the old-time "minimum of safety" for the first time since last July, and is the highest percentage reached in the middle of January since the war.

Gold in the London bank is still $18,000,000 less than a year ago, but its present position is more likely to be strengthened than to be weakened. The Bank of France reports addition to its own gold holdings of less than $1,000,000, the smallest increase of any week since the middle of October. Its statement covers last week's position, and it has subsequently taken some gold from London's open market. But it has ceased to draw on the Bank of England.

CARPENDER TO RETIRE FROM STOCK EXCHANGE

Transfer of His Seat to C. S. O'Neill Jr. Approved—Other Changes of Memberships.

Henry de la B. Carpender, cousin of Mrs. Frances N. Hall, who was acquitted of the murder of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, at New Brunswick, N. J., after a sensational trial in 1926, will relinquish his membership in the New York Stock Exchange. Approval of the transfer of his seat to Charles S. O'Neill Jr., was announced yesterday. Mr. O'Neill, who has been employed on the floor of the exchange as a telephone clerk for several firms, will receive Mr. Carpender's membership for a nominal consideration. Mr. Carpender has been a member of the Stock Exchange firm of McClave & Co., for many years.

Other transactions or pending transactions were announced yesterday by the membership committee of the Exchange. Transfer of the membership ex-rights of Clarence O. Gamble to Joseph L. Patton for a nominal consideration has been proposed. Mr. Patton is a general partner in the firm of Knight, Dysart & Gamble. Transfer of the membership of Howard C. Babcock to William Schoellkopf for a private consideration also has been proposed. Mr. Schoellkopf is a general partner of Babcock, Schoellkopf & Co.

The membership of G. Hermann Kinnicutt has been transferred to James C. Fuller of Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co.

Memberships transferred ex-rights are those of James L. Cooke to Herman Schwartz, at Josephthal & Co., and of Edgar B. Bernhard to William J. Tillier of Colvin & Co.

United Gas Extends Trade-In.

The United Gas Company has extended until Jan. 31 the time for exchange of one share of its common stock for two shares of common of the Houston Gulf Gas Company, a subsidiary. It now holds 85 per cent of the latter's common stock, an increase of 67 per cent from Dec. 27, 1929, when the original offer of an exchange was mailed to Houston Gulf stockholders.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

In the year's first 3,000,000-share day prices moved irregularly yesterday, with gains and losses sprinkled in confused fashion throughout the list. Public utility stocks, as a group, were about the best but lost some of their gains, and there was evidently a good deal of pressure against the steels, the oils, the coppers and sugar issues. The closing tone was heavy. Sharp attacks on particular issues on the Stock Exchange proved their vulnerability. Radio, in this category, was sold heavily and yielded considerable ground. Wall Street, at the close of the market, was confused about the outlook for the immediate future. The January rise, which had been predicted confidently in many quarters on the Street, has not materialized to any considerable extent, although individual issues here and there have been able to establish and maintain good gains. Accumulation of leading stocks doubtless is going on beneath the surface, but when stocks come out for sale as the bears increase the pressure, recessions usually follow, as they did yesterday. The business news now is being followed closely for hints on first-quarter business, and until these are more closely defined the market picture is not likely to be very clear.

No Cut in Interest Rates.

Despite the decline in money rates, no move has been undertaken by the banks to reduce the interest paid upon deposits, and, according to leading bankers, no such move is contemplated. Banks did not advance interest rates very high during the period of high open market rates for credit, it is explained, for the feeling was general at the time that such conditions could not last. Consequently there is no pressing necessity for reducing them. Another possible explanation for the failure to cut down the return paid on deposits may be that bankers do not look for extremely cheap money to prevail. It is felt that compensating influences, such as the withdrawal of European funds from this market and the revival of business demands for credit, will militate against very low money rates. At the same time there is practically unanimous agreement that money rates will remain comfortable for some time to come.

Federal Reserve Statement.

The retirement of Federal Reserve credit extended to the market at the end of the year, which was noticeable in last week's statement of the Reserve Bank, showed prominently in the statement for the current week, given out yesterday. Discounts at the local bank of issue fell $60,551,000, leaving member bank borrowing in this district at the low figure of $70,626,000. For the system as a whole the drop in discounts for the week totaled $125,279,000. The Federal Reserve authorities are content apparently to have member banks reduce their indebtedness and to that end are maintaining portfolios of the Reserve Banks at substantial levels. At the local bank bills were somewhat lower, but an increase in holdings of government securities more than made up for that decline. On the other hand, the system showed advanced bill holdings and lower holdings of government issues. In both cases the reduction of Federal Reserve credit corresponded closely to the decline in discounting.

A Selective Market.

The head of one of the largest brokerage offices in Wall Street said yesterday that he saw beneath the surface of the present confused trading a reflection of discrimination in buying which bodes well for those who were able to pick and choose their purchases. "This is a discriminating and highly selective market," he remarked. "The process of separating the sheep from the goats has probably never worked so naturally as at the present time. It may be laid down as a pretty safe rule that the shares of those companies whose net earnings for the first quarter of the year will make a favorable showing with the first quarter of 1929 will take care of themselves marketwise. It is equally safe to say that the shares of companies which are going to experience a disappointing first quarter will prove disappointing marketwise."

The Turn-over Increases.

Sales on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday aggregated 3,043,620 shares, the largest for a full five-hour day of 1930, an advance of something more than 400,000 shares from the previous day and double the sales of the smallest day this week. It represented an increase in the outside public participation in the market to some extent, and to some extent the rolling up of large blocks on offer by professionals. The manner in which the sales expanded over the previous day's trading is reflected in the following table:

	Thursday.	Wednesday.
To 10:30 A. M.	257,500	424,300
To 12 M.	1,454,600	1,134,300
To 1:30 P. M.	2,061,600	1,666,700
To 2:10 P. M.	2,319,400	1,949,700

The Bears More Aggressive.

The bear contingent on the Stock Exchange has achieved successful results thus far this year by the expedient of picking out a vulnerable issue and slamming a lot of stock into the market. This was apparent yesterday in such stocks as Radio, General Motors and Anaconda. On the previous day, Montgomery Ward bore the brunt of the attacks. The stock offered usually is in large blocks, most times in 5,000 and 10,000 share blocks and "at the market." Even the best of stocks back away from such shelling. All sorts of bear rumors are abroad in the Street, a few of them with the glimmer of truth to them, but mostly set afloat for such market effect as they will have.

The Effect of Heavy Financing.

With the week's new bond offerings now in excess of $300,000,000, and the bulk of the issues reported as sold, the effect of this heavy financing on the listed bond market has been by no means nil. Bond prices on the Stock Exchange this week have not been able to make much headway. There has been evidence of a certain amount of switching from old issues into the new, with consequent easing in prices of the former. Railroad bonds, as a group, have shown about the best strength this week, with foreign loans which have been under some rather severe pressure recently showing fair recoveries. The principal pieces of new financing now in sight include public utility, railroad and industrial bond issues.

Trusts Consider Financing

While many investment trusts have substantially reduced their capital stocks through the purchase and retirement of large blocks of their own shares, with a view to increasing the asset values of the remaining shares, a few other trusts with eminently successful records are said to be planning to increase their capital through the sale of debentures later in the year. The attractiveness of these obligations, it is asserted, would be enhanced by attaching warrants to them to subscribe to the common stock of the trusts. Investment trust executives say the history of the trust movement in Great Britain shows that debenture offerings have generally been profitable to the trusts and to the investors. The executives anticipate that offerings of common stock by investment trusts will be extremely rare in the next year or two.

Erie Coal Sale.

The action of the management of the Erie Railroad in placing control of coal properties in a company whose stock in turn is to be offered to the Erie's stockholders was said yesterday to be a contrast with actions by other railroads. When other coal companies divested themselves of their coal properties the equity in the properties was given to stockholders by a distribution of stock in a new company. Under the Erie plan Erie stockholders, instead of receiving stock, will receive rights to buy stock.

MONEY.

Thursday, Jan. 16, 1930.

An Investment Secret
4000 YEARS OLD

LONG before the reign of King Tut the Egyptians discovered that wildfowl could be domesticated and cuneiformed the adage "Never put all your eggs into one basket." ¶ Down through the ages has come the banker's interpretation of these words. "Diversify your investments," he tells you. This axiom is almost as old as that other, to which so many investors are turning since the recent debacle in Wall Street: "In real estate there is safety." ¶ To the investor who is turning to real estate, the field is full of opportunities. He may purchase the preferred stock of a single building. Or the common stock of a group of buildings. Or the preferred and common stocks of a single building. ¶ The Mandel Plan combines the soundest and most attractive investment features of all these. It offers you the opportunity to make a short-term investment in one building and, at the same time, to acquire a permanent interest in ownership and profits of all The Mandel Plan building and real estate operations. More than that, you become entitled to an owner's interest in a growing fund of cash capital, and you share in the generous profits earned by this fund.

You will want to know more about The Mandel Plan. An illustrated book, "Profits in the Making," tells all about it. The coupon will bring your copy to you. Mail it—today.

MANHATTAN BANK INCREASES INCOME

Net for Old Company and Successor for 1929 Is Put at $5,537,000.

DIVIDENDS WERE $3,250,000

J. S. Baker, President, Predicts Gradual Recovery in Business This Year.

Net income of the Bank of the Manhattan Company for the first eleven months of 1929 and of its successor company, the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company, for one month, amounted to $5,537,000, after all expenses, including taxes and charge-offs, J. Stewart Baker, president of the bank, announced yesterday. The statement for the two periods covers 1929. All retiring directors of the bank had been re-elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting, Mr. Baker said, and Harry A. Kahler, president of the New York Title and Mortgage Company, was added to the board. There were no changes in officers.

In connection with the annual meeting of the stockholders, Mr. Baker issued a statement commenting on the bank's progress during the year. Referring to the recent slump in the stock markets, he said he expected that general business would pass through a period of convalescence before regaining its former activity. The Bank of Manhattan Trust Company, he said, probably would move into its new skyscraper at 40 Wall Street in May. His statement was as follows:

"During 1929 the business of the company was very satisfactory and earnings were considerably in excess of those of the previous year. The net income for the year 1929 of the Bank of the Manhattan Company for eleven months and its successor Bank of Manhattan Trust Company for one month, after all expenses, including taxes and charge-offs, amounted to $5,537,000. Included in this amount was a dividend received from the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., amounting to $1,000,000. The dividends paid by the company during the year amounted to $3,250,000.

"The past year has been a trying one due to the unparalleled and insistent demand for credit caused by the speculation in securities. The high rates attracted so large a portion of the fluid funds of the country to the call money market that the market for commercial paper was practically non-existent, which forced merchants and manufacturers to go to their banks to get the accommodation they required. This placed a heavy load on the banks, which, happily now has come to an end.

"After having passed through such a serious securities panic, with the consequent violent adjustment in prices and values, it is only natural that a period of convalescence should follow before general business regains its strength and vigor. Fundamental conditions, I believe, are sound. We must not be too impatient but rather let the improvement be gradual and sure. Strong stimulants often lead to a weaker condition after the effects have worn off. During the coming year there will be no substitute for hard work and efficient management.

Praises Stock Exchange.

"It is a pleasure to report that throughout the distressing weeks of October and November our contracts with the Stock Exchange and brokerage houses were most satisfactory. In looking back at the situation I cannot help but be impressed with the efficient way in which they handled their relations with us. It has confirmed our confidence in this type of business, of which we have such a large amount.

"I am happy to report that the new building being erected on the property at 40 Wall Street, where the banking business of this company commenced over 131 years ago, is nearing completion and we hope to move into our new quarters some time in May. This property, which is carried on our books at $1,652,000, has been leased for $500,000 a year for ninety-three years and, in addition, the company has obtained adequate space in the new building at a figure which is considerably below the current rate. To accomplish this it was necessary to adjust certain leases and to arrange for temporary quarters. The expense in this connection, which amounted to $668,000, has been charged directly to profit and loss and is not included in the above figures."

SEE AID IN NEW PLAN TO MEET FOX NEEDS

But Bankers Interested in the Obligations Say More Than $35,000,000 Is Required.

NOT CONSULTED ON FUNDING

Assert, However, It Would Help to Clear Up Situation—Circulars Explain Proposal.

Banking officials interested in the financing of the short-term obligations of the Fox Film Corporation and the Fox Theatres Corporation through holding of claims said yesterday that they had not been consulted in connection with the Fox Securities Corporation's plan for funding $35,000,000 of the obligations. They said, however, that if the plan were successful it would clear away many of the pressing obligations, but that much more than the $35,000,000 announced as the objective of the new Securities Corporation would be needed entirely to fund the short-term commitments of the Fox interests.

At the time of the appointment of John E. Otterson of the Electrical Research Products Corporation and H. L. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co. as trustees to act with William Fox in the control of his holdings in the Fox companies it was said the short-term obligations of the companies were about $91,000,000. It was said at that time that these two trustees would act with Mr. Fox in planning some method of financing this amount. It is understood, however, that the trustees have not been active in the control of any of the companies. Mr. Stuart was reported yesterday to be out of town, and at the office of Mr. Otterson it was said he had no statement to make. It was learned, however, that neither had been consulted in regard to the plan of financing announced on Wednesday by the Fox Securities Corporation.

Circulars Explain Plan.

At the office of David A. Brown, chairman of the board of the Broadway National Bank and Trust Company and president of the Fox Securities Corporation, it was said the mailing of circulars explaining the plan to the theatre owners of the country and to holders of Fox securities would be started today and that a public offering of the new notes of the company would be made within a few days.

The circular announces an issue of $35,000,000 of 7 per cent three-year gold notes of the Fox Securities Corporation on a "when, as and if issued" basis. In explaining the plan by which the securities corporation will operate, the circular says:

"A contract has been entered into between Fox Securities Corporation, on the one hand, and Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theatres Corporation, on the other hand, whereby the provision of capital to the last-mentioned corporations and their subsidiary and controlled companies is to be without profit to Fox Securities Corporation, and wherein Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theatres Corporation agree to pay all operating expense, including taxes, of Fox Securities Corporation.

"The purpose of the present offering of 7 per cent three-year gold notes is to provide funds for Fox Film Corporation and/or Fox Theatres Corporation and their subsidiary and controlled companies so that they may be enabled to liquidate certain of their matured and maturing debts, including the indebtedness of approximately $18,000,000 of Fox Theatres Corporation to Fox Film Corporation, pending the development of a desirable form of consolidation or until conditions warrant the securing of more comprehensive financing."

Matured Obligations $10,800,000.

It is understood that the matured obligations of the Fox interests now amount to about $10,800,000. Other obligations which are known to exist are a $15,000,000 note to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, due Feb. 15, and $12,000,000 in notes which were sold to the public through Halsey, Stuart & Co. and which will be due on April 1. The $18,000,000 mentioned as owed to the Fox Film Corporation by the Fox Theatres Corporation is understood to have been advanced to the theatres corporation to aid in the purchase of stock in Loew's, Inc.

Regarding the security for the notes of the Fox Securities Corporation, the circular states:

"The proceeds of the issue will be advanced from time to time to Fox Film Corporation and/or Fox Theatres Corporation, and for each advance Fox Securities Corporation will receive the promissory note or other term obligation of the borrower, secured by mortgage or pledge of such stocks or other securities or assets or equities as, in the opinion of the directors of Fox Securities Corporation, will be of a value at least equal to twice the amount of the advance, based upon a suitable appraisal. It is estimated that approximately $100,000,000 in value of such stocks or other securities, assets or equities are available."

In regard to the operations of the company, the circular states that it is the purpose of the two corporations, Fox Film and Fox Theatres, to liquidate their unsecured obligations and pay or refund their obligations to secured creditors as rapidly as possible, and that after this operation has been accomplished at least 70 per cent of the surplus earnings above dividends shall be paid to the Fox Securities Corporation. Funds thus received by the Fox Securities Corporation will be used, it is announced, for redeeming the notes, which are callable on any interest date at prices which range from 105 within a year to 115 within three years.

ERIE ROAD TO DROP TWO COAL CONCERNS

1 FOR 2 RIGHTS AT $20

Complete Separation Promised With More Economy in Mining Among Expectations.

The Erie Railroad announced yesterday a plan for divestment of its chief anthracite coal properties, the value of which has been estimated at about $75,000,000. For this purpose the Pittston Company has been formed in Delaware. It will lease the anthracite properties, which are operated by the Pennsylvania Coal Company and the Hillside Coal and Iron Company, owned by the Erie. Details of the plan indicate that O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, who control the Erie, will have a controlling interest in the Pittston Company.

The Erie will offer $21,502,000 of stock in the Pittston Company to Erie stockholders on designated terms. This method is a contrast to that followed by the Lackawanna, the Reading and other railroads in coal property segregation. Those railroads distributed to their stockholders shares in companies formed to acquire their coal properties. Under the Erie's plan, Erie stockholders will pay for stock in the company formed to lease their coal properties.

To Underwrite Shares.

The Van Sweringens and other interests have undertaken to subscribe to their quota of shares in the Pittston Company and will underwrite shares not bought. The Pittston Company will pay the fees of the syndicate, but the Van Sweringens will make no charge for the proportion they take.

The Pittston Company will have authorized capital of 2,500,000 shares of no-par common stock, all of which will have equal voting and other rights. To finance the acquisition of certain unnamed companies, the Pittston Company will offer 1,075,100 of these shares at $20 each to Erie stockholders of record Jan. 28 in the ratio of one Pittston share for each two shares of Erie first preferred, send preferred or common stock held.

Assignable warrants for purchase of Pittston stock will be mailed to Erie stockholders soon after Jan. 28. They will call for payment of Pittston shares within thirty days of their issuance.

The Erie management said that it "will completely separate the Erie Railroad Company from any interest in the coal mined from the properties of the Pennsylvania Coal Company and the Hillside Coal and Iron Company and transported by the Erie Railroad Company."

The new company will lease the coal properties for twenty-five years, with option of renewal, and will purchase coal mined on the payment of royalties. It is estimated that the coal company will have an outlet of upward of 5,000,000 tons of anthracite annually and that this total will be increased.

The Pittston Company, which has broad corporate powers, has as its chief purpose the mining and distributing of anthracite from the fields controlled by the Erie. It has contracted to buy control of certain companies, all but one of which distribute coal. The exception controls companies of which some are engaged in this business. The object of the acquisitions is to provide for additional distribution of coal.

Michael Gallagher, president of the Pittston Company, said economies not now possible would be realized by unifying the mining and distribution of coal. He estimated that, exclusive of such economies, earnings for 1929, with December estimated, of the two Erie coal companies and the distributing companies to be acquired applicable to Pittston stock were equal to about $3 a share, or 15 per cent of the subscription price to Erie stockholders. This estimate does not include profits from additional sales of Erie anthracite that might be made through the distributing agencies acquired.

"It is expected that earnings will permit the payment of dividends at the rate of not less than $1.50 per share per annum from the time the Pittston Company commences operations," concluded Mr. Gallagher.

Value of Companies Estimated.

On July 28, 1925, George W. Burpee, consulting engineer in the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation of the proposed Nickel Plate merger, gave $83,890,921 as the grand total of the summary of values substituted for investments in controlled companies on the Erie balance sheet. He placed a valuation of $61,395,912 on the Pennsylvania Coal Company, $11,974,739 on the Hillside Coal and Iron Company and $1,898,511 on the New York, Susquehanna and Western Coal Company, all anthracite producers. Among Erie bituminous companies, he valued the Northwestern Mining and Exchange Company at $7,421,646 and the Blossburg Coal Company at $1,200,113.

Segregation of the coal properties is another result of entrance of the Van Sweringens into the Erie management. Under the presidency of John J. Bernet, now president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Lines, the road last June declared dividends on first and second preferred shares at the full rate of 4 per cent. These were the first Erie dividends since 1907.

Freight-Train Speed Gains.

The average speed of freight trains in November was 13.3 miles an hour, an increase of 0.5 of a mile from November, 1928, according to the Bureau of Railway Economics. The average daily movement of a car was 32.4 miles, a decrease of 0.8 from November, 1928, but an increase of 2.2 from November, 1927. The average carload in November was 27.2 tons, a decrease of 0.3 of a ton from November, 1928, but an increase of 0.4 of a ton from November, 1927.

B. & O. Contracts for Rails.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has ordered 22,000 tons of rail from the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, 52,000 tons from the Carnegie Steel Company, 6,000 tons from the Illinois Steel Company and 5,000 tons from the Inland Steel Company.

Sales of Two Bond Issues Set for Lincoln's Birthday

The State of Arkansas, which originally planned to market an issue of $18,000,000 highway bonds on Jan. 11 and subsequently postponed the sale until Feb. 11, notified New York bankers yesterday of a decision to open bids on the bonds a day later, Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12, while a legal holiday in the North, is not observed throughout the South.

The State of Maryland yesterday also set Feb. 12 as the date for opening sealed bids on a new issue of $787,000 4½ per cent general construction bonds. This will be the first financing done by the State since June 30 last, when an issue of $653,000 4½s was sold at a price of 101.078, a 4.36 per cent basis.

BROKERS' LOANS UP $13,000,000 IN WEEK

DECLINE BY LOCAL BANKS

Brokers' loans, as announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, have increased $13,000,000 from the previous week's figures. They now stand at $3,365,000,000, compared with $3,352,000,000 last week. The figures are $3,439,000,000 below the high record of $6,804,000,000 reached on Oct. 2 last, and $37,000,000 above the low point of $3,328,000,000 reached on Dec. 24, on the present movement.

Out-of-town banks increased their lending by $53,000,000 this week, but loans made by New York banks for their own account declined $33,000,000 and loans for the account of non-banking lenders declined $6,000,000.

Local member banks reduced their borrowings from the Federal Reserve this week from $76,000,000 to $15,000,000. Total loans and investments of the member banks in New York City declined $128,000,000, the reduction being distributed among the three divisions of loans on securities, all other loans and investments.

Following are the detailed figures of stock and bond collateral loans made to brokers and dealers by reporting member banks in New York City:

For own account........	853	886	1,084
For out-of-town banks..	877	824	1,859
For others	1,636	1,642	2,452
Total	3,365	3,352	5,395

Of this week's total $2,949,000,000 consists of demand loans, against $2,925,000,000 last week, and $416,000,000 of time loans, compared with $427,000,000 a week ago.

Reserve Credit Retired.

The retirement of the extra Federal Reserve credit which was released at the close of last year to tide the money market over the year-end period of credit tightness progressed rapidly this week, the Reserve statements show. At the local Reserve bank a total of $61,958,000 in Reserve credit was retired, almost the entire amount being represented by a decrease of $60,551,000 in discounts. The latter are now down to the exceptionally low figure of $70,626,000. Holdings of bills bought in the open market declined $1,632,000, while holdings of United States Government securities rose $2,075,000.

Total gold reserves of the New York bank advanced $51,228,000. This gain, combined with a further reduction in Reserve note circulation, brought the reserve ratio up to 71.6 per cent, as compared with 67.4 per cent. Deposit liabilities were higher.

For the twelve banks of the Reserve System, discounts showed a drop of $125,279,000. Bill holdings went up $4,180,000 and holdings of United States Government securities declined $5,782,000. For the system, as for the New York bank, the decline in the total amount of credit being extended to the market tallied closely with the cut in discounting. Reserve credit outstanding dropped $124,701,000 to $1,259,623,000.

The return of currency paid out over the holiday period continued to show in the statement. Reserve note circulation declined $54,483,000, and total gold holdings advanced $31,705,000. Total deposits of the system fell $18,420,000. As a result of these changes the reserve ratio advanced from 72.9 per cent a week ago to 75.4 per cent.

ORDERS B. & O. OUT OF MARYLAND LINE

I. C. C. Rules Larger Road Must Divest Itself of Stock Totaling $18,000,000.

LINK IN MERGER PLANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was directed today to divest itself of the capital stock of the Western Maryland Railway in an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission holding that it had violated the Clayton anti-trust act.

The Baltimore & Ohio was ordered to dispose of its holdings in the smaller road within six months and none may be sold or transferred to any stockholder, officer, director or any one otherwise connected in any way with the B. & O. or any of its subsidiaries or affiliated companies.

A total of $18,673,049 has been invested in stock of the Western Maryland by the Baltimore & Ohio. In ordering the divestment the commission held the Western Maryland to be a competing road.

The B. & O. and the Western Maryland largely afford the rail transportation for the Myersdale, Cumberland-Piedmont and the West Virginia coal fields, the commission found, and both engage in transportation of merchandise between Baltimore and other wholesale and jobbing centres served in common.

Sought as Part of B. & O.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, testified at the hearing that while in its consolidation plan the commission had assigned the Western Maryland to the New York Central system, it was his opinion that a better plan would make it a part of the Baltimore & Ohio. As a result, he said, the Baltimore & Ohio, together with other carriers, had prepared a plan under which the carriers in Eastern territory would be divided into four systems, with the Baltimore & Ohio and the Western Maryland a part of the same system. He added that the plan had been brought informally to the attention of the commission.

Planning eventually to present to the commission his proposition for joint operation of the two roads, Mr. Willard said that when the opportunity presented itself to purchase the Western Maryland stock his company had done so "with a view of insuring success" of the plan for joint operation. He contended that no violation of the Clayton act was involved.

How Stock Was Acquired.

In January and February, 1927, the commission said, the Baltimore & Ohio was shown to have acquired 144,798 shares of the 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock of the Western Maryland, 8,000 shares of non-cumulative convertible second preferred stock and 159,050 shares of common stock.

During February the road also was shown to have obtained an option to purchase 19,070 additional shares of 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock, this option being exercised in August, 1928. Through these acquisitions the Baltimore & Ohio acquired about 42.8 per cent of the Western Maryland's total outstanding capital stock. The remainder was said to be in numerous relatively small holdings.

The Western Maryland operates about 800 miles of line in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia and has been much sought after by various major lines in the East in plans for unification.

Talk of Trustee for Stock.

Railroad men said yesterday it was possible the Baltimore & Ohio might vest its Western Maryland stock with a trustee. This method was recently followed with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Alleghany Corporation and the Nickel Plate in divesting themselves of control in the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad.

Under the consolidation plan recently announced by the commission, the Western Maryland would be given to the Wabash, which under the plan would become the basis of a fifth trunk line in the East. Other roads awarded the Wabash were the Norfolk & Western, Lehigh Valley, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and Wheeling. In its merger petition, filed a year ago, the B. & O. asked for control of the Western Maryland.

If the B. & O. put the stock in the hands of a trustee, it was said that an agreement might be made with the commission to have the stock left with the trustee until final settlement of the future of the Western Maryland. However, since there is much more competition between the B. & O. and the Western Maryland than there is between the Nickel Plate and the Wheeling, it was suggested that this plan might not be approved by the commission.

ATTERBURY FAVORS HALVING GRADE COST

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, issued yesterday a statement in which he favored an equal division of the cost of eliminating grade crossings between the railroads and public authorities. The announcement was made in connection with the message of Governor Larson of New Jersey.

Mr. Atterbury's statement follows in part:

"I have read with great interest Governor Larson's annual message to the Legislature of New Jersey. No portion of this message is of greater importance or of wider public interest than the Governor's brief, but very clear, discussion of the grade crossing situation. It affects all users of automobiles, all other persons who on foot or otherwise use grade crossings, all patrons of the railroads, all owners of stocks or bonds of the New Jersey rail lines, and the managements of all rail systems serving the State. In fact, it concerns practically every one who is a resident of the State, who traverses it by rail or highway, or who has any financial interest therein.

"Governor Larson takes the position, and I think quite correctly, that New Jersey has lagged behind other commonwealths in providing legislation for the equitable division of grade crossing removal costs between the railroads and the public. He quotes the Board of Public Utility Commissioners as having in two successive annual reports declared this condition unsatisfactory. He directs attention to the fact that the Legislature of 1929 enacted a law providing for an equal apportionment of grade crossing removal costs between the railroads and the public, but applying to State highways, only; also that the committee which framed this bill was continued, and was directed to report, at the session now opening, upon the question of extending a similar basis of apportionment to all other public highways.

"Governor Larson's language leaves no doubt that he hopes means will be found for such an extension of the existing law. With this conclusion the Pennsylvania Railroad management is heartily in accord, and as far as my observation extends, the managements of the other railroads are also.

"In the last two decades neither the number of trains moving over grade crossings, nor their speed, has materially increased. In many cases the numbers of trains have been reduced. The increase in the use of highways by motor vehicles, however, has been enormous and the number of vehicles moving over the crossings now exceeds by many times the number of trains.

"The railroads are the largest taxpayers in New Jersey, and their contributions to the public treasury, through this means, are largely used for highway extensions resulting in a further increase in automobile traffic.

"Under these conditions, an equal division of the cost of removal of existing grade crossings, where such work is required in the public interest, is more than fair from the public viewpoint. A law applying this principle not merely to a special class of highways, but to all classes, would greatly simplify grade crossing removal problems and permit the work to proceed, with minimum difficulty, at an annual rate of expenditure so adjusted as not to burden unduly either the railroads or the public."

REPORTS GAIN IN TRAFFIC.

Bangor & Aroostook Starts Year Ahead of January, 1929.

The Bangor & Aroostook Railroad in 1929 earned between $8.25 and $8.50 a share for its common stock, including 35,232 shares sold to stockholders recently, according to Percy R. Todd, president. He said charges for retired equipment in the first eleven months were slightly more than double what they were in the same period in 1928 and that large charges to be made for this purpose in December would bring the total of these charges for the year to at least two and one-half times what they were in 1928.

Mr. Todd said that January traffic thus far was materially ahead of January, 1929, and that he expected earnings for the first and second quarters to be materially ahead of the same periods in 1929.

DECLINES GENERAL IN LISTED BONDS

Most Prices Fail to Advance Despite Easy Credit, but Some Good Gains Are Made.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES DULL

Oils Active and Irregular, Utilities Quiet — French 7½s Reach New High at 120.

Bond prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday failed to show any appreciation on the average despite the continuance of cheap money. THE NEW YORK TIMES averages of both domestic and foreign bonds showed slight declines for the day, although a number of issues ran counter to the general trend and finished several points higher. United States Government obligations were dull and irregular.

The active American Telephone and Telegraph issues sold off slightly, the new debenture 5s of 1965 off ⅛ point, and the convertible 4½s of 1939 off half a point. Other public utility issues were not especially active. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey convertible 4½s moved up 2¼ points, and International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s gained ¾ of a point.

The most active issue in the railroad group was new Chicago & North Western 4¾s of 1949, which broke through par for the first time, closing at 99¾, off ¼. The new Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s of 1995 closed unchanged at 94, the price at which they were brought out. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s were active and finished fractionally higher for the day.

Oil bonds as a group showed considerable activity. Texas Corporation convertible 5s declined ¼ of a point to 101 on an unusually large turnover, while Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s held unchanged at 102 in a rather heavy volume. The Sinclair issues closed irregular. Colon Oil 6s recovered a point, and Shell Union 5s of 1947 moved off ⅞ of a point. Initial trading in the new Shell Union 5s of 1949 took place yesterday on the Stock Exchange, with the low at 97⅞ and the high and closing price at 98.

French Government bonds proved the most active in the foreign list yesterday, the 7½s touching a new high at 120, and the 7s at 114¼, up ½ and ¾ of a point respectively.

SALES GAINS SHOWN BY GENERAL MOTORS

The General Motors Corporation dealers delivered to consumers 48,253 cars in December, compared with 33,442 cars in the same month of 1928, an increase of 44.3 per cent, according to the corporation's announcement made yesterday. For the entire year 1929 dealers of the corporation delivered to consumers 1,860,403 cars, compared with 1,842,443 cars in 1928. Sales by General Motors manufacturing units to dealers amounted to 1,899,267 cars during 1929, compared with 1,810,806 in 1928.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the corporation, called attention to the fact that the important increase in consumers for December, 1929, as compared with December of 1928, amounting to 14,811 units, was not indicative of any change in the trend of retail buying, at least in proportion to what the figures indicate. He said:

"The facts are that in December, 1928, dealers' stocks of certain of the corporation's divisions were depleted to the point where the retail sales did not reflect the poetntial of the market. In the month just closed cars were available to a greater degree; therefore the retail sales reflect more accurately current demand."

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS IRREGULAR

Bank Statement Has Favorable Influence—Trend Downward on German Boerse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The general depression on the Stock Exchange was not helped today by the Bank of England's failure to reduce the rediscount rate. The war loan rallied, however, to £110 13-16, while the funding loan also was higher at £86 11-16.

A renewed slump in Royal Mail followed reports that a new £1,000,000 debenture issue would be made soon. This is believed to be a sequel to the directors' recent announcement that there would be some difficulty in repaying the trade facilities loan, which falls due shortly.

Radios decline ¾ to $43, while tobaccos and rayons were weak. International Holdings advanced ⅛ to $5¾, Brazilian Traction was ½ higher, at $39½, and International nickel up ¼, to $36⅛. His Master's Voice Gramophone was steady, at £4 9-16, while Hydro-Electric jumped ⅜ to $43⅝.

Oils were weak, Mexican Eagles declining 4½d. Rubbers rallied, with the price of the commodity rising to 7⅜d. a pound. Rhodesians and South Africans generally were dull.

Money was easier in Lombard Street, with overnight loans available at 4 per cent. Discounts were easy at 4 1-16 per cent for three-month bills. Sterling hardened further to $4.86 15-16.

Prices Uneven in Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Irregularity developed on the Bourse today after a strong opening. Satisfactory conditions prevailed generally, however. Favorable news from The Hague and the weekly statement of the Bank of France showing a reduction of the paper money in circulation amounting to 1,000,000,000 francs had a noticeable influence on the market.

The gold reserve also increased 25,000,000 francs, according to the bank's statement, while the proportion of cash on hand to outstanding obligations was 48.60 per cent.

French rentes were generally steady, closing as follows: The 3 per cents 88.10, 1918 4s 98.85, 1920 amortizable 5s 135.90, 1928 5s 103, 1920 6s 102.80, 1927 amortizable 6s 109.70.

Dull and Weaker in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—After an unsteady opening on the Boerse today the market was weakened by profit-taking both on domestic and foreign account. An absence of purchasing orders, critical comments in regard to the final outcome of The Hague conference and the fact that London did not follow the Reichsbank's example in reducing the bank rate were depressing factors.

The volume of trading was small and the losses, which averaged about 4 points, in no case exceeded 6 points. Mannesmann of the mining group was an exception, advancing 3 points. Reichsbank shares improved slightly toward the close following an earlier weakening. Otherwise the Boerse closed weak and listless.

The money market was slightly tighter; call money was 5¾ to 7⅞ per cent.

$2,400,000 PROFIT IN 1929

So successfully has the recapitalization plan of the International Mercantile Marine Company, adopted last June, worked out, that directors yesterday were able to vote an initial dividend of $1 a share on the 612,000 no par outstanding shares, the first dividend paid on any class of the company's stock since Feb. 1, 1923. The dividend is payable on Feb. 15.

P. A. S. Franklin, president of the corporation, submitted figures and estimates to the board of directors and indicated that the operations of the corporation and its American subsidiaries for 1929 resulted in a profit of about $2,400,000 after providing for depreciation on American steamers.

"The annual report for 1929 will be ready for publication in April," said Mr. Franklin. "It will show the new balance sheet, setting out the recapitalization of the company with the foreign companies carried as investments; therefore, the operating results and depreciation of such foreign companies will be dealt with on a different basis than heretofore."

Plan Limited Accumulations.

A drastic recapitalization of the corporation's financial structure took place in 1929. It was primarily for the purpose of eliminating accumulated dividends of 81½ per cent on the 6 per cent preferred shares, of which $51,725,000 was outstanding, and also to do away wtih a deficit of $28,620,000 created by the sale of the White Star Line in 1927 for less than book value. This plan was approved on June 24, 1929, by the stockholders.

Preferred stockholders received one new share of no par common stock and $20 cash for each share of preferred and accumulated dividends. Common stockholders received one new share of common for each five shares of old common held. At the same time the authorized capital was reduced from $120,000,000 to $30,000,000 represented by 720,000 shares of one class, of which 612,000 are now outstanding and on which the dividend declared yesterday will be paid.

That the company has "turned the corner" is said to be evident from the fact that its estimated earnings of about $2,400,000 were the best it has reported in many years. In the combined income accounts covering the parent company and its subsidiaries, losses were shown averaging more than $2,400,000 in each of the five years from 1922 to 1926 inclusive. A small loss amounting to $27,500 was reported for 1927, but in 1928 the net was $735,000.

Gain Since Jan. 1, 1927.

The situation of the company has materially improved since its White Star fleet was sold on Jan. 1, 1927, to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company for £7,000,000, of which £4,650,000 has been paid and the balance of £2,350,000 falls due Dec. 31, 1936.

The fleet now maintained includes fifty-one ships of 470,000 gross registered tonnage. Two ships were sold in the first half of 1929, but the tonnage was about offset by the launching in July, 1929, of the Pennsylvania, the third new steamer of more than 20,000 tons to be placed in the intercoastal service. The company now operates the American Line, the Red Star, Atlantic Transport and Leyland Lines and through Atlantic Transport has an interest in the Holland-American Line.

The shares of the reorganized company have never been very active since they were listed on the Stock Exchange. They reached a high of 39⅛ on Oct. 18, 1929, and declined to 18⅛ on Nov 13. The closing price yesterday was 28¼.

The company is one of the "Morgan group," officials of J. P. Morgan & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company and affiliated institutions constituting a majority of its board of directors.

OVER-COUNTER PRICES DROP AFTER UPTURN

After a strong opening yesterday the over-the-counter market moved higher, but closed with prices slightly lower. Bank and trust company stocks were strong, while insurance shares were firm in tone all day. A slight rally in the industrial list resulted in a few upturns.

Among the bank and trust company issues gains were shown by Irving Trust, Corn Exchange, Equitable, Manhattan Company, Bankers Trust, Central Hanover, New York Trust, Guaranty, City and Fidelity Trust. In the insurance division the tone was better in United States Fire, Harmonia, Aetna Casualty and Surety and a few others. Aetna Life was slightly lower.

Price changes were mixed in the industrial group, with Adams Millis preferred, Crosse & Blackwell and Trent Processes fractionally higher. The tone was easier in Southern States Oil and Liberty Baking. Chain stores showed little activity, with losses throughout the list.

VIRGIL JORDAN SEES UPTURN IN TRADE NEAR

Predicting within "the next four to six weeks an upturn which will be quite definite" in business and industrial conditions, Virgil Jordan, director of the bureau of research of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, told 1,000 members of the Silk Association of America at their annual dinner at the Hotel Astor last night that the revival would be "quite vigorous and quite strong in some industries, but will not last as long or reach as high levels as are now anticipated by many people."

"Something has happened to the business thermometer in the past two weeks that is quite significant," Mr. Jordan said. "There has been a remarkably quick upturn in steel production, a jump of about 10 per cent in one week. There has been a real significant increase in building contracts during the past two weeks."

Freight car-loadings have increased recently, he added, and "most astonishing of all," there was "an unprecedented increase in the first week of the year in the amount of checks drawn and cashed in the member banks of the Federal Reserve System" outside of speculative centres.

Mr. Jordan predicted a general diffusion of prosperity during 1930-31, but no more "boom years like 1929" for some time.

SPLIT OF STOCK PROPOSED.

Aetna Fire Insurance Company Plans Reduction of Par Value.

Directors of the Aetna Fire Insurance Company have voted to recommend to the stockholders that the par value of the company's stock be reduced from $100 to $10 and that ten new shares be issued for each share outstanding. This recommendation will be acted upon by the stockholders at their annual meeting on Feb. 10. The number of outstanding shares is 75,000.

A special act upon which the directors based their recommendation was passed by the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut in April, 1929. It allowed one year for acceptance of the charter amendment by the company. R. B. Ives, president, said many stockholders, as well as many agents, had urged the change in par value.

MID-CONTINENT OIL REDUCED IN PRICE

RATES IN TEXAS ALSO CUT

Large cuts in posted prices of mid-continent crude oil were announced yesterday, and, as in the reduction announced on the previous day in the Texas fields, the lead was taken by a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The reduction, made by the Carter Oil Company, affected prices of all grades in Oklahoma and Kansas, the readjustment amounting to from 19 to 41 cents a barrel, depending on gravity. It is expected to be followed by the other major companies operating in these prolific fields.

The minimum price under the new schedule is 66 cents a barrel for crude at 25.9 degrees, a reduction of 19 cents. The maximum price of 44 degrees gravity and above is $1.44 a barrel, a cut of 41 cents. Compared with a 5-cent spread previously between each gravity, under the new schedule the spread is 6 cents up to 32 degrees gravity, which is quoted at $1.08 a barrel. From that point the spread is 3 cents for each degree.

The readjustment is the first change in mid-continent oil prices since May 20, 1929 and follows closely the price schedules put into effect on Wednesday in the light oil fields of Texas by the Humble Oil and Refining Co., another Standard of New Jersey subsidiary.

A general readjustment of posted prices for crude oils in the Texas fields, followed yesterday the lead taken by the Humble Oil and Refining Company. Standard Oil of Louisiana posted reductions in the North Louisiana and Arkansas fields ranging from 22 cents a barrel on the lowest gravities to 42 cents on the highest. Similar schedules apply to Cotton Valley crude, but no change was announced for the Smackover production. The Magnolia Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New York, announced a revised schedule for Texas crude.

No readjustments in gasoline prices in the East have yet been announced, but these are expected to follow the reductions in crude oil.

STANDARD OIL SHARES FOR EMPLOYES AT $63

New Jersey Company Fixes Price Under New Offer for This Year.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has named $63 a share as the price at which employes may buy its stock under the plan adopted at the start of 1920 and which is to run three years. This price is based on the average price of stock on the New York Stock Exchange for three months prior to the date of the offering. The shares closed yesterday at 62½.

Under the plan, employes may subscribe for 400,000 shares of stock this year. They are permitted to make deposits of 10 per cent of their salaries and the company pays into the fund to the credit of each employe a sum equal to 50 per cent of his deposit. There are now about 25,089 participants in the plan.

The present stock purchase plan is the third in the endeavor of the corporation to make business partners of its employes. Under the first offer, 884,002 shares were purchased by 16,358 employes. At the close of the second offer there were distributed 425,114 shares to 19,474 employes.

CURB PRICES DECLINE IN LAST TRADING HOUR

Utilities Are Most Active Again—Gulf, Humble and Indiana Standard Lead Oils Down.

A brisk rally followed by a decline in the last hour characterized trading on the New York Curb Exchange yesterday, with utility stocks again leading the general list in activity somewhat greater than recently.

Among the stronger shares were American Light and Traction, Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line and American Cigar. Shares of some other pipe lines and chain stores were strong but dull.

In the utility group the close showed few changes of a point or more. Allied Power and Light, American Gas and Electric, American Superpower, United Gas, United Light and Power A, and Utilities Power and Light were slightly stronger. Electric Bond and Share, Indian Territory Oil and Electric Power and Light warrants eased moderately.

Oils were generally weak. Gulf Oil, Humble Oil and Standard of Indiana led in the decline. Newmont Mining was depressed.

OIL MERGER PROGRESSING.

Shares of Anglo-American Company Being Deposited for Exchange.

Deposits of stock of the Anglo-American Oil Company under the plan of exchange for shares of the Standard Oil Export Corporation, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, had reached such a point yesterday, it was learned, as to assure the passing of control to the American company. The deposits have not yet reached the two-thirds share of the outstanding stock of the English company required before the plan becomes operative, but with the deposit of stock that was pledged before the plan was arranged the total will be well above the required percentage.

The Anglo-American Oil Company, Ltd., is the largest distributor of petroleum products in the British Isles. It was a part of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey previous to 1911. The basis of exchange, one share of preferred stock of the Standard Oil Export Corporation of $100 par value for 5 5-9 of £1 par value shares of the English corporation, puts a value of about $18 on the Anglo-American shares.

INVESTMENT TRUST ADDS 3,300 HOLDERS

Incorporated Investors Reports Also $147,095 Net Income for Last Quarter of 1929.

LESSON LEARNED IN BREAK

George Putnam, President, Says Value of Equities in Long-Term Investments Was Proved.

Incorporated Investors reports net income, after expenses and dividends, of $147,095 for the final quarter of 1929. The number of its stockholders increased from 9,774 to 13,100 during the three months.

The list of the company's holdings on Dec. 31 showed several changes compared with its portfolio of Sept. 30. Three companies, International Telegraph and Telephone, Packard Motor and Continental Can, were eliminated, while Standard Oil of New Jersey was added. Holdings of American Gas and Electric, American Telephone, du Pont, Consolidated Gas of New York, International Harvester and Union Carbide were substantially increased.

In his report to stockholders George Putnam, president, said:

"The great challenge of the past three months has been a challenge of the common stock plan of investment. The break seems to your management to have proved conclusively the value of confining holdings wholly to equities for long-term investment. Going back over the record of the companies in the portfolio of Incorporated Investors and noting the prices which the shares of these companies were selling for at their low points in 1921 and the prices reached at the low point of the greatest break in history, you will find definite proof of the value of a cross-section of high-grade equities for long-term investment."

The company's portfolio, as of Dec. 31, compared with its holdings of the same stocks on Sept. 30, was as follows:

NEW NATIONAL CITY BRANCH

To Open Today to Serve Individuals in Financial District.

The National City Bank will open today a branch bank designed to serve individuals in the financial district. On the ground floor of the offices of the City Bank Farmers Trust Company at 43 Exchange Place, the office will be known as the City Bank Farmers Branch.

The new unit is intended to supply the need for a bank in the Wall Street section in which large commercial transactions will not interfere with close personal attention to individual clients. The complete services of the National City organization will be available.

To Confer on Australian Gold.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 16 (Canadian Press).—The Commonwealth Bank of Australia has invited other banks to take part in a conference on the gold position in Australia. Owing to the depletion of Australian gold reserves by large exports the Federal Treasurer, authorized the Commonwealth Bank to acquire gold held by the trading banks and to confer with the latter regarding future operations.

PLANS TO EXPAND TRUST.

Distributors Group Will Hold Its Annual Meeting Today.

Plans for a new issue fo stock of North American Trust Shares will be discussed and directors elected at the annual meeting today of the Distributors Group, Inc., in the offices of Lee, Stewart & Co., Thomas F. Lee, executive vice-president, announced yesterday. Fifty representatives of banking houses in leading cities, all of whom are members of the Distributors Group, will attend the meeting. At a luncheon at the Whitehall Club, Francis Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, will speak.

Mr. Lee announced that plans will be laid at the meeting to make North American Trust Shares a $100,000,000 trust by Dec. 31, 1930. Sales to date for ten months of operation exceeded $44,000,000, he said.

GOLD STOCKS INCREASED.

Imports of $173,000 and Exports of $147,000 in Week Announced.

The weekly summary of gold movements at the port of New York as announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank showed imports of $173,000, of which $146,000 came from Brazil and $27,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries, and exports of $147,000, of which $106,000 went to Germany and $41,000 to Mexico. A decrease in earmarked gold amounting to $3,000,000 was shown.

The daily gold statement given out by the Reserve Bank showed no changes. The items showing exports to Germany and Mexico and imports from Latin America had not been announced previously as the bank in its daily statements disregards transactions of less than $100,000.

BRITISH-AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.

SATISFACTORY YEAR'S WORKING.

INTERIM DIVIDEND FOR CURRENT YEAR.

The twenty-seventh annual general meeting of British-American Tobacco Co. Ltd. was held recently at the registered offices of the company, Westminster House, 7, Millbank, S.W. Sir HUGO CUNLIFFE-OWEN, Bt. (the chairman), presided.

The Chairman said: Taking the assets side of the balance-sheet first, the item of real estate and buildings at cost, less provision for amortisation of leaseholds, £701,473, shows an increase of £132,414 as compared with last year. This is accounted for by the purchase of some leasehold property and by additional factory buildings which have been erected and are in course of erection. Plant, machinery, furniture, and fittings at cost or under, £821,079, shows an increase of £43,832. This increase is made up of items of additional machinery required in your factories. Goodwill, trade marks, and patents remain at the same figure as last year, viz., £200,000, and, in view of the great value of the company's trade marks, the directors remain of the opinion that this item should appear on the balance-sheet, even if only at the nominal value of £200,000.

Investments at cost or under in (1) shares in subsidiary companies, £17,651,336, and (2) shares and bonds in associated companies, £4,067,058, making a total of £21,718,394, shows an increase over last year of £787,313, and is the largest item on the assets side. This increase is after the deduction from investments of the book value of the Tobacco Securities Trust Company Ltd. shares which were distributed to the Ordinary shareholders in accordance with the extraordinary resolution of Oct. 29, 1928, and is accounted for by the increase of your investments in subsidiary and associated companies and in the purchase of new businesses. The actual value of your proportion of the net tangible assets of these subsidiary and associated companies considerably exceeds the figure at which the investments are carried in the books of your company.

Loans to and current accounts with your (1) subsidiary companies (less provision for doubtful accounts), £3,303,896, and (2) associated companies (less provision for doubtful accounts), £3,528,391, show an increase of £1,[illegible]97,883. This increase is due to expansion in the businesses of our subsidiary and associated companies. Investments in British Government securities and other investments, at cost or under, £17,509, show a decrease of £227,719 on Sept. 30 last.

STOCKS OF LEAF.

Stocks of leaf, manufactured goods, and materials at cost or under, now stand at £8,[illegible]08,580, or an increase of £2,539,096. This is chiefly due to the increase in the purchase of leaf tobacco to meet increasing business.

Sundry debtors, less provision for doubtful debts, £2,429,735, shows a decrease of £1,[illegible]22,840. This decrease is chiefly due to the short term deposits, £2,250,000, appearing under this heading last year having been absorbed in the development of our businesses. Cash at bankers, in transit, and at call, £1,[illegible]72,188, shows a decrease of £1,584,633. This decrease is mainly accounted for by the increased requirement of our business, as previously mentioned, for stocks of leaf, &c.

Turning to the liabilities side of the balance-sheet, the issued capital of 4,500,000 Preference shares remains the same, but the issue of Ordinary shares is increased from 23,[illegible]40,236 to 23,574,036, an addition of 33,800 shares. This is due to the issue of shares to certain directors under a resolution passed at a meeting held on June 21, 1926. The new 6 per cent. Second Cumulative Preference shares were not issued during the year under review.

Creditors, i.e., subsidiary companies, £1,[illegible]0,949; associated companies, £1,489,800, and other creditors, £4,672,378, making a total of £7,733,127, represents an increase of £2,[illegible]18,761 on the figure at which it stood last year. The greater portion of these balances consists of provision for payment of taxation due to British, Dominion, and foreign Governments, and moneys deposited by your subsidiary and associated companies. The item of reserves for buildings and machinery now stands at £550,000, an increase of £25,000. Premium on Ordinary shares issued stands at £57[illegible],558, an increase of £16,900. This increase is due to the premium received on the shares issued to directors previously mentioned. Special reserve has increased from £1,921,511 to £1,924,014, an increase of £2,503.

PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT.

The accounts show a net profit for the year, after deducting all charges and expenses and providing for income-tax, of £6,357,772, a decrease of £205,787. Last year we carried forward a balance of £4,736,173, out of which we paid a final dividend of 1s 8d per share (free of income-tax), amounting to £1,961,686, which left us with a disposable balance of £2,774,486, from which is to be deducted £1,166,269, the book value of the shares of Tobacco Securities Trust Co. Ltd. distributed to you in accordance with the extraordinary resolution of Oct. 29, 1928, leaving an amount of £1,608,217. To this must be added the profits for the year as previously mentioned, £6,357,772, less the Preference dividend of £225,000, and the four interim dividends paid on the Ordinary shares for the year, amounting to £3,927,714, leaving a disposable balance of £3,813,275, out of which the directors recommend the allocation of the sum of £100,000 to an Employees' Benevolent Fund and the distribution on Jan. 17 of a final dividend (free of British income-tax) on the issued Ordinary shares of 1s 8d per share, amounting to £1,964,503, leaving £1,748,772 to be carried forward.

With regard to the decrease in the net profits, it is not caused by a shrinkage in the actual profits of your company or your company's subsidiary and allied companies. A substantial portion of your company's holdings in certain of those companies was sold to Tobacco Securities Trust Co.

In October, 1928, you approved of the distribution to the shareholders of one Ordinary share and one Deferred share in Tobacco Securities Trust Co. Ltd. for every eight Ordinary shares held by them, and, as you know, Tobacco Securities Trust Co. Ltd. paid a dividend of 16 per cent. (less income-tax) on its Ordinary shares and a dividend of 2.752d (less income-tax) on its Deferred shares for the year ended Oct. 31 last. Therefore, if it is your pleasure to agree to your directors' recommendation as to the final dividend, any shareholder who has retained his shares in Tobacco Securities Trust Co. Ltd. will have received dividends from the two companies which would be equivalent to a total dividend at the rate of 26.821 per cent., free of tax, on his holding as at October, 1928, or an increase of 1.821 per cent. over the previous year's dividend.

Results for the year under review in nearly all parts of the world were, I am glad to say, very satisfactory. This is greatly due to the good management and efficiency of the boards of directors of the subsidiary and associated companies, and the loyalty of their respective staffs. I am very pleased to be able to tell you that your business for the first three months of the current year continues to be satisfactory. I may also mention that the directors have declared for the year 1929-30 an interim dividend of 10d per share, free of British income-tax, also payable on Jan. 17, so that the shareholders will receive on that date 2s 6d per share.

Mr. J. D. GILLIAM seconded the resolution which was carried unanimously.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY LESS LAST MONTH

CHIEF DROP IN MOTOR FIELD

Important Recessions Also in Outputs of Electricity and Steel Ingots.

The Annalist, in its Annual Review and Business Forecast Number, published today, reports a further sharp decrease in its index of business activity, as follows:

"The Annalist Index of Business Activity for December shows a further sharp decline to 90.1 (preliminary) from 94.2, the revised index for November. The index is now at the lowest level recorded for any month back to August, 1924, the lowest point reached in the intervening business recession of 1927, having been 92.3 in December. The lowest point reached in the depression of 1924 was 86.8, in August, and the lowest point reached in the depression of 1921 was 81.6 in March.

"The most important factor in the December decrease was a further drastic reduction in the rate of automobile production, the adjusted index of which, on the basis of an estimated output of 125,000 cars and trucks, fell to 51.5, which compares with a November index of 81.8 and the peak figure for last June of 150.5.

"The next most important factor was a further pronounced recession in the adjusted index of electric power production, which, on the basis of an estimated December output of 8,300,000,000 kilowatt hours, went down to 94.7 from the December revised index of 98.8. The December adjusted index of 94.7 compares with 94.6, the lowest point reached in the depression of 1924 (in August), and with 89.1, the lowest point reached in the depression of 1921 (in July).

"Another important factor was a further sharp decline in the adjusted index of ingot production, which, at 78.4 for December, is at the lowest level since July, 1924, when it touched 64.6. There were also sharp declines in the adjusted indices of cotton consumption, pig iron production and zinc production.

"The adjusted index of freight car loadings, however, on the basis of partly estimated data, was practically unchanged from the November figure, which was the lowest since December, 1927.

"The adjusted index of bituminous coal production also rose against the general downward trend.

"Table I summarizes for the last three months the movements of the combined index and of the ten component series each of which has been adjusted for seasonal variation, long-time trend and variations in cyclical amplitudes before being combined into The Annalist Index of Business Activity. Table II gives the combined index by months back to the beginning of 1925.

FINDS PROSPERITY ASSURED

But Sarnoff Says Economic and Industrial Forces Must Be Balanced.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, said in an address last night at the School of Business of the College of the City of New York, 17 Lexington Avenue, that while there were no fundamental barriers to prosperity in the United States, the economic and industrial forces of the nation were still to be balanced to build the country's prosperity upon a sound basis.

"We cannot produce in the blind faith of an inexhaustible demand," he said. "We cannot encourage unrestricted production for its own sake without suffering the consequences of market disorganization. The profitless prosperity that often flows from unrestricted output is but the mirage of success. What does it profit an industry to pile up enormous sales totals in any one year if by doing so it undermines its market for the following year?

"True competition inspires research and invention. It makes for the improvement of industrial processes, for higher standards of quality, for better standards of value. True competition is the rivalry between well-matched factors for the maintenance of established markets or for the creation of new markets, for better and more economic public service, for higher standards of industrial achievement."

APPLE MARKET PLAN APPROVED BY BOARD

Farm Body Also Sanctions Proposals for a Potato Cooperative.

FURTHER CREDIT ON WOOL

Application by Growers Asked Advances Supplemental to Those From Other Sources.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Federal Farm Board today approved plans for the development of central marketing programs for potatoes and apples, as presented by representatives of cooperative associations handling these two products.

The potato group selected a committee of six headed by W. A. Burton, general manager of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Produce Exchange, to work with the Board in carrying out the recommendations of the potato industry.

The apple group will appoint a similar committee.

The announcement of the Board's attitude was made following consideration of reports by representatives of the Apple Section of the Fruit and Vegetable industry, and the potato section of the cooperative organizations which were in session here today. The apple group's report recommended development of "aggressive efforts toward thorough development of cooperative thought and action in important apple producing regions."

Want Apples as Separate Commodity.

It was signed by Representatives of the fruit growers, including M. C. Burritt, vice president of the Western New York Fruit Growers' Cooperative Association, and asked that apples be designated as a separate commodity and an advisory commodity committee set up for the industry.

Such a committee would include three representatives each from the four great apple-growing districts, one of which was designated as New York and New England. It would cooperate with the farm board and "assist in the forming of local and regional cooperative marketing associations" in large regions that now are unorganized.

A report from the potato section of the cooperative organizations meeting here stated that the potato industry "is thoroughly disorganized nationally."

This, it was stated, has caused growers of one of the nation's largest food crops to lose money and find themselves engaged in a hazardous business. Designation of potatoes as a major commodity also was asked of the board.

Wool Market Plan Approved.

A nationally organized cooperative system must be formed, a system of production credit set up in place of credits extended by speculative interests, a comprehensive program initiated to maintain production and the farmer made to realize the value of cooperation, the report stated.

The Farm Board announced that it had approved an application of the National Wool Marketing Corporation for a line of credit supplemental to that from the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks and other sources.

This will enable the association, it was stated, through its regional cooperative member associations, to make more liberal advances to producers of wool and mohair consigned to the corporation for marketing.

NEWARK BANKS TO MERGE.

Federal Trust Will Take Over Hayes Circle National.

Arrangements for a merger of the Federal Trust Company of Newark and the Hayes Circle National Bank and Trust Company of that city were completed yesterday, when the directors of the Hayes Circle accepted the offer of the other bank for an exchange of stock. The Hayes Circle is to become a branch of the Federal.

Five shares of Federal Trust stock are to be issued for four shares of stock of the Hayes Circle and in addition $25,000 is to be paid the stockholders of the latter bank. The Federal Trust has assets of more than $48,000,000 and the Hayes Circle of more than $3,000,000.

COTTON SENT DOWN BY WHEAT'S BREAK

After displaying considerable steadiness the greater part of the session, prices on the Cotton Exchange lost ground in the last hour yesterday under heavy selling pressure. Weakness developed in New Orleans and a sharp break in wheat brought cotton on the market from various directions. Southern selling orders in both the March and May positions ran prices off a dollar a bale from the best figures of the morning, with a loss of 2 to 10 points at the close.

Exports for the season are now 642,000 bales behind the corresponding date last year, but 250,000 ahead of two years ago.

Steadiness in the early trading was helped by reports from Washington that the Farm Board was formulating an intensive campaign to obtain a reduction of 6,000,000 acres in land to be planted to cotton next Spring, leaving the area approximating 40,000,000 acres at harvest time. The Department of Agriculture estimated the acreage last Spring at 48,457,000, compared with 41,905,000 in 1927 and 48,730,000 the record figures of 1926.

Yesterday's quotations here follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
January	17.24	17.30	17.24	17.13n	17.23

The loal market for spot cotton was steady at 5 points decline to 17.40c for middling upland; sales 3,000 bales.

Southern spot markets were Galveston, 17.30c, 10 points decline, sales 811 bales; New Orleans, 16.97c, 9 points decline, sales 1,195 bales; Savannah, 17.03c, 8 points decline, sales 150 bales; Augusta, 16.94c, 6 points decline, sales 320 bales; Memphis, 16.45c, 5 points decline, sales 4,039 bales; Houston, 17.25c, 5 points decline, sales 3,866 bales; Little Rock, 16.28c, 4 points decline, sales 1,890 bales; Dallas, 16.50c, 5 points advance, sales 1,106 bales.

WHEAT NOW LOWEST OF PRESENT SLUMP

CASH OFFERS LOWER CORN

Oats Lose ½ to ⅞ Cent on Day—Rye Is Off, With German Tenders Reported Here.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—General liquidation in the wheat market today uncovered stop-loss orders and dropped prices to a new low on the present downturn. The close was about the bottom, with net losses of 1⅜ to 1¾ cents. A small advance early was due to unexpected strength in Liverpool, but when Winnipeg started to weaken the market here followed.

A leading Canadian operator was credited with heavy selling in Winnipeg and there was selling also by locals who had bought early. Winnipeg lost 2¾ to 3 cents for the day, with the May delivery there losing 1⅝ cents on Chicago and finishing at 5⅜ cents premium, compared with 11 cents recently.

Best support here came from holders of bids and from commission houses on resting orders, while short covering was laid to the belief that sentiment had become so overwhelmingly bearish that a rally would be in order. Short covering was largely responsible for an advance of 1¼ to 1¾d in Liverpool, although pressure on cash grain slackened. Buenos Aires, which did not open until 1 o'clock, Chicago time, lost only ½ cent, while Rosario was unchanged to 1 cent lower.

Export demand for wheat at the seaboard improved considerably, with sales around 1,000,000 bushels, but the business was mainly in Manitobas, and part of the grain will go to the Orient. The latter was reported as after low-grade Manitobas at New York.

Bearish sentiment continues and the general comment here is that it will take increased export buying to maintain bulges.

Cooperatives at Minneapolis and Duluth continue to bid for country run Spring wheat at the Farm Board loan figures. No. 1 Northern here was offered at 5 cents under May, equal to 11⅛ cents below the price at Minneapolis, the cost of bringing grain here being considered. Country elevators are said to hold large stocks and have the advantage of buying in hedges at a low figure and the grain corporation as a backstop for the cash article.

Nat C. Murray emphasized that while total stocks in sight in this country are 40,000,000 bushels above those of a year ago the invisible supply is about 30,000,000 bushels under.

Primary receipts were 536,000 bushels; a week ago 575,000 bushels; and a year ago, 529,000 bushels. Shipments were 512,000 bushels; a week ago, 451,000, and a year ago, 608,000.

Corn closed 1¼ cents lower because of further offers of cash grain to come here from outside markets and reports that the feed situation was weak. March and July sold at a new low on the crop. Around 25,000 bushels corn were booked to arrive from the country and a like amount from other markets. The spot basis was ⅛ cent higher to 1 cent lower. Shippers sold 107,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 792,000 bushels; a week ago 944,000 and a year ago 1,038,000. Shipments were 568,000 bushels; a week ago 510,000 and a year ago 646,000.

Oats and rye were weak with oats off ½ to ⅞ cent, while rye closed 2 to 3⅜ cents lower, March leading. The trade thought leading longs were selling March and buying May, while July rye was bought against sales of July corn. Germany was said to have offered 40,000 bushels of rye to New York at equal to 80¼ cents, c. i. f.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—5 to 5¼ per cent for the best names.
Wednesday—5 to 5¼ per cent for the best names.
The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

Plan Early Spring Promotion.

Initial offerings of early Spring ready-to-wear and accessories are being planned by many retailers for about Jan. 27, it was said here yesterday. An early start on promotional plans is desired to test out consumer response. Indications are that the peak of the resort wear trade will be reached toward the end of this month, thus paving the way for regular Spring promotion. The expectation is that seasonal sales events will continue through February, but on a steadily decreasing scale. Meanwhile reports on turnover indicate some improvement from the recent decline occasioned by weather conditions. Confidence is expressed that many stores here and out of town will show a gain over this month last year.

Onyx Hosiery Making Changes.

Onyx Hosiery, Inc., operated for some time as a division of the Gotham Silk Hosiery Company, will become a separate entity on Monday next and will maintain individual offices and showrooms at 389 Fifth Avenue. On the same day Onyx selling terms will be changed from net 30 days to 5 per cent, end of month. Several price reductions in the Spring line will become effective at the same time. These include Nos. 265, 735, 740 and 755, all of which will be cut from $15 a dozen to $14.50, to retail at $1.95, and No. 177, which will be reduced from $11.60 to $11.50, to retail at $1.50. Numbers 710 and 715 will be cut from $12.50 to $11.50 and will retail at $1.50 instead of $1.65. Number 300 will be cut from $9.75 to $9.50 a dozen, and the retail price from $1.25 to $1.15.

Almora Kid Favored in Shoe Buying

Buyers from the West and South have been actively placing orders for women's shoes in the market here. Renewed general buying is expected in the near future, with covering of needs for March and Easter. Recent orders have confirmed the trend toward kid shoes in the Almora brown shade. Most of the business has been in pump and strap styles, with a few oxfords sought. Almost 95 per cent of the shoes, one authority said yesterday, are wanted in trimmed effects. Moderate quantities of water-snake styles have been bought for immediate selling. In some quarters the view was taken that popularity for this type is likely to be of shorter duration than a year ago.

Underwear Buying Starts.

With most of the principal Northern and Southern lines priced, buying of heavyweight fleeced and ribbed underwear began in earnest here yesterday. Most of the business placed, however, was of the blanket variety, with details to come later. Buyers apparently are satisfied that prices are low on the present basis of cotton. Among the additional lines priced yesterday were the fleeced goods of the Union Mills, Inc., which show reductions of 12½ to 25 cents a dozen, depending on the type of garment. The Union ribbed lines have not been priced. Prices of the High Rock Knitting Company are understood to have been made on bases comparable to those of competing lines.

Favor "Flashy" Type of Glassware.

The influence of retail buyers who have been asking for "flash" rather than quality in metal mounted glassware will be noticed in the Spring lines to be offered shortly, a producer of such goods explained yesterday. Since early last Fall, he claims, buyers have favored articles which were large and elaborately decorated but which could be retailed at a low price. Spring merchandise, it is predicted, will feature Colonial designs. Activity in the market at present has been restricted to sales merchandise.

Form Brooklyn Knitwear Group.

Twenty-two mills have become charter members of the Knitted Outerwear Association of Brooklyn, just organized to carry out an educational program of trading up in knit goods production in that borough. This was announced yesterday by E. B. Gordon, executive secretary of the National Knitted Outerwear Association. Under the temporary chairmanship of Dan Starr, a constitution has been adopted and a nominating and program committee named. Officers and directors will be chosen soon. The large number of small knit goods mills in Brooklyn, Mr. Gordon said, has created problems of merchandise cheapening, &c. which the new body will seek to remedy.

Correspondence Cards in Demand.

A continued growth in the popularity of correspondence cards this year is looked for by stationery manufacturers, who are giving them a prominent place in assembling their Spring lines. The cards were a big factor in sales last year and show no signs of losing ground this season. Buyers seeking specially priced items for sales are still in the market. They have shown little interest in regular Spring goods. Producers of medium and high-priced stock are holding back their new styles until the demand for special goods abates. The majority are planning to open lines either late in February or early in March.

Resort Millinery Selling.

An excellent business in better grade millinery for Southern resort wear was reported here yesterday. In hats wholesaling at $15 and up a feature is the wide interest shown in Panamalacque bodies, particularly in white and pink. Advance business for general Spring wear, in hats of this material is active and it promises to be one of the season's outstanding features. In this business black, blues and greens so far have been the predominating colors. A fine Chinese woven body called Katanga, which is prominent in the French model hats now reaching this country, also promises well for Spring. The position of Bakus is assured. Both in current and advance buying, felts figure largely in a variety of colors.

Urge Passage of Shipping Bill.

In an effort to speed the passage of the bill governing carriage of goods by sea the Merchants' Association yesterday appealed to Representative Wallace H. White Jr., chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, to use all efforts to see that the bill is passed. The measure is intended to make international ocean bills of lading uniform. Under present practice the provisions for receiving, handling, transporting and delivering cargoes vary widely.

Gray Goods Sales Small.

Volume disposed of in the gray goods market here yesterday was limited. Printcloth business, which lacked feature, was based on 38½-inch 60-48s at 5¾ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 6¾. Eight cents was paid for 40-inch 3.75-yard sheetings, with 7 the best that buyers could do on 40-inch 4.25s. Trading in carded broadcloths was based on 9 cents for 80-60s. The fine-yarn business was small, but in it were sales of 40-inch 78-72, nine-yard combed lawns at 9¼ cents.

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Sugar.

The news from Washington was the important factor in the sugar market yesterday. During early trading on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange near positions were very steady in anticipation that the Senate would vote in favor of increased duty on sugar. But the announcement from Washington that the Harrison amendment had been carried, which provided that the duty on sugar remain unchanged, was met with rather heavy selling in near months. As a result March declined 9 points from the daily high and May declined 5 points. Houses with trade connections were the principal sellers of those two positions. More distant months were steadier and closed unchanged to 2 points lower, whereas the final quotation on March was 7 points lower for the day and May was 5 points lower.

The Senate action also unsettled the raw sugar market. Prior to the report of the passage of the Harrison amendment sales were reported of [illegible]000 tons of Philippines January-February shipment at 3.77, 4,500 tons of Porto Ricos first half February shipment at 3.78½ and 4,000 tons of Porto Ricos early February arrival at 3.80. The market later turned easier, with sugars ex-warehouse available at 3.74 or 1 31-32 c. i. f. Philippines for January-February shipment and February-March shipment in addition to duty frees for February arrival, were offered at [illegible].77.

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

ROTHSTEIN HEIRS SELL SITE

Most of yesterday's real estate trading was done in properties on the west side of Manhattan. Although no large parcels changed hands, there was diversified activity in sites, ranging from an old holding at Eleventh and Washington Streets to the purchase of an apartment house on Central Park West. The estate of Arnold Rothstein disposed of a holding in the midtown section.

While the volume of space leased for business purposes showed a strong demand, brokers' reports of apartment rentals indicated that that branch of trading failed to maintain the high average set earlier in the week. Suburban sales were not very numerous, interest seeming to centre in New Jersey.

The deal in the Washington Street section was negotiated by Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., brokers, who sold the four-story building with stores at 349 and 351 West Eleventh Street, adjoining the northwest corner of Washington Street. The property, 44 by 50 feet, was sold for Katherine C. Brennan. The New York Central Railroad, through its New York State Realty and Terminal Company, bought the realty in connection with its west side track removal plans. The railroad has owned the immediate corner for several years.

Other parcels acquired by the railroad through the same brokers were the five-story tenement at 844 Eleventh Avenue, from Leo Kramer; the five-story factory at 539-41 West Fifty-sixth Street, runing through to 546-48 West Fifty-seventh Street, from Isabel Allen; the five-story tenement at 510 West Forty-ninth Street, from Beatrice K. Sanger, and the garage and two tenements at 510-16 West Fifty-second Street, from Harry Bailey.

The Rothstein estate sale involved the four-story altered structure at 118 West Forty-seventh Street, which was bought by the Ritchey Corporation. The site is 18.9 by 100 feet. It was sold through Harry Levy, broker. The property, which is leased to one tenant until 1944, was taken for cash over a first mortgage of $46,000. It was held at $95,000 and is being resold, according to Mr. Levy.

On the upper west side the Houghton Company, as broker, sold the three-story brownstone residence at 156 West Ninety-third Street. The house has a frontage of seventeen feet. Last week the same brokers sold and resold 157 West Ninety-third Street, opposite. They also recently sold 152 West Ninety-third Street.

The Schelhoe Realty Company, Inc., Tobias Schelberger, president, sold the five-story apartment house at 477 Central Park West. This is the southwest corner of 108th Street and is 40 by 100 feet. Peter I. Menzies is the buyer. The broker in the deal was Thomas M. Cleary.

Mr. Cleary negotiated the sale of the lease on the building which was held by Harry Halpert and had about ten years to run before expiration. The lease was bought by Frederick C. Smith, who in turn leased the property to Justin Piscopo.

In the Harlem section a six-story elevator apartment house, 70 by 100 feet, at 536-38 West 136th Street was bought by Walter A. Forster from the Citco Realty Corporation. The house is 105 feet east of Broadway. It was bought subject to a first mortgage of $104,500. A resale of the property is pending, Mr. Forster said.

One of the few east side deals to be announced yesterday was closed through Louis Lent and Joseph Spooner, brokers, who disposed of the two five-story buildings at 343 and 345 East Fifty-first Street for Annie M. Walsh. The property is 50 by 100 feet. It was bought by the seller about eight years ago.

Mrs. Stephanie Bero resold, after an ownership of three years, the four-story dwelling at 75 West Eighty-fifth Street. This is one of a row of fourteen houses built by the Clark estates in 1887. Joseph J. Bernstein represented the purchaser as attorney. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers.

Page Estates, Inc., purchased 1,052 Second Avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, a four-story building with store on a plot 20 by 63 feet. Loomis J. Groesman was the broker.

Bell Telephone Takes Seven Floors.

The eighth to fourteenth floors, 134,000 square feet, in the new Graybar-Varick Building at 180 Varick Street, have been leased by the Bell Telephone Laboratories for development and research work, which now has 800,000 square feet in this city for such work. The lease is for five years, with renewal option, at a total rental for the initial period said to exceed $500,000.

the Ante-Room to YOUR Office

With entrances on three important mid-town streets, the foyer of the new Lincoln Building adds convenience to dignified beauty. The walls are Italian marble; bronze doors and decorations are by Gorham.

Typical of the dignity visible in every detail of the new Lincoln Building, is the Foyer from which 30 high-speed elevators reach all offices in a few moments of time. If you select offices in the Lincoln Building, visitors will reach you under the favorable impression that its rich, yet conservative entrance creates.

Walled in Italian marble, with doors, lamps and ceiling in figured bronze, this ante-room to all offices sets a tone of conservative richness that persists throughout the structure.

Your office in this building will be surrounded by those of substantial firms that naturally gravitate to such surroundings.

Space is available in whole floor areas from 33,770 square feet to 8,445 square feet or divided to suit. Plans will be sent you upon request. Ask your secretary to write for them.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—The northeast disturbance is now centred south of Greenland, Resolution Island, Hudson Straits, and a trough of low pressure extends from Newfoundland southwestward to Cuba. Pressure is falling rapidly over and west of Hudson Bay and another disturbance has developed over the southern plateau region, Salt Lake City. Pressure is high elsewhere over North America and it is abnormally high from Eastern Alaska southeastward to the northern Rocky Mountain region.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Friday in the Washington forecast district, but the plateau disturbance will likely move eastward and cause quite general precipitation over the States east of the Mississippi during Saturday or Saturday night.

The weather will remain cold during the next two days.

MUNSON REPLIES TO DAVIS'S ATTACK

HE CHARGES UNFAIRNESS

Frank C. Munson, president of the Munson Steamship Line, which was the principal target for the attack of Representative Erwin L. Davis, of Tennessee in an address in the House on ocean mail contracts, said yesterday that his line owns only three ships under foreign registry. Their aggregate deadweight tonnage is 18,000 and the total deadweight tonnage of the Munson ships is 260,000, he said.

Mr. Davis made his attack while discussing a bill under which contracts for the transportation of mail would be denied to companies operating any foreign-flag ships in competition with American flag ships. Legislation is needed, he said to permit effectual operation of the merchant marine act of 1928.

"Some steamship lines," he said, "having valuable mail contracts, while technically qualifying as 'citizens of the United States,' yet operate the major portion of their ships under foreign flags, frequently in competition with ships owned by American citizens and flying the American flag."

Mr. Munson issued his statement yesterday as a reply to Mr. Davis and charged that the Representative's statements in Congress were "unfair and need correction to put us in the proper light before the public." Mr. Davis charged that some of the companies seeking mail contracts did not operate more than 10 per cent of their total tonnage under the American flag. Mr. Munson's reply was in part as follows:

"Evidently Mr. Davis's concern is based upon the competition which the Munson Line is offering the Mississippi Shipping Company, operating out of the Gulf for a mail contract between Gulf ports and South America, but in defending the Mississippi Shipping Company Mr. Davis should confine himself to facts. Instead of the Munson Line owning 10 per cent American and 90 per cent foreign-flag ships we own 93 per cent American and seven per cent foreign.

"The Munson Line is not seeking to deprive the Mississippi Company of the mail contract. We have been willing to have two contracts arranged for the Gulf-South American service so that instead of having one sailing a month to Brazil and two sailings a month to the Argentine there should be four sailings a month to Brazil and four to Argentina. This would double the sailings to the Argentine and quadruple the sailings to Brazil.

"The Munson Line has agreed to build 16-knot combination passenger and freight vessels for this service, thus giving the Gulf a position second to no other section in export facilities. The Mississippi Company has been seeking not only to obtain the mail contract for the benefit of its present fleet of ten-knot steamers, but does not wish a second contract made with any other company. It is content to make its thirty-six sailings per annum in ten-knot vessels and let the outside foreign ships which now make about fifty-five sailings a year handle an increased volume of business."

The Munson Line has been operating from the Gulf to the east coast of South America since 1912 and has built several liners for the trade. It also operates four fast express passenger and freight vessels between New York and South America. Mr. Munson said yesterday that he has encountered keen foreign competition on both routes.

SEEKS WORK FOR SEAMEN.

J. F. Milliken Asks Shipping Board to Use Americans in Deliveries.

The Shipping Board was asked to specify in contracts for the sale of its ships to foreign buyers that American seamen be employed until they are delivered to their foreign ports of destination, in a letter addressed yesterday by John F. Milliken, secretary of the Neptune Association, to Chairman T. V. O'Connor.

Captain Milliken pointed out that when the Shipping Board recently sold twenty-five ships to a Russian company, the State Department granted a diplomatic permit under which Russian seamen entered the United States and manned the ships on the trip abroad. In this way about 200 American ship officers and 600 seamen were denied employment that was seriously needed, he said.

The depression in shipping circles has caused many American seamen to be unemployed, Captain Milliken said. He suggested that the Shipping Board and the State Department help remedy the situation, the former by specifying that Americans be employed on ships en route to foreign ports when the Government has sold them and the latter by refusing to grant diplomatic permits for foreign seamen to enter the country to man such ships.

AGAINST RAIL MERGERS.

Bay State Utilities Department Cites Prosperity in 1929.

BOSTON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities in its annual report made public today found that, with two exceptions, the railroads of the State had a prosperous year and saw "no occasion, so far as the interests of the people of New England are concerned, for their consolidation with other systems at the present time."

The two exceptions noted were the Central Vermont Railway and "possibly" the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad Company, which recently petitioned for the right to increase fares.

The department found that although the passenger revenue continued to shrink on the Boston & Albany, the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Maine Railroads, "the falling off had not been so marked as in previous years."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Kenneth Collins, executive vice president and publicity director of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., has been elected chairman of the sales promotion division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Mr. Collins will preside at the convention sessions of the division on Feb. 5 and 6 at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

The questionnaire to be sent to department, specialty and chain stores covering 1929 expense data was discussed yesterday at a meeting of representatives of the Bureau of Business Research of Harvard University and the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Buyers of dresses will meet next Wednesday at the Dry Goods Alliance, 20 West Thirty-third Street.

MOVES TO CLARIFY LAWS ON SHIPPING

House Merchant Marine Committee Will Hold Hearings Next Week on Three Bills.

WHITE OFFERS MAIL PLAN

Chairman Would Make Preference to the Buyers of Government Vessels Specific.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Hearings on three measures proposing preference to operators of American flag lines in ocean mail contracts, and aid to prospective builders of ships to be used in foreign trade, will be begun next week by the House Merchant Marine Committee.

The pending legislation is accepted here as an effort to clarify the Jones-White act, as requested by President Hoover in his annual message.

The first topic at the hearings will be an amendment to the merchant marine act, proposed today by Representative White of Maine, Chairman of the Committee and a co-author of the act, giving preference in ocean mail contracts to owners of vessels bought from the government.

The amendment would provide that should a bid for carrying the mail upon any ocean route be submitted by the operator upon that route of vessels purchased by him from the government, the Postmaster-General shall award the contract to the operator without regard to the other bids submitted, if in his opinion, the operator possesses the qualifications to insure proper performance of the mail service and if the bid is not in excess of the compensation authorized by the law.

Moreover, the shipping board also would determine if the award of the contract is in the public interest.

Public hearings on this proposal are to be held next Wednesday. On the following day the topic will be the bill of Representative Free of California, proposing the lowest government rate of interest for money loaned for American ships actually under construction for foreign service.

Under the present interpretation of the act, a ship under construction in an American yard is inactive, and governed by the policy applied to coastwise shipping, the operators of which pay a higher rate of interest on government loans than those whose vessels are in foreign service. Under the proposed change, a ship once laid down to be built for foreign service would be considered in foreign service then, and entitled to the lower rate on the money advanced for its construction.

The third measure is a bill by Representative Davis of Tennessee, seeking to give further preference in ocean mail contracts to American operators by denying such awards to any American companies operating foreign flag vessels in foreign trade in competition with ships flying the flag of this country.

Representatives of the Munson Steamship Company and the International Mercantile Marine are expected to be present for this hearing, as, in presenting his bill, Representative Davis charged that these two firms were attempting to obtain American mail contracts, although operating the bulk of their tonnage under foreign flags.

SEEK RUBBER RESTRICTION.

British and Dutch Growers Start Conference in Amsterdam.

Conversations between British and Dutch rubber growers concerning measures to restrict production have officially begun, a cable from Amsterdam to the Rubber Exchange of New York said yesterday. The cablegram read:

"Some members of the British Rubber Growers' Association headed by H. E. Miller have arrived in Amsterdam for negotiations with Dutch rubber producers. The discussions will be of a preliminary character and no definite plans have been formulated thus far. The parties have mutually decided not to publish any reports regarding the negotiations."

Shippers In Secret Meeting Here.

The Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board opened its sixth annual meeting yesterday with closed sessions at the Hotel Commodore, prior to the general open session that will be held today. The executive and railroad committees held separate meetings in the morning and a joint meeting in the afternoon.

DECISION RESERVED IN JONES BEACH ROW

STATE ASKS QUICK ACTION

Denies Fill From Highway Is Poured Into Pond—Sees Whole Program Imperiled by Petition.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 16.—Supreme Court Justice James A. Dunne reserved decision today after hearing arguments on a motion made by the Oyster Bay Game Protective Association, Inc., for a temporary injunction to restrain State workmen from encroaching on its game preserve at Jones Beach. Robert Moses, head of the Long Island State Park Commission; Clifford L. Jackson and Thomas A. McWhinney, the other members of the commission, are made defendants in the action.

William H. Parke, attorney for the association, which is controlled by S. R. Guggenheim and William Loeb Jr., contended today that about ten days ago one of the association's caretakers reported that park workmen were pumping mud and water through a pipe into the roadway and that the water was running off into the land between the parkway and into a fresh water pond which was part of the association's leasehold and which is used as a watering and breeding place for wild fowl. The pond is about a mile long and lies between the bay and the ocean.

Mr. Park contended that while the association agreed to give the park commission a release on a 160-foot strip through its property, the release provided that the commission would see that none of the fill from the parkway came within twenty feet of the pond.

Raymond P. McNulty, of counsel to the Park Commission, urged the court to render a speedy decision in the matter saying that there is a bill at Albany now which provides for the expenditure of $4,500,000 for improvement of parks and parkways either through the State Park Commission or the Public Works Department of the State and that he feared that if some of the legislators held the belief that this matter is held up in court it might upset the whole bill.

He contended that there is no real damage done to the plaintiffs' property.

"The plaintiffs have a remedy at law," said Mr. McNulty, "if they have been damaged they can bring their case before the Court of Claims." He said that he was informed that the pipes had been moved further along and urged that nothing be done to hold up the work, since if it was stopped even for a day long delays and claims for damages might follow as well as prolonged litigation which might endanger the whole park program.

ACTS TODAY TO QUASH INDICTMENT OF BILLER

Crain Will Ask Stipulation, However That Case May Be Reopened if Necessary.

District Attorney Crain will appear before Judge Nott in General Sessions today and request the dismissal of the first-degree murder indictment returned thirteen months ago against Hyman (Gillie) Biller and the mythical "John Doe" and "Richard Roe" in the shooting of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler. The basis for Mr. Crain's demand will be that no evidence was produced before the grand jury revealing Biller's connection with the murder. He will add that the grand jury testimony also indicated that "John Doe" and "Richard Roe" are fictional characters.

At the same time the prosecutor will ask the court to inscribe on the record of the Rothstein case the stipulation that, in the event evidence subsequently is obtained against Biller, the District Attorney be permitted to submit it to the grand jury.

Mr. Crain said yesterday he expected Judge Nott would comply with his request.

Biller disappeared before the Rothstein grand jury returned the murder indictment in December, 1928. There was a report yesterday that Biller was in Cape Town, South Africa, and had prospered so well there he had no intention of returning to this country.

"In the event Biller returns, is it your intention to subpoena him before the grand jury?" the District Attorney was asked.

"Biller is not immune in the Rothstein case," was the reply. "I shall not make a definite decision on that, however, until his return.

Should Judge Nott dismiss the murder charge against Biller, according to an old court attaché, it would be the first time in more than thirty-five years that such action had been taken in the case of a man who had been a fugitive from the time the charge was filed against him.

The signatures of Arnold Rothstein on six notes said to have been given by him to Harry Langer, sportsman, in return for loans totaling $70,000, were branded as forgeries yesterday by Albert S. Osborn, handwritng expert, testifying during the third day of the trial of Langer's action to collect the loans from the slain gambler's estate. All of the signatures on the six notes, the witness declared, were imitations and tracings of Rothstein's handwriting.

Mr. Osborn, who testified at the Hall-Mills trial and other famous murder trials, said the disputed signatures had evidently been copied from a genuine note for $6,500 given by Rothstein to Charles Friedman, betting commissioner, who was one of Langer's witnesses on Wednesday.

The trial will continue today.

Quit Inkwell Films, Says Fleischer.

Max Fleischer, president of Fleischer Studios, Inc., issued a statement yesterday concerning the bankruptcy petition filed on Monday by the Out-of-the-Inkwell Films, Inc., in which he said that he had withdrawn as vice president and director of that company last January and no longer had any association with it.
